LONDON, Feb. 13.—The city of Singapore was subjected to unending ordeal from the skies today as the Japanese air force sought to break down the besieged garrison by incessant bombing attacks.

An official communique broadcast to London said that enemy pressure continued during the past 24 hours and that there had been "many bombing attacks" upon the city.

The communique said:

"Enemy pressure has been maintained on the western front during the last 24 hours and his attacks are being supported by increased air and artillery forces.

"Shelling today has been frequent on forward areas and on Singapore town. The enemy has also carried out low-level and dive-bombing attacks on our forward areas and there have been many high level bombing attacks on the town area by large formations of aircraft.

Jap Drive Against East Indies Slows Up

By JOSEPH J. KOSAK

BATAVIA, Feb. 13.—The Japanese drive against the Netherlands East Indies slowed down momentarily today as Nippon's hordes concentrated on the battle of Singapore.

A war communique issued by the N. E. I. high command said that "enemy air activity was mainly confined to reconnaissance over the outer provinces."

Official telegraphic reports from Macassar, beleaguered south Celebes port, contradicted earlier advices that the Japanese had made a landing at Balangnipa, near the city.

As late as last evening the harbor district of Macassar was said to be still in flames, as a result of destructive measures taken by the defenders "the enemy will not find anything of use to him," the communique said. It added that no further reports had been received from other fronts in the East Indies war.

"Telegraphic reports from Macassar indicate that the original announcement regarding a Japanese landing at Balangnipa is not correct," the communique stated.

The official tabulation contained in a communique came as a surprise, because the navy in its first announcement of the raid Feb. 1 intimated that no Jap warships were encountered when the Pacific fleet struck its first big offensive blow since Pearl Harbor.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Feb 13—Nine seamen, part of the crew of a British tanker torpedoed in the Atlantic off the east coast of the United States, were brought to Hamilton this morning by an American plane which spotted them drifting in the Atlantic.

The seamen had been drifting in an open lifeboat for twelve days when they were sighted by the plane.

Six of the survivors were taken immediately to a hospital. Two of these were discharged after examination but the remainder still are undergoing treatment.

The rest are staying at Hamilton.

LONDON, Feb. 13—The first eye-witness report of the great aerial and navel battle during which the German battleships Gnieseanu and Scharnhorst, and the heavy cruiser Prince Eugen, ran the gauntlet of British defenses from the Strait of Dover to Heligoland Bight was given today by Beaufort Squadron Leader W. He said:

"We all dropped our torpedoes within ten seconds of each other. I am certain I hit one of them."

The individual pilots of R. A. F. fighters told of fighting their way through "mob" of enemy fighters to reach the heavily convoyed battleships, and of having their own machines hit and damaged before reaching effective bombing levels.

One Beaufort lost almost its entire tail assembly but managed to reach its base and came down safely.

Eye-Witness Accounts Of U. S. Fleet Attack Upon Japanese Island Bases Reveal Extensive Damage

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HONOLULU, Feb. 13.—First eye-witness accounts dramatically revealed today that the United States naval attack on Japanese bases in the Marshall and Gilbert Islands on February 1 constituted a much greater victory than first reported.

At least eighteen Japanese ships, including one modern cruiser and one yawata class liner, were sunk or destroyed and others were damaged.

More than 35 enemy planes were demolished on the ground or in the air.

Air bases, hangars, military installations, key shore positions and other selected objectives were wrecked in the brilliant surprise attack.

Caught napping and dealt a heavy blow, the Japanese in desperation staged two frantic but ineffectual bombing plane attacks after the United States forces withdrew.

Executed By Hawaii Fleet

The attack was executed by units of the United States Pacific fleet based at Hawaii under command of Admiral Chester W. Nimitz. All combat types, supported by aircraft based on an aircraft carrier, participated.

In the Marshall group, bases on the islands of Kwajalein, Votje, Majoelap, Jaluit and Mili were raided. Makin in the Gilbert Islands also was hit in this one simultaneous, grand-scale coordinated smash.

Significantly, the fleet was out more than twenty days before attacking, and this was long enough to have enabled it to reach Tokyo. The region attacked is 2,000 air miles southwest of Pearl Harbor in the direction of the Great Dutch East Indies war theatre. The area of those Japanese mandates is 400 miles by 350 and encompasses 140,000 square miles.

The fleet threw its main air effort initially at Kwajalein because it is in an interior position. Valu-

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Authoritative British circles reluctantly admitted today that the German navy has succeeded in one of the most desperate gambles of the war by sending the battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and the cruiser Prinz Eugen through a curtain of British fire from Brest to their home in Heligoland Bight.

"There can now be little doubt that unless any of the trio was seriously damaged they are now back at their home port in Heligoland Bight."

Naval circles had set 1 p. m. as the "deadline" for the ships' arrival if the British navy and air force failed to halt or sink them.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 13.—Despite a war-time boom, relief is still Pennsylvania's number one problem.

A survey for the past year disclosed that in the midst of rising prosperity the state and federal government nevertheless found it necessary to spend $219,598,462 to keep people from going hungry.

This vast sum was sufficient, if distributed among the entire population of the state, to provide every man, woman and child with approximately $21.90.

The relief bill, although large, represented a sharp drop from 1940, when the combined federal, state and local expenditures reached $298,412,000 for the year. Last year's bill was the smallest since 1934.

Of the $219,598,462 expended in the state in 1941 in work-relief, direct public assistance and related activities, the state furnished $77,900,000 and the federal government $111,208,942. The remaining $30,489,519 represented funds furnished by state and local governments to sponsor W. P. A. projects.

Largely W. P. A. Pay

Of the $111,208,942 spent in this state by the federal government, $85,208,942 went largely to pay the wages of W. P. A. workmen, while $26,000,000 was given to the state department of public assistance for old age assistance and for aid to dependent widows and children.

The relief bill for 1941 brought to approximately $2,500,000,000 the amount of money spent in Pennsylvania to assist unemployed workers and their families since the start of the depression in 1930.

The peak of relief expenditures was reached in 1938 when $361,754,390 was spent. Since then it has been declining and if the trend continues through 1942 the relief bill will probably fall below the $200,000,000-mark for the first time since 1934.

Here is the way relief expenditures increased in Pennsylvania during the past decade from the small initial payments of 1931 until the present:

1931, $8,490,000; 1932, $32,544,000; 1933, $104,247,000; 1934, $172,000,079; 1935, $299,837,632; 1936, $348,283,006; 1937, $301,134,025; 1938, $361,754,390; 1939, $335,610,000; 1940, $298,412,000 and 1941, $219,598,462.

DEFENDERS OF SINGAPORE ARE STILL BATTLING

said that Japanese infantry troops are now slightly over two miles from the heart of Singapore city and that "furious fighting" continues.)

The war-weary defenders of Singapore still fought indomitable meanwhile against hordes of Jap invaders after staging a successful counter-assault against the Nipponese left flank early this morning.

Earlier, out-numbered R. A. F. units won a victory over enemy bombers and fighters in an engagement above the Malay peninsula.

No Regard For Losses

A broadcast by the Singapore radio this morning, relayed to London from New Delhi, said the Japs were continuing to attack "with fanatical disregard of their losses".

In reply to Japanese claims that they have captured all Singapore's air fields, the broadcast pointed out that with the battle raging no air base on the island can be used by either side.

(The Japanese (Domei) news agency reported earlier today that the British were "fiercely resisting" Japanese forces around the Singapore race course and the two reservoirs on Singapore island.)

The Exchange Telegraph (British) news agency picked up a German radio broadcast which said the situation at Singapore had not changed since yesterday evening and that violent fighting was in progress in the eastern Changi area "where the British are still offering resistance".

Exchange Telegraph also quoted a Vichy radio broadcast which claimed British troops at Singapore set fire to a number of gasoline tanks and that Singapore city was "enveloped by dense clouds of smoke".

This Nazi version claimed that an attempt to evacuate British troops was frustrated by Japanese dive-bombers" and that "16 British ships were sunk".

Counter-Attack

"British forces successfully counter-attacked the Japanese left flank," a Singapore communique said.

"At 7:30 a. m. (Thursday) Japanese military bombers with a fighter escort fought an unsuccessful engagement against the British air force over Malaya.

"Heavy fighting continues on the western and northern sectors of Singapore island. In the north, enemy activity has been intensified.

"Enemy air activity ceased during the night but was resumed early in the morning. The enemy attack was supported by dive-bombing and machine-gunning as well as by medium tanks.

"The British line extends from the naval base in the north through the center of the island to Tanglin in the south. From the Sungei Sunya the line runs north."

(Tanglin, southern terminus of the British defense line, lies in the northwestern section of Singapore city, the same region as that in which the race course is situated. The Sungei Sunya is a creek southwest of the city.

JAPANESE DIVE BOMBERS ATTACK OWN INFANTRY

Day's Communique

Text of the war department's 105th communique is as follows:

"Philippine Theater—Aggressive enemy patrol action characterized sporadic fighting in Bataan during the past 24 hours.

"Enemy dive bombers were active. Two were shot down by our anti-aircraft guns.

"A Japanese dive bombers mistakenly bombed and machine gunned their own infantry, with heavy casualties. The victims of the erroneous attack were elements of the 122nd Japanese regiment of Gen. Akira Nara's 6th division.

"There is nothing to report from other areas."

Auditorium At YWCA Rededicated Thursday Evening

About 100 Attend Interracial Discussion And Impressive Dedication Program

With approximately 100 persons in attendance, an impressive inter-racial program for the rededication of the newly decorated Y.W.C.A. auditorium took place Thursday evening in the "Y" auditorium.

Mrs. A. B. Foster, president of the "Y," presided, with the Misses Esther and Emma Gibbons as music leaders.

Girls; Thelma Stuart, vice president opened by Rev. N. L. Meeks of Cleveland who spoke on the contribution of negroes in other wars through the whole growth of the country. Rev. James E. Smith, pastor of the Madison Avenue Christian church, spoke about the crucial state of the country at present and how the work of negroes is needed in defense factories. Miss Alice Sterling, chairman of the public affairs committee, told of the employment situation and that negroes are unable to get work in defense factories. Hannah Braswell of the Elm street committee of management told of how negroes had lost hope of being able to help in our democracy, after which Mrs. Ira Ramsey spoke on what they ought to do as Christians to help negroes.

Mrs. Foster expressed appreciation to all clubs that made contributions to the auditorium fund and to clubs planning to contribute; also to Mrs. W. W. Duff and the industrial committee, the house committee and Y.W.C.A. board which assisted Mrs. J. Norman Martin at a benefit musical tea, Mrs. George Balph who has urged the reconstruction of the auditorium for many years, the workmen including the janitors, Thomas Greer and Thomas Outhwaite, and Paul Butz for flowers he gave for the service.

Others who took part in the rededication progarm were: Anna Mae Hazen, president Junior Business Girls; Thelma Stuart, vice president Elm Street Eva Bowles club; Mrs. Helen Mundjiak, president Polish Mothers; Dorothy Ward, Elm Street Girl Reserve; Mrs. Lucy Gizzi, Italian Mothers club; Audrey Evans, president Senior Ne-Ca-Hi club; Cora Rose Jones, president Elm Street Joy Givers; Mary Aloe, president Square Circle; Helen Bailey, vice president Elm Street Senior Girl Reserves; Lillian Ekblom, president Blue Triangle; Dorothy Crunkleton, president Elm Street Junior Girl Reserves.

The committee in charge of the inter-racial discussion included Mrs. Mary Meeks, Mrs. A. B. Foster, Shirley Cartwright, Betty Smith and Jean McCurdy. The dedication committee included Mrs. Ira Ramsey, Mrs. O. P. Brown, Ann Higgins, Pat Kradel and Thelma Stuart.

sar was still on fire, as a result of extensive destruction which had been carried out. Because of these destructions also in south Celebes, the enemy will not find anything of use to him.

"No further reports have been received from other theatres of war in the Netherlands Indies Archipelago

"Enemy air activity was mainly confined to reconnaissance over the outer provinces."

Netherlands Indies official quarters expressed concern meanwhile over reports from Washington that united nations reinforcements may not arrive in time to meet an expected invasion of Dutch possessions.

Expressing the view that a concerted attack on Java will follow the fall of Singapore, officials said they needed every conceivable reinforcement.

Will Battle To Finish

It was stressed that the Netherlands Indies government has made detailed plans anticipating the fall of the British naval base, and will fight to the last man to hold back the expected Japanese advance.

"The fall of Singapore does not alter the determination of the Netherlands Indies to fight on alone, even if the allies were to abandon them as a base and continue operations from Australia," an authoritative source said.

But, added the spokesman, such a withdrawal by united nations forces to Australia would be very unwise "because it would give Japan a cheap victory, a gate to the Indian ocean and all the raw materials she needs to push onward."

If the Japanese forces should conquer all of the Netherlands islands, it was said then the enemy would gain new advantages of position and resources in her war against the other united nations.

All of Java and the southern part of Sumatra should be defended at any cost, it was said. The northern part of Sumatra, however, probably will have to be abandoned since it is separated from Singapore only by a narrow strait.

Whatever may happen, said one semi-official spokesman, "Japan doesn't have a ghost of a chance that the Netherlands East Indies will lay down their arms, despite the increasingly dangerous position.

"We will go on fighting and damn the consequences."

Bombing of a Japanese aircraft carrier in the Gulf of Boni, in Celebes waters, was reported by military headquarters. Observers on shore saw great bursts of flame rise from the damaged ship.

The worst shortage is that of guts. Every official knew the making of cars and tires had to stop, but none dared take the responsibility.

The strange part is that a man risks prison when he can be a rogue in so many ways without breaking a law.

NAVY REPORT SHOWS HEAVY JAP LOSSES IN RECENT ATTACK

and destroyers, the attack apparently caught the enemy by surprise. In addition to the ships and planes, the U. S. force smashed at least six airplane hangars, as well as numerous ammunition dumps, oil and gas tanks, warehouses and shore and anti-aircraft batteries.

Coincidentally, the navy report came shortly after Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario, Canada, in a speech at Toronto, again ridiculed American naval might and reiterated that the powerful Japanese fleet would lead an invasion force to the North American continent "within three months." Previously Hepburn charged the U. S. fleet was "in hiding."

Welcome News

The news was doubly welcome in the face of reports of additional Nipponese successes in the Far East and the fact that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces in the Philippines anticipated a renewal of attacks by numerically superior enemy forces on Bataan Peninsula.

In addition to the plane carrier, the Japanese ships destroyed included one cruiser, one destroyer, two submarines, three large fleet tankers, five cargo vessels and three smaller ships.

American losses were officially listed as five scout bombers and one cruiser damaged by "a small bomb." In the preliminary report, the navy said 11 U. S. planes were missing.

The latest announcement boosted to at least 54 the total of Japanese ships of all types destroyed by American naval and air units since the outbreak of the Pacific conflict. This does not include 19 Nipponese vessels sunk by the American army.

Indicating the striking power of the Pacific fleet, the raid took place almost simultaneously on six scattered Japanese Islands 2,000 air miles southwest of Pearl Harbor. Hit hard was the important Nipponese base of Wotje, from which the enemy blasted the American Island of Wake.

Under the command of Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., a native of Elizabeth, N. J., the American fleet units and planes on Jan. 31 struck at the Nipponese strongholds of Roi, Kwajalein, Wotje, Taroa and Jaluit in the Marshall Islands, and Makin in the Gilbert group

Relief Still Big Problem In State

War Time Boom Is No Solution

Huge Sum Still Needed To Meet Relief Demands In Pennsylvania

DECLINE IS SHOWN IN PAST TWO YEARS

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Feb. 13.—Despite a war-time boom, relief is still Pennsylvania's number one problem.

A survey for the past year disclosed that in the midst of rising prosperity the state and federal government nevertheless found it necessary to spend $219,598,462 to keep people from going hungry.

This vast sum was sufficient, if distributed among the entire population of the state, to provide every man, woman and child with approximately $21.90.

The relief bill, although large, represented a sharp drop from 1940, when the combined federal, state and local expenditures reached $298,412,000 for the year. Last year's bill was the smallest since 1934.

Of the $219,598,462 expended in the state in 1941 in work-relief, direct public assistance and related activities, the state furnished $77,900,000 and the federal government $111,208,942. The remaining $30,489,519 represented funds furnished by state and local governments to sponsor W. P. A. projects.

Largely W. P. A. Pay

Of the $111,208,942 spent in this state by the federal government, $85,208,942 went largely to pay the wages of W. P. A. workmen, while $26,000,000 was given to the state department of public assistance for old age assistance and for aid to dependent widows and children.

The relief bill for 1941 brought to approximately $2,500,000,000 the amount of money spent in Pennsylvania to assist unemployed workers and their families since the start of the depression in 1930.

The peak of relief expenditures was reached in 1938 when $361,754,390 was spent. Since then it has been declining and if the trend continues through 1942 the relief bill will probably fall below the $200,000,000-mark for the first time since 1934.

Here is the way relief expenditures increased in Pennsylvania during the past decade from the small initial payments of 1931 until the present:

1931, $8,490,000; 1932, $32,544,000; 1933, $104,247,000; 1934, $172,000,079; 1935, $299 837,633; 1936 $348,283,006; 1937, $301,134,025; 1938, $361,754,390; 1939, $335,610,000; 1940, $298,412,000 and 1941, $219,598,462.

DEFENDERS OF SINGAPORE ARE STILL BATTLING

said that Japanese infantry troops are now slightly over two miles from the heart of Singapore city and that "furious fighting' continues.)

The war-weary defenders of Singapore still fought indomitable meanwhile against hordes of Jap invaders after staging a successful counter-assault against the Nipponese left flank early this morning.

Earlier, out-numbered R. A. F. units won a victory over enemy bombers and fighters in an engagement above the Malay peninsula.

No Regard For Losses

A broadcast by the Singapore radio this morning, relayed to London from New Delhi, said the Japs were continuing to attack "with fanatical disregard of their losses".

In reply to Japanese claims that they have captured all Singapore's air fields, the broadcast pointed out that with the battle raging no air base on the island can be used by either side.

(The Japanese (Domei) news agency reported earlier today that the British were "fiercely resisting" Japanese forces around the Singapore race course and the two reservoirs on Singapore island.)

The Exchange Telegraph (British) news agency picked up a German radio broadcast which said the situation at Singapore had not changed since yesterday evening and that violent fighting was in progress in the eastern Changi area "where the British are still offering resistance".

Exchange Telegraph also quoted a Vichy radio broadcast which claimed British troops at Singapore set fire to a number of gasoline tanks and that Singapore city was "enveloped by dense clouds of smoke".

This Nazi version claimed that an attempt to evacuate British troops was frustrated by Japanese dive-bombers" and that "16 British ships were sunk".

Counter-Attack

"British forces successfully counter-attacked the Japanese left flank," a Singapore communique said.

"At 7:30 a. m. (Thursday) Japanese military bombers with a fighter escort fought an unsuccessful engagement against the British air force over Malaya.

"Heavy fighting continues on the western and northern sectors of Singapore island. In the north, enemy activity has been intensified.

"Enemy air activity ceased during the night but was resumed early in the morning. The enemy attack was supported by dive-bombing and machine-gunning as well as by medium tanks.

"The British line extends from the naval base in the north through the center of the island to Tanglin in the south. From the Sungei Sunya the line runs north."

Tanglin, southern terminus of the British defense line, lies in the northwestern section of Singapore city, the same region as that in which the race course is situated.

The Sungei Sunya is a creek southwest of the city.

Day's Communique

Text of the war department's 105th communique is as follows:

"Philippine Theater—Aggressive enemy patrol action characterized sporadic fighting in Bataan during the past 24 hours.

"Enemy dive bombers were active. Two were shot down by our anti-aircraft guns.

"A Japanese dive bombers mistakenly bombed and machine gunned their own infantry, with heavy casualties The victims of the erroneous attack were elements of the 122nd Japanese regiment of Gen. Akira Nara's 6th division.

"There is nothing to report from other areas."

Auditorium At YWCA Rededicated Thursday Evening

About 100 Attend Interracial Discussion And Impressive Dedication Program

With approximately 100 persons in attendance, an impressive interracial program for the rededication of the newly decorated Y.W.C.A. auditorium took place Thursday evening in the "Y" auditorium.

Mrs. A. B. Foster, president of the "Y," presided, with the Misses Esther and Emma Gibbons as music leaders.

Girls; Thelma Stuart, vice president opened by Rev. N. L. Meeks of Cleveland who spoke on the contribution of negroes in other wars through the whole growth of the country. Rev. James E. Smith, pastor of the Madison Avenue Christian church, spoke about the crucial state of the country at present and how the work of negroes is needed in defense factories. Miss Alice Sterling, chairman of the public affairs committee, told of the employment situation and that negroes are unable to get work in defense factories. Hannah Braswell of the Elm street committee of management told of how negroes had lost hope of being able to help in our democracy, after which Mrs. Ira Ramsey spoke on what they ought to do as Christians to help negroes.

Mrs. Foster expressed appreciation to all clubs that made contributions to the auditorium fund and to clubs planning to contribute; also to Mrs. W. W. Duff and the industrial committee, the house committee and Y.W.C.A. board which assisted Mrs. J. Norman Martin at a benefit musical tea, Mrs. George Balph who has urged the reconstruction of the auditorium for many years, the workmen including the janitors, Thomas Greer and Thomas Outhwaite, and Paul Butz for flowers he gave for the service.

sar was still on fire, as a result of extensive destruction which had been carried out. Because of these destructions also in south Celebes, the enemy will not find anything of use to him.

"No further reports have been received from other theatres of war in the Netherlands Indies Archipelago

"Enemy air activity was mainly confined to reconnaissance over the outer provinces."

Netherlands Indies official quarters expressed concern meanwhile over reports from Washington that united nations reinforcements may not arrive in time to meet an expected invasion of Dutch possessions.

Expressing the view that a concerted attack on Java will follow the fall of Singapore, officials said they needed every conceivable reinforcement.

Will Battle To Finish

It was stressed that the Netherlands Indies government has made detailed plans anticipating the fall of the British naval base, and will fight to the last man to hold back the expected Japanese advance.

"The fall of Singapore does not alter the determination of the Netherlands Indies to fight on alone, even if the allies were to abandon them as a base and continue operations from Australia," an authoritative source said.

But, added the spokesman, such a withdrawal by united nations forces to Australia would be very unwise "because it would give Japan a cheap victory, a gate to the Indian ocean and all the raw materials she needs to push onward."

If the Japanese forces should conquer all of the Netherlands islands, it was said then the enemy would gain new advantages of position and resources in her war against the other united nations.

All of Java and the southern part of Sumatra should be defended at any cost, it was said. The northern part of Sumatra, however, probably will have to be abandoned since it is separated from Singapore only by a narrow strait.

Whatever may happen, said one semi-official spokesman, "Japan doesn't have a ghost of a chance that the Netherlands East Indies will lay down their arms, despite the increasingly dangerous position.

"We will go on fighting and damn the consequences."

Bombing of a Japanese aircraft carrier in the Gulf of Boni, in Celebes waters, was reported by military headquarters. Observers on shore saw great bursts of flame rise from the damaged ship.

The worst shortage is that of guts. Every official knew the making of cars and tires had to stop, but none dared take the responsibility.

The strange part is that a man risks prison when he can be a rogue in so many ways without breaking a law.

and destroyers, the attack apparently caught the enemy by surprise In addition to the ships and planes, the U. S. force smashed at least six airplane hangars, as well as numerous ammunition dumps, oil and gas tanks, warehouses and shore and anti-aircraft batteries.

Coincidentally, the navy report came shortly after Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario, Canada, in a speech at Toronto, again ridiculed American naval might and reiterated that the powerful Japanese fleet would lead an invasion force to the North American continent "within three months." Previously Hepburn charged the U. S. fleet was "in hiding."

Welcome News

The news was doubly welcome in the face of reports of additional Nipponese successes in the Far East and the fact that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces in the Philippines anticipated a renewal of attacks by numerically superior enemy forces on Bataan Peninsula.

In addition to the plane carrier, the Japanese ships destroyed included one cruiser, one destroyer, two submarines, three large fleet tankers, five cargo vessels and three smaller ships.

American losses were officially listed as five scout bombers and one cruiser damaged by "a small bomb." In the preliminary report the navy said 11 U. S. planes were missing.

The latest announcement boosted to at least 54 the total of Japanese ships of all types destroyed by American naval and air units since the outbreak of the Pacific conflict This does not include 19 Nipponese vessels sunk by the American army.

Indicating the striking power of the Pacific fleet, the raid took place almost simultaneously on six scattered Japanese Islands 2,000 air miles southwest of Pearl Harbor Hit hard was the important Nipponese base of Wotje, from which the enemy blasted the American Island of Wake.

Under the command of Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., a native of Elizabeth, N. J., the American fleet units and planes on Jan. 31 struck at the Nipponese strongholds of Roi, Kwajalein, Wotje Taroa and Jaluit in the Marshall Islands, and Makin in the Gilbert group

DUTY TO CHILDREN IN WARTIME

Many mothers whose children are quite small are going to work and often from a deep sense of patriotism. No doubt, a few mothers who don't need to work but feel they must help to win this war are letting their immediate war emotions warp their judgment. We are set on this being a long war and we need to think about the children over a period of years.

To mothers who have babies and young children I would urge you to consider whether for the welfare of these children it will be absolutely necessary for you to work away from home now. The mother who has ample income to supply wholesome food and shelter for her children, in deciding about whether to work or not, should consider first whether she has a responsible person to guide and protect her children safely in her absence. This should apply to volunteer workers among women.

It is not just a matter of being absent as much as it is of coming home to the family all worn out and jittery, unfit to be companionable and provide a warm [illegible] family atmosphere.

DIES COMMITTEE STILL NEEDED

NOW that the House Rules Committee has approved continuance of the Dies Committee for another year, this action should be confirmed without hesitation by the main body.

Certainly this is no time to end an investigation into un-American activities that has already produced such substantial results. As all know, the beginning of our elaborate defense program was the signal for America's domestic enemies to redouble their efforts. But as far back as 1938, when the Dies Committee began its labors, it started to disclose the machinations of Nazi and Communist agents alike.

Now that we are in the war, there is continuing special need for the committee's searching inquiries. Perhaps the best proof of the service it is rendering is provided by the enemies it has made. The term "un-American" covers a broad range of nefarious activities. It includes everyone, regardless of nationality, who is seeking to undermine our form of government. And among these miscreants, be it said with shame, are some who call themselves Americans and use their natural or acquired citizenship as a cloak.

The purpose of the Dies Committee's investigations and reports is not to interfere with free speech and other righteous individual liberties. It is to provide congress with facts on which to base legislation for the nation's protection. Thanks to its endeavors, we now have laws to strengthen the hands of the authorities in dealing with the foes within our household.

Our government and people have welcomed Russia's aid in combatting Nazi aggression. But there has been no yielding of our determination that the pernicious doctrines of Communism and irreligion shall not take root on American soil. Subversive plotting takes many forms. Wherever it is trying to fasten its activities, congress should have the facts for further legislation that may be needed. The important task of the Dies Committee is by no means ended. Its continued functioning will be distinctly in the public interest.

MEN OR MACHINES

Warfare as initiated by the Nazis in Poland, the Low Countries and France was a highly mechanized business, with success dependent upon the speed and power of planes and tanks and other motor equipment.

The speed with which Europe was conquered gave rise to a fallacy—that machines were irresistible, that the intelligence and courage of men had ceased to be dominant factors in the achievement of victory.

What even then was suspected is now clear—that no matter how big and powerful machines may become, men will always be bigger, that flesh and blood and spirit will still endure long after the mightiest piece of destructive mechanism has been reduced to rust and wreckage.

Those who demand proof of this theory have only to look upon MacArthur and his men. Why do they still cling tenaciously to their little corner of the Philippines?

According to all the theories of the exponents of the invincibility of machines in warfare, this little army should have been driven into the sea. It has been strafed and blitzed. Hordes of mechanized troops, tanks, dive-bombers and all of the paraphernalia of mechanized terrorism have been hurled against it.

But still it stands, giving blow for blow, counter-attacking with meager forces and driving the enemy back, providing a spectacle of military skill and heroism which has earned its place in history alongside Valley Forge and Yorktown, Gettysburg and Chateau-Thierry.

The stand of MacArthur and his men blasts a theory which, on the basis of early experience in the war, was accepted rather universally as sound. But now the world knows that pure heroism will prove equal to any tests the architects of chaos may devise.

VALENTINE DAY

The custom of exchanging lovers' tokens and messages of tender feeling on February 14 appears not to be linked with the lives or persons of any of the three sainted martyrs who bore the name of Valentine, but only with their day, because it falls midway in the second month when, according to medieval tradition in England and in France, the birds begin to pair. "For this was on Seynt Valentyne's Day, when every foul cometh ther to choose his made," sang Chaucer in his "Parliament of Foules."

The valentine goes back as far as written English runs, and ranges from the candied sentiment of immortal poets to the heart-shaped lozenge bearing the strange device "Why not?" or "Don't tell Ma." In this age of speed and direct action in all things, including wooing, the valentine has suffered, but its meaning is the same, and springs from the self-same source, a young man's fancy—youth in this being related not to years but to a state of feeling.

A formidable segment of valentine taste continues to run to the elaborate improvisation of pierced hearts and paper lace which becomes increasingly hard to find. They are unequivocal and unashamed.

It is at least as nice to send valentines as to receive them, and one ought to send them, no matter if she, like the sender, is a kindergartener, or if the twain have celebrated a golden wedding anniversary. In times like these, they help to keep alive an expression of the spirit which figures little in the world-shaking events of the day, but which will return, as it always has, to repair the world when these events have run their course.

London's snootiest tailors now condescend to remake old suits. Try to put a patch on that one!

Hitler, watching Japan snatch the aggressor role, now knows how Mussolini has felt for the last several years.

On the theory that anything can happen—and why not?—fakirs have predicted devastating earthquakes for Japan during 1942. This would seem to be as good a time as any to unloose them.

Automobile workers on defense jobs who put in only forty hours a week but want double pay for Sundays should be reminded that General MacArthur and his men work seven days a week and demand no overtime pay. But they're patriots!

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

DUTY TO CHILDREN IN WARTIME

Many mothers whose children are quite small are going to work, and often from a deep sense of patriotism. No doubt, a few mothers who don't need to work but feel they must help to win this war, are letting their immediate war emotions warp their judgment. We can count on this being a long war and we need to think about the children over a period of years.

To mothers who have babies and young children: I would urge you to consider whether for the nutrition of these children it will be absolutely necessary for you to work away from home now. The mother who has ample income to supply wholesome food and shelter for her children, in thinking about whether to work or not, should consider first whether she has a responsible person to guide and protect her children safely in her absence. This should apply to volunteer workers among women.

It is not just a matter of being absent so much as it is of coming home to the family all worn out and jittery, unfit to be companionable and provide a warm, serene and emotionally secure family atmosphere.

The mother who works away from home often returns home tired with another day's work before her. She must cook the meals, tidy the house, even do cleaning, washing, ironing, mending, perhaps. Whenever possible she should send out her laundry and employ some one at regular times to clean.

Husband Could Help

Otherwise her husband, working no harder than she by day, might well turn laundress or scrubwoman. Some wise and considerate husbands actually do. If there are children old enough they ought to share in all the home cares.

The shame of it is that so many children from eight to twenty are running about at night and spending money for fun while their weary mother is wearing herself out slaving for the family. Never was there a time when it was so desirable for children to learn early and continuously to help with the work about the home. Thousands of mothers with comfortable incomes today will be compelled to earn the family income tomorrow. Let every mother educate her children now for such emergency.

Don't fool yourself to suppose that helping about the house can always be a pleasure for the child. Beginning with the toddler, let him learn now to take care of himself. As soon as he can do a regular job like emptying the wastebasket, setting the table or washing the dishes, have him do these chores as certainly as the sun rises in the morning. Better to center on one responsibility until it is well established than to add many such. For the duty you are establishing, say with the child of eight, let him know he always must do it promptly or serve an inescapable sentence, such as sitting for one or two hours on a chair doing nothing where you can see him. At any rate each child should learn to do some regular jobs about the home. You know he is learning to take responsibility for a job when he always does it without being told when to begin or until it is completed.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. What are the pros and cons on purchasing a good set of books for young children against selecting and building a good library for them gradually?

A. Good sets of books have well-selected graded materials and are on hand when needed. On the other hand, considerable money is tied up on materials not needed for several years. With careful planning, a good library may be build gradually, though many parents won't do the planning nor even provide a few good books.

HINTS AND DINTS

Sun sets tonight 6:32. Sun rises tomorrow 7:56.

It is claimed in Washington that the sugar shortage was caused by hoarding. That may be true. The penalty for this is $10,000 fine or ten years in the coop. That's not so sweet!

Anybody, man or woman, who is made chairman of a committee, needs special talent for doing the work. The honor is earned.

A butcher shop is not the only place where one can get baloney. It can be had for nothing in many places, all the time and no early closing hours affect it.

BANK ACCOMMODATIONS

A man came into a bank and wanted to borrow $5. He was told that the bank did not lend such small sums.

"But," he went on, "lending money is your business, isn't it?" The banker admitted it was.

"Well, I've got good security," said the stranger, "and I want to borrow $5."

Finally the banker agreed to make the loan. When the note was drawn and the interest of 30 cents paid, the stranger drew from his pocket $10,000 worth of Government bonds and handed them over as security. Before the banker could recover from his astonishment the stranger said "Now, this is something like it. Over at the other bank they wanted to charge me $10 just for a safe deposit box to keep these things in."

Since prices have advanced there may be a revival of the old question, "How high is up?"

It is the right thing to be nice to people who have helped you to make some money.

"Does your uncle have much liberty in prison?"

"I don't know, but I understand they are going to give him a lot of rope in the near future."

Guess what is wrong with this picture: Tired of scandalous stuff, one woman in the company suggested "Say we now talk about people who are better than we."

This world is very big but not big enough to keep a lot of birds from wanting to fight.

Some people will still continue to use heluva time.

Our farmers also bought gadgets to burn designs on wood, but they didn't come twenty in a pack.

It is stated that there will be no soap shortage. No doubt some could get along all right even if there is one.

After science has taken the odor out of onions, what is left?

HIS BITTER MEMORY

There we stood before the parting,
Round my neck her arms she threw,
And I saw that tears were starting
From her dreamy eyes so blue.
My caress did not relieve her,
My heart pained me, I confess,
When I knew I had to leave her—
Forty dollars—for a dress.

It will be interesting to see how some people will try to make their automobiles last longer. Not using them so much is the only sure way.

Some crooks are not satisfied by just stealing a tire. They also take the wheel.

THE TRUTH

"Among the prettiest girls present was Brigadier General Blitt," wrote a young reporter in his account of a party. The next day he was called to the editor's office.

"What the deuce do you mean by writing stuff like that?" demanded the editor.

"Well," explained the reporter, "that's where he was."

HOW ARE YOUR ENGLISH AND YOUR VOCABULARY?

Don't you think knowledge of correct English and a substantial vocabulary are among the most important social assets?—J. H. B.

Answer: I certainly do think so! Which makes me wonder why school teachers do not more seriously consider their pupils' English. Just observe, some time, in public vehicles, the excruciatingly bad English used by boys and girls going to and from high school.

I am not referring to slang, some of which now appears to have a permanent niche in our language, but particularly to constructions, such as, "I should have come," "Mary will go with Tom and I." Such flagrant mistakes must occasionally, at least, crop up in the class rooms. I have heard so-called honor students disregard all rules of grammar in their conversation. Oral work, as well as written, should count in the final summing up on the report card.

One of the best systems for the elimination of objectionable words and phrases, after learning the rules of grammar, is to develop the habit of speaking slowly, carefully choosing each word. Perhaps at first you may sound somewhat stilted, but you will soon break yourself of the use of incorrect English. With such careful practice, you will find it possible to speak correctly.

Dear Miss Markel: Aren't fussy clothes and jewelry for children de trop?—Sandy.

Answer: Mothers will display good taste by selecting plainly made clothes for their children. Little girls have a fondness for pretty dresses of gay shades and chic little hats—and they should have them. But elaborate jewelry and fussy clothes with fancy ornaments have no place in the wardrobe of the "underteen" who will have plenty of time later to gratify her desire for such "grown-up" baubles. Of course, little Miss Modern must have her wrist watch to count the weary hours until the gong announces school is over and playtime is at hand. Or her throat be embraced by a childish little locket and chain—mute evidence of doting parents or an affectionate aunt or uncle. But the fewer the furbelows and the plainer her ensemble the more attractive she will appear to people of good taste.

Tomorrow—Traveling With Nursemaid

WOMAN

She's an angel in truth, a demon in fiction; a woman's the greatest of all contradiction. She's afraid of a cockroach, she'll scream at a mouse, but she'll tackle a husband as big as a house. She'll take him for better, she'll take him for worse, she'll split his head open and then be his nurse; and when he is well and can get out of bed, she'll pick up a teapot and throw at his head. She's faithful, deceitful, keen sighted and blind, she's crafty, she's simple, she's cruel, she's kind, she'll lift a man up up, she'll cast a man down; she'll make him her hero, she'll make him her clown. You fancy she's this but you find she is that, for she'll play like a kitten and bite like a cat. In the morning she will, in the evening she won't, and you're always expecting she does—but she don't.

Farmers in this country will pay over a billion dollars in wages this year for help. That will take some digging.

At the coming election 34 U. S. senators will be elected and all the congressmen. At that election we will get a very good idea of what people are thinking.

A lot of people are predicting the defeat of Hitler, but they all have a different time and different way for it.

The man was buying some meat when a second man entered, obviously in a great hurry. He rudely interrupted the other man's order.

"Give me some dog food," he said and added to the first customer, "Hope you don't mind?"

"Not if you're that hungry," answered the other.

At a recent meeting of the school directors in Harrisburg a lot of complaint was made about married women school teachers and a way to fire them was wanted. Nothing was done about it, however.

HE HAD CONFIDENCE

Two gentlemen sat in their hotel room, consuming a quart of spirits. One of them had an idea and raised the window.

"I am going to take off and fly around the courtyard a little bit," he boldly remarked.

Leaping from the window sill, he buried his nose in the cement three floors below. The next day his friend went to the hospital to see him.

"I certainly made a fool of myself yesterday," said the patient. "Why didn't you stop me?"

"Maybe I should have," meekly replied his friend, "but at that time I really thought you could do it."

What's What At A Glance

Suggest Help For Occupied Countries
Need Encouragement During Dark Hours
Koreans Said To Be Spoiling For Fight

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13—Helping the British, the Chinese and the East Indian Dutch is all right, of course. However, the suggestion's beginning to be heard in Washington that the United Nations are somewhat neglectful of the possibility of capitalizing anti-Axis feeling in countries the totalitarians have vanquished and occupied, but which certainly would be more than appreciative of encouragement to rise against 'em now. Taken separately they undoubtedly couldn't succeed at all, but it's pointed out that, collectively, they're numerous enough to be pretty formidable.

It's taken for granted that France would be solidly Free French if its people believed they could oust the Nazis and keep 'em ousted.

There also are the Low Countries, the Balkans and the Scandinavias, including Sweden, which isn't occupied but can't be otherwise than exceedingly apprehensive as to its future unless Herr Hitler's stopped effectively.

In the Far East, 25,000,000 Koreans, annexed by the Japs in 1910 and abominably oppressed ever since, are said to be fairly spoiling to join the Chinese in a fight for freedom, at the first prospect of a reasonably good show. They're a sizable element in Japan itself, too, having been drafted thither as wretched coolie laborers, and ought to be first-rate fifth columnists in the United Nations' behalf.

But to return to the European field.

Italy Ready, Too

Italy's reckoned to be about as much Germanly conquered, and as resentful of it, as any of the small democracies that the Nazis have overrun.

This isn't necessarily to say that Signor Mussolini is in a frame of mind to dissolve his partnership with Adolf. An Italian severance of relations with Germany hardly could miss involving Benito's local overthrow, which he wouldn't like, naturally, though it may be he regrets today that ever he tied up with the Fuehrer.

All indications are that the Italian masses, though, would break with the Germans if given a tolerably promising opportunity. Their difficulty is that, should they do so without strong and prompt backing, the Nazis would invade 'em and trample 'em flat.

Nevertheless they're about 40,000,000 strong in man and woman power, and would be worth having as democratic allies, besides which it surely would be demoralizing to German morale to have 'em cut loose.

The fact is that the United Nations' leadership's attitude toward the Italians is different from its attitude toward the Germans and the Japs.

The Germans are blamed for having acquiesced in Herr Hitler. The Japs are blamed for being led by the nose by their military class, the Samurai. The Germans likewise are regarded as barbarians predominantly, though with some exceptions, and the Japs are assessed as inherently treacherous, as well as mean scrappers.

The Italians, on the other hand, are spoken of as moderately chivalrous enemies. They didn't behave like it in their war with the Ethiopians, to be sure, but that's attributed to their command rather than to their rank and file. Stories are told of them as comparatively decent more recently, perhaps because it's inbred in them or perhaps because this is one of the times when they'd prefer not to fight.

Benito Civilized Once

Even Benito Mussolini used to have a civilized reputation once upon a time. He's despised today, as a Hitlerian tool, just as Adolf's hated.

I can remember, though, when he was just an ordinary Milan newspaperman, and I've known Americans who made his acquaintance in that era and described him as an agreeable personality. He slid into power at a juncture when Italy was in awful economic shape and effected considerable improvements. Later he developed dictatorially, but I fancy it was more or less by accident.

Fascism, in short, doesn't seem to be Italian philosophy as Nazism is to Germany.

The nub of it is:

There are others, besides the armed and fighting United Nations, who might profitably be helped. Why not give 'em a boost?

They're essentially as much a part of the United Nations as Maine or Arizona are parts of the United States. Wouldn't it be good policy to get them into the federation? They'll be more of a bother to the Nazis and the Samurai than we are, from this far off.

Old age does not come to all at a given time of life.

Some persons are old at middle age.

Others are young physically and mentally when old in years.

Heredity plays an important part in the aging process.

Some are born with definite promise of long life.

Others are predisposed by heredity to certain diseases.

"Getting old" is an expression middle-aged people fear.

Readjustments are necessary in the middle years of life.

A satisfactory mental and emotional attitude is needed.

Food, sleep and exercise should be considered carefully.

Heart and arteries undergo changes in middle and old age.

Moderation in all things should be practiced at this time.

BAR FOR LIARS.

"Oh no, we have paid off all the workmen on the building and nothing is due upon it," said a husband and wife to the banker as they applied for a loan of Nine Hundred Dollars.

The loan was granted, but there were bills up to Eight Hundred Dollars that had not been paid, and which became a lien on the property, ahead of the Bank's loan. The Bank took the matter up with the District Attorney, and the husband and wife found themselves confronted with a prosecution for the crime of obtaining money under false pretences.

From one to two years in the State's prison, to be assigned to hard labor, was the penalty awarded to the husband, while the wife was placed on probation for two years on condition of good behavior. Said the Supreme Court of North Carolina:

"We state the rule to be that a false pretense of a subsisting fact, calculated to deceive, whether the representation be in writing, or in words, or in acts, by which one man obtains value from another without compensation, is a false pretense indictable under our statutes."

The accused's attorney argued that the property was worth more than twice the loan, but the court ruled that this was immaterial inasmuch as the loan was based in part upon the statement that no bills were outstanding. Hence this statement constituted a false pretense upon which money was obtained.

The last car off the Ford production line was No. 30,337,509.

No. 1 had a whip socket. We could use it now.

Henry took 30 million jaywalkers off the streets and turned them into chariot drivers before the government stopped him.

It took him a quarter of a century to put us on wheels and Leon Henderson a couple of months to get us off them.

He made us what we are today but he can't guarantee tomorrow.

Let us not forget that Goodyear gave us tires. He also has been repealed.

Goodyear discovered by accident how to vulcanize rubber. Somebody discovered how to ruin the Normandie the same way.

Berlin says it was sabotage but we have sent her claim to the dead letter office.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

SHUNNED

It's strange, but my friends are all dodging me now,
They're slipping round corners to miss me, somehow.
They tell me they're busy; too busy to stay
A minute to hear what I'm eager to say.
Those grandchildren surely have got me in Dutch.
It seems I've been talking about them too much.

Time was when they'd stand at the curb of the road
And look most politely at pictures I showed,
But now when I reach for my wallet they say:
"We're sorry, old man, but we've no time to stay."
I'm shunned like the fellow who's making a touch,
Perhaps I've been boasting about them too much.

They turn when they see me and slip out of sight,
At sound of my footsteps they flee in affright;
You'd think to behold them a villain were I,
So quickly, so coldly, they bid me goodbye.
If I reach out to hold them they slip from my clutch.
As a grandpa, perhaps, I've been boasting too much.

Coast Air Raids May Strike U.S.

Air Force Intelligence Officer Says Axis Raids Are Possible

U. S. PREPARES FOR HUGE WAR EFFORT

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb 13 —An irresistible avalanche of air, sea and ground power unrivalled in history will bring defeat to the Axis, Col. Edmont E. Koenig declared today while predicting that the Atlantic seaboard will be bombed when Hitler decides such raids would be profitable.

Speaking at the 35th alumni day luncheon at Columbia university, Colonel Koenig, an air force intelligence officer in the Atlantic coast area, asserted that Uncle Sam's navy and airmen have the situation resulting from enemy submarines off the eastern seaboard "well in hand". He emphasized that victory lies in the coordinated team-play of the United Nations' army, navy and air forces, adding:

"We feel that the decision will ultimately come to the side which produces and properly employs the largest numbers of heavy bombers. And we are acting accordingly."

"Knows What He's Doing"

Col. Koenig assured his listeners that "our commander-in-chief knows what he is doing—nobody has sold him a bill of goods." and added:

"Relief is coming, perhaps not today or tomorrow, but eventually, and when it comes it will be as relentless, as gigantic, an effort as the world has ever seen. There will be no question as to its success. It will be an irresistible avalanche of air power, sea power and ground power such as the world has never seen.

"Wars are not won by any one arm. Neither the army, navy nor the air forces alone, or going their separate ways, can achieve victory. It will require the coordinated team play of all three. . . .

"Bombing raids against the Atlantic seaboard lie within the enemies' capabilities, and it is purely in the hands of Messrs. Hitler and Mussolini as to their timing, scope and intensity...If and when they decide that such a raid or raids will be profitable, the raids will be made."

Airplane Changes War

Col. Koenig reviewed the changes in methods of warfare brought about by airplanes and, while withholding details because they are military secrets, told how the United States was stepping up its aircraft production.

"If rumors are true the German ME 109-F-5 flies over 40,000 feet (about eight miles) in combat," said the colonel. "This means that the aerial combat now is limited to the physiological ceiling of man. . . .

"The pursuit plane of today must be able to disintegrate any size bomber, if able to fire at it for 30 seconds.

"We are now ready to go into assembly production of our latest model and when that starts coming out in quantity we shall have the best in the world—until some one builds something better. In the meanwhile our drawing boards are not idle."

Discussing bombers, Col. Koenig said if actual production figures were made known "your heart would swell with pride".

"Furthermore," he continued, "our plans for bomber production are at a scale unheard of before in world armaments...The B-17, the Flying Fortress, is the envy of the world, and the Liberato, of B-24, has no equal for its type."

But, he warned, "we still have a long way to go".

Diplomatic Exchange Includes 4000 Persons

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13—State Department sources today disclosed that nearly 4,000 persons are involved in the plans for exchange of diplomatic representatives between the Axis powers and the American republics.

This large number of diplomats and their families, coupled with the fact they are spread over more than half the world, is making it a slow process to arrange for their transfer.

The American diplomatic and consular representatives, and their families, must be collected over an area ranging from western Europe and the Balkans to Japan, China, French Indo-China and Thailand.

The Axis representatives who will be exchanged for the Americans include not only the former diplomatic and consular agents in the United States and its possessions, but also those from a number of Latin American nations, including Mexico, Guatemala and the central American republics.

The German, Italian, and Japanese representatives of those Latin American nations which have declared war against the Axis or broken off relations are being concentrated in this country in order to facilitate the transfer arrangements.

Under present plans, the American representatives in the Far East and their families will be transported by a Japanese vessel to the Portuguese east African Port of Lourenco Marques.

All parties concerned have agreed to grant safe conduct for this vessel, but its voyage from Japan to Lourenco Marques is bound to be slow because it is scheduled to stop at many points along the China coast, including Shanghai, Amoy, Hong Kong, and Saigon, to pick up the American representatives and their families.

The exchange of diplomats between this country and Germany, Italy and the other European nations under Axis control will take place at Lisbon.

An American vessel will transport the Axis representatives from this country to Lisbon and bring back the American diplomats and their families from that port.

It may be several weeks yet before the movement of these diplomats, greatest of its kind in history, will get underway.

The original Declaration of Independence is kept in a marble-and-bronze shrine in the Congressional Library at Washington. It is protected from the light by amber-colored glass plate. It hung for many years on the wall of the old Patent Office, and it was here that the light caused considerable damage to the text and signatures on the parchment. However, this danger has now been eliminated.

News Briefs From City Hall

Police activities were quiet last night and no prisoners faced Safety Director D. O. Davies acting mayor, when he arrived at police headquarters today.

City has made arrangements to purchase a used coupe from the Chevrolet-Keystone company for Frank Nugent who was injured and the city's auto wrecked recently when his car was hit by that of a Bessemer autoist.

Police have been trying to apprehend vandals who have destroyed several parking meter heads recently.

Prepare To Shoot Zoo Animals If Air Raids Should Weaken Cages

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13.—Thirty animals in the Philadelphia Zoo are listed for death if air raids over the city weaken or destroy their cages enough to permit escape. Crack shots among Zoo attendants are holding daily rifle practice in preparation for execution squad duties if the city is bombed.

Zoo Director Freeman M. Shelly has drawn a list of animals regarded as dangerous in event of escape, and has assigned men to every vantage point in the Zoo grounds with rifles. He has posted the list of dangerous animals where guards see them daily and memorize the locations and types to be destroyed.

Topping the list are the African buffaloes, quarter in the antelope house. The vicious horned beasts are to be killed on sight if they escape. The African elephant "Josephine" and the hippopotamus, "Jimmy," are also on the death list.

If bombs should wreck the lion house, only the maned wolf and the hyena are to be recaptured. The cats are all to be killed on sight. All small cats, such as bobcats, lynx, ocelots, civets and golden cats are to be destroyed. Gibbons and other animals in the small cat house are to be recaptured.

All great apes, adult male baboons, giant rhesus and Japanese macaques in the monkey house are to become targets if they are freed. All bears are to be shot at sight. The male guar and male Indian water buffalo are to die if they escape the deer paddocks, and all foxes, wolves and wild dogs are on the execution chart.

Attempts will be made to capture snakes which escape during winter months. Other orders will be drawn for warmer weather, Shelly said.

Sugar Making In State To Start Soon

Rationing Not Expected To Affect Maple Products Produced In State

(Special To The News)

STATE COLLEGE, Feb. 13.—Wartime sugar rationing is not expected to curtail sugar bush owners who make their own sweetening and have a surplus to sell, according to D. D. Stevenson, professor of forestry research at the Pennsylvania State college.

The current shortage of granulated sugar may even create additional demand for maple products, Professor Stevenson predicted.

The bulk of the maple products made in Pennsylvania is produced in the northern counties, with Somerset county as an exception. Somerset leads the list in the amount produced annually.

Producers in Pennsylvania usually tap their trees in March. Since the sap runs best during periods of sharp freezes and quick thaws, bright sunny days with falling temperatures at night are ideal for sugar making.

Maple sugar making is a profitable sideline on many farms in Pennsylvania. Travelers may spot sugar camps by the clouds of steam pouring through every nook and cranny of the rough, wooden houses.

Since 40 to 50 gallons of sap must be boiled down for every gallon of syrup, a large amount of labor is involved in operating a sugar bush. The sap must be transported to the sugar camp in gathering tubs and poured into the evaporator. The boiling down must be watched constantly in order to draw off the syrup at the right density.

"It is to be hoped," Professor Stevenson said, "that a scarcity of farm labor will not curtail an industry which is contributing to the sugar supply. Many housewives in this state will be glad to have a gallon or two of maple syrup on hand during the coming months."

Long Lost Library Books Found Among V.B.C Contributions

That some people evidently regard a book that was once a library book, but has been off the library's shelves for months or even years, as theirs to give away, is a fact that has been brought to light in the sorting of books given during these past weeks to the victory book campaign.

But the Public Library does not feel that if you discover some long-forgotten book in an out-of-the-way corner with the bookmark of the library in it, that the delay in returning the book makes it yours to give away to someone else.

Among the books that have been brought in for the VBC collection, was one from which the New Castle Free Public Library bookplate had been removed and in the space was written a young lady's name and address inviting service men who would read the book to strike up correspondence with the donor. Maybe the young lady thought the library staff would fail to recognize the volume as one of its long-lost, or maybe she didn't realize that her pilfered offering would be scornfully termed "bare-faced effrontery". In any case, this book, and four or five others, together with two books that are the property of the Newark, N. J., Public Library and one each that belong to the Cincinnati, O., and Youngstown, O., libraries will be returned to the places where they belong.

And in case you have come across a library book among your books that you know has been out such a long time that you are afraid to take it back for fear it will break you up to pay the fine, the Library would appreciate your bringing it in. For no matter how long overdue it is, the maximum penalty is fifty cents.

Defense Council Names Group For Salvage Program

HARRISBURG, Feb. 13.—The state defense council has appointed former State Senator John S. Rice, Gettysburg, and Colley S. Baker, Stroudsburg, as chairman and executive secretary respectively of a statewide salvage program.

The program, designed to coordinate and stimulate collection of waste paper, rags, scrap metal and old rubber for sale to scrap dealers, was started by the council at request of the U. S. War Production board.

At the same time, State Treasurer G. Harold Wagner announced Baker's resignation as director of the treasury's bureau of disbursements of unemployment compensation. Baker will be succeeded by James B. McFadden, Allentown, promoted from chief of the treasury's investigation bureau at Philadelphia.

Each of the 700 county and local councils of defense will be asked to name county and local committees to direct salvage programs. Those groups will coordinate work of service groups already collecting scrap material.

IT'S GREAT TO FEEL FIT!
Vimms
Vitamins
Guaranteed by Good Housekeeping

Worried about COLDS? Now is the time to take every precaution. Be sure you get your VITAMINS

PEOPLE don't "catch" colds—colds catch them! If you're low on vitamins and minerals, you're inviting a cold to come and get you. A lack of these vital substances can lower your resistance. When this happens, extra vitamins and minerals are needed to help bring your resistance back.

There's a new low cost way to be sure of getting your vitamins and minerals. Fortify your diet with Vimms. Regularly, every day. Thousands are already doing it!

Not 1 or 2, but SIX vitamins

Vimms are little tablets, easy to swallow and so pleasant to eat that even children like them. Just take three every day. They'll give you all 6 essential vitamins — and all you may need of each of them to supplement your diet. And (this is important) they give you the three vital minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron, too.

KEEP FIT TO WIN!

Why six vitamins, instead of just A and D? Because experts know that people whose resistance has been lowered by vitamin deficiency are usually low in more than one vitamin. That's why a supplement that supplies all 6 vitamins is so much better than one that offers only A and D, or the B Complex. All three of the B Complex vitamins known to be necessary are supplied in Vimms.

Why you need minerals, too

Minerals are just as important as vitamins. And without minerals certain vitamins are almost useless. For instance, if you are low on Calcium and Phosphorus, Vitamin D cannot do its best for you.

Perhaps you know that leading authorities estimate 3 out of 4 Americans need more vitamins and minerals. If you are tired, blue, rundown, you may need more vitamins and minerals. And cost need no longer hold you back. You'll be glad to know that Vimms cost less than any product of comparable type and potency. Only a few cents a day!

The time to beat a cold is before you get it. If you haven't been getting enough vitamins and minerals, start Vimms today. Don't take chances, take Vimms. Lever Brothers Company, Cambridge, Mass.

PEOPLE don't "catch" colds—colds catch them! If you're low on vitamins and minerals, you're inviting a cold to come and get you. A lack of these vital substances can lower your resistance. When this happens, extra vitamins and minerals are needed to help bring your resistance back.

There's a new low cost way to be sure of getting your vitamins and minerals. Fortify your diet with Vimms. Regularly, every day. Thousands are already doing it!

Not 1 or 2, but SIX vitamins

Vimms are little tablets, easy to swallow and so pleasant to eat that even children like them. Just take three every day. They'll give you all 6 essential vitamins — and all you may need of each of them to supplement your diet. And (this is important) they give you the three vital minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron, too.

KEEP FIT V TO WIN!

Why six vitamins, instead of just A and D? Because experts know that people whose resistance has been lowered by vitamin deficiency are usually low in more than one vitamin. That's why a supplement that supplies all 6 vitamins is so much better than one that offers only A and D, or the B Complex. All three of the B Complex vitamins known to be necessary are supplied in Vimms.

Why you need minerals, too

Minerals are just as important as vitamins. And without minerals certain vitamins are almost useless. For instance, if you are low on Calcium and Phosphorus, Vitamin D cannot do its best for you.

Perhaps you know that leading authorities estimate 3 out of 4 Americans need more vitamins and minerals. If you are tired, blue, rundown, you may need more vitamins and minerals. And cost need no longer hold you back. You'll be glad to know that Vimms cost less than any product of comparable type and potency. Only a few cents a day!

The time to beat a cold is before you get it. If you haven't been getting enough vitamins and minerals, start Vimms today. Don't take chances, take Vimms. Lever Brothers Company, Cambridge, Mass.

HAPPIGRAMS

by ERICH BRANDEIS

Who says the present generation of Americans is not what it used to be in the good old days?

William Deegan, of the Physical Education department at Yale University, has just completed a statistical study of 32,000 students.

"The most striking fact to be found," says he, "is the phenomenal increase in the percentage of six-footers."

In the 1883 class the percentage of six-footers was 4.3; in the 1941 class, 22.6. The average height in 1883 was 67.7 inches; in 1941, 70 inches. Average weight rose from 137.7 to 151.7 pounds.

The reasons for this improved showing have not been definitely established. But preventive medicine, improved knowledge of dietetics, physical training, and sports have a lot to do with it.

An interesting study—and still more interesting is the study of American patriotism, bravery and stamina which is now being written day by day for the annals of history.

Distribution Cost Of Milk Now Assailed

By JACK VINCENT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—What's going to happen to the milkman?

The office of Federal Price Control Administrator Leon Henderson, it was disclosed today, has launched a drive against what it regards as the high cost of distribution of milk.

The OPA urged housewives to do a little collective bargaining with milkmen, and then it advised them that it would be cheaper to drive to milk plants for the product instead of accepting door deliveries.

In the same 20-page pamphlet it also told people to drive their cars less because of the tire shortage.

"In city after city, milk's doorstep price has been rising," said the OPA. It recommended that you, and you and you "talk it over with your neighbors, the members of your club, your union, your lodge and your church group."

"In 99 U. S. cities surveyed recently," the OPA pamphlet continued, "savings on cash-and-carry milk ranged from one to eight cents a quart! Can you get cash-and-carry milk in your town?

"In Alton, Ill., consumers can save two cents a quart by buying in bulk at the plant; in Dover, O., the saving is 2½ cents a quart, while in St. Joseph, Mo., you can get a gallon of milk and a quart of skim milk for 25 cents (1940). Can you buy milk at a saving at a plant platform in your town?"

Big Delivery Charge

The OPA said that "nearly half the cost of milk delivered on the doorstep is a delivery charge."

"If you are paying 14 cents for a quart of milk, then almost seven cents may be the service charge!"

If door-to-door delivery is the only way to get milk, the OPA suggested the following alternative:

"You can organize a buying club in your block or neighborhood to bargain with a dealer to deliver milk to its members at a lower price by reducing delivery costs. He can leave milk every other day instead of daily. He can charge you one price for the first bottle left each delivery, and a lower price for the other bottles left at the same stop. He can bring your milk in large-size containers."

The pamphlet concluded:

"In other ways, too, consumer milk prices can be brought down. For the most part they are long range programs requiring widespread education and infinite patience in dealing with consumers, distributors and producers alike.

"While these long range objectives should be studied by any milk consumers' committee, the best chance of getting immediate action appears to lie in tackling milk prices at the point where they are most vulnerable now: The cost of distribution."

BAD DEBTS—YEAR IN WHICH DEDUCTIBLE

Worthless debts arising from unpaid wages, salaries, rents, and similar items of taxable income are not allowable deductions unless the income such items represent has been included in income for 1941 or a prior taxable year.

To be allowed as a deduction from gross income, a bad debt must have been determined by the taxpayer to be worthless within the taxable year for which it is claimed and, where books are kept, it also must have been charged off within the same year. The necessity for this provision is obvious. If a debt could be deducted without the requirement that it be charged off the taxpayer's books, the certainty of its worthlessness would be open to question. Neither the taxpayer nor the Government could be certain that a debt would not be claimed more than once.

If a debt were allowed as a deduction without regard to the year when it became worthless, such charges could be accumulated to be deducted in a year when there was a large income.

The burden is upon the taxpayer to show that a debt claimed as a deduction was without value during the taxable year. A statement should be attached to the return showing the propriety of any deduction for bad debts. If in the exercise of sound business judgment a taxpayer concludes, after making every reasonable effort to determine whether there is likelihood of recovery, that the debt is of no value, deduction for such debt is allowable. Court action as proof that the debt is worthless is not essential.

It is optional with the taxpayer, in a year prior to that in which a debt becomes wholly worthless, to take a deduction for partial loss if partial worthlessness occurs.

The provisions of the Internal Revenue Code with respect to bad-debt and partial bad-debt deductions are not applicable to a taxpayer, other than a bank as defined by the Act, where the debt is evidenced by bonds, debentures, notes, or certificates, or other evidences of indebtedness, issued by any corporation (including those issued by a government or political subdivision thereof) with interest coupons or in registered form.

Chapter Awaits Delivery Of Vehicle Following Release By Rationing Board

After considering bids made by four companies, in response to a query sent to 24 dealers in Lawrence county, for a station wagon, the executive committee announced today that a new Ford station wagon will be purchased. It was necessary to secure release of the vehicle through the national rationing board, and this approval was given late yesterday.

This vehicle will be used by the women of the Motor Corps in transportation of supplies and people. Under Chairman of First Aid, Harry Culliford and William Haley, of the state driving school, the women will become familiar with the operation of the car, and in stretcher handling drill, so that if the vehicle is needed for ambulance duty at any time, the women can qualify.

Strong Guard For President At Ceremonies

President Places Wreath At Base Of Lincoln's Statue On Thursday

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13—Bayonets glistened across the broad approaches to the Lincoln Memorial Thursday as President Roosevelt paid tribute to the Great Emancipator.

A strong, helmeted honor and protective guard was drawn up as the president stood before the beautiful edifice with head bared while his military aide, Col. Horace B. Smith, ascended the steps and laid a wreath at the base of Lincoln's statue.

The Army band from the Army War College rendered the Star Spangled Banner and heads of patriotic organizations forming a color guard stood at attention.

The president made the short journey from the White House to the Lincoln Memorial by auto. A Secret Service car preceded him, two more followed, and the small cavalcade was flanked by motorcycle police.

A few war and navy department employes on lunch hour rushed to the curbstone to wave as the president went by. Otherwise, the annual ceremony was unnoticed by the general public.

Insurance Men Enjoy Banquet

Gather At Zelienople On Thursday Evening—Wives And Guests Included

As a climax to progress of the past two years since establishment, members of the Knights Life Insurance company and their wives and guests, enjoyed their annual banquet, Thursday evening, in Zelienople.

Preceding the meal, the group sang "America," "God Bless America," and "Star Spangled Banner," led by William H. Drake with William C. Ley at the piano. At 7 o'clock, a full course chicken dinner was served in an efficient manner, following grace by E. B. Emery.

District superintendent from the local office, Anthony N. Carbol, made the opening remarks, outlining briefly the accomplishments of the company within the past two years, and commented upon the fine record achieved.

Edward B. Emery, toastmaster for the evening was introduced, and the speakers program followed. William C. Ley, vice-president and director of agencies of Pittsburgh, told in an interesting manner methods used by good salesmen, and complimented the company on its achievement.

Dr. John P. Prioletti, local medical examiner, gave interesting remarks about his work as a physician in connection with the company. William H. Drake, assistant district superintendent, made fitting remarks at this time. The principal speaker, David D. Vallensi, spoke on "Salesmanship." Mr. Vallensi cited a few of his experiences in the line of selling, and the methods used for this work.

As an added feature on the program, Sergeant John L. Dean, U.S. Marine Corps Recruiting officers, spoke about the marine corps, and the spirit of the boys in service. Motion pictures were shown of training received by the marine corps recruits and of the fine work accomplished by this great fighting group of the United States.

Special guests present on this occasion included: Sgt. and Mrs. John L. Dean, William C. Ley, Mr. and Mrs. David D. Vallensi, Dr. and Mrs. John P. Prioletti, Mrs. Albert Hartsborne, Mrs. Marie Jones, Dorothy Gulnaugh, Mary Kenehan, Madeline Venditto and Palma Julian, the latter of "The News."

Those in charge and responsible for the success of the event are Anthony N. Carbol, general chairman, and Angelo T. Venditto, John K. Peterson and Clarence W. Hamill.

Speed Enrolment In Nursing Corps

First Reserve Must Contain 50,000 Nurses, Red Cross Is Informed

Since the outbreak of war the rate of enrollment in the First Reserve of American Red Cross Nurses has increased 400 per cent, Mrs. J. Glenn Berry, chairman of home nursing in Lawrence County Chapter, announced.

The Red Cross First Reserve now totals 25,700. In addition, there are 43,400 nurses in the Second Reserve.

Registrations of First Reserve nurses totaled 1,629 in January as compared to 1,231 in December. Enrollments in November totaled only 357. Enrollments in a single day have reached as high as 250.

The response of the nurses in America has been magnificent. The Nursing Service of the American Red Cross is charged by the Act of Congress of April 25, 1908, with the responsibility for maintaining First Reserve Nurses who are called as needed for active duty with the army and navy.

This enrollment of Red Cross nurses has become very important since our country is at war.

In a conference held recently with Major Julia O. Flikke, Superintendent, Army Nurse Corps, and Miss Sue S. Dauser, Superintendent, Navy Nurse Corps, the Red Cross was told there must be at least a First Reserve of 50,000 to take care of the greatly enlarged army and navy forces of our country.

Congressman Says U. S. Must Make People Realize Situation

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 — Rep. Sumners (D) Tex., veteran chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, today told the house that "we're getting licked in this war and we must make the people realize it."

The statement came in the midst of Lincoln Day addresses on the floor with members pleading for national unity in the present emergency.

"There is no solidifying influence like a common danger and the sooner the people realize how bad things are, the better," Sumners said.

[illegible] Mass., urged that "people as so far as possible cast aside their emotions, their hates and fears and personal ambitions.

"In the past wars we have had those who condemned and sought to further their own ambitions. [illegible] records are written in the black pages of our history. Let us not let that history repeat itself.

"Let us send this message into the beyond to Abraham Lincoln—that we will not be the first generation of Americans to fail in our liberty [illegible]."

COMMUNITY DAY PROGRAM.

The Annual Community Day Program sponsored by Big Beaver community will be held in the Big Beaver Grange Hall Wednesday, February 18

The afternoon program beginning at 1:30 o'clock will be a program of particular interest to men. This will take the form of a Machinery Reconditioning Demonstration. Particular emphasis will be placed on mowers.

The evening program beginning at 8:00 o'clock will be of general interest to both men and women. This program will include:—

"Pork Production in Lawrence County"—Harold R. McCulloch, County Agent.

"Hybrid Corn in the Big Beaver Community"—W.A. Scott.

"Food for Health"—Miss Boneita Gordon, Home Economics Extension representative.

"The Farm Vegetable Garden"—W. B. Nissley, State College.

In addition to these discussions there will be musical and entertainment numbers included on the program.

This community meeting is open to the public and everyone is invited to attend.

URGE CAREFUL USE OF NITROGEN IN ORCHARDS.

Apple trees require nitrogen in largest amounts during the first month in spring after leaf buds start to grow. This demand must be met either from reserves in the soil or from the fertilizer bag. Although much of the supply of nitrogen that formerly went into fertilizers now is being made into gun powder, considerable increases in fruit crops can be secured if orchard problems are studied and available nitrogen is carefully utilized.

Orchardists who have adopted some form of sod rotation in recent years now are in a fortunate position. They can disk or harrow this sod enough to check its growth but not to destroy it. This cultivation will hasten the breakdown of soil organic matter and release nitrogen for the use of the trees.

If the supply of organic matter has been well built-up, an occasional cultivation following the one in early spring will release enough plant food to carry the trees up to the "June" drop. If terminal growth up to this time has been rapid and shows no sign of slowing up and the crop is not excessive, no additional nitrogen fertilizer may be needed. However, in most orchards a ring application of two to three pounds of nitrate of soda per tree should be made in late May or early June to secure the amount of terminal growth desired and to set a full crop of fruit.

Phosphorus and potassium in the soil must be sufficient to assure a good growth of weeds or a seeded cover crop later in the season. If both have been supplied regularly in recent years, they may be omitted, otherwise a broadcast application of 150 to 300 pounds of superphosphate and 50 to 100 pounds of muriate of potash per acre will supply a reserve for cover growth. If a few pounds of nitrogenous fertilizer can be added to the mixture, cover growth will be stimulated.

Peaches require a longer growing season and a more sustained supply of soil nitrogen than apples, therefore a ring application of one and one-half to two pounds of nitrate of soda or its equivalent should be made per tree just before bloom and a second application in early summer. Phosphate and potash should be supplied as for an apple orchard.

SUPERIOR SIRES NEEDED IN VICTORY DAIRY PLAN.

Some dairymen have neglected their dairy cattle breeding programs over the past several years and are caught off guard in the present emergency. The increased production of dairy products called for by the national emergency can be attained most economically with cows capable of high production of milk and butterfat.

There is a great opportunity on many dairy farms for the improvement of the breeding practices. In peace time as well as in war there is need for the dairymen to improve his economic position by raising the unit production of his dairy cows. The producing ability and the profits to be realized from Pennsylvania herds in the near future depends largely on the inheritance for production in the heifer calves that will be born in the next two or three years.

The dairy sire is more than half the herd. Great care should be taken in the selection of a dairy sire on which one can base a reasonable hope that his daughters will have an ability for production gerater than that of their dams.

Only 9,000 of the 61,000 cows in Pennsylvania dairy herd improvement associations in 1940 produced 400 pounds or more of butterfat. It is from such cows with a known high level of production and from a family of high producers that the herd sires of the future should be selected. Yet, many bull calves out of such high producing cows are sold for veal each year.

The interest in better breeding should increase to the exetent that young bulls of superior breeding find a place at the head of a dairy herd.

TRAIN OF TURKEY POULTS IMPORTANT.

The modern turkey grower not only must select the breed best suited to his trade, but he also must select the strain within that breed. There is almost as great a difference between strains of the breed, as there is between breeds.

At the present time there are strains of white turkeys which at 26-32 weeks of age produce mature hens weighing 15 pounds or more and toms weighing more than 24 pounds. Smaller strains of white turkeys at the same age have mature hens weighing only 9 to 11 pounds and toms 15 to 22 pounds. Other breeders have developed strains of medium weights. No longer can we think of the white Holland as a breed slightly smaller than the bronze turkeys. We must now consider the white Holland breed made up of strains of different mature sizes. This same condition applies to most other breeds to a lesser degree. Turkey growers should inquire about the strain of poults as well as the breed.

CHECK FRAME, BOLTS ON ALL IMPLEMENTS.

The frame and the bolts that hold it together are the foundation of every farm machine. These should be checked on all farm implements.

Bolts should be tight. Always be suspicious of any that are loose. They probably are badly worn and the threads usually are battered. The bolt holes should be checked for roundness. If the holes are worn oval shaped, ream and install a bolt which fits the new hole. Improper sized bolts which were used for emergency last season, now should be replaced.

Bent frames should be straightened. Broken or cracked ones can be welded. Welding on a piece to give extra stiffness is a wise precaution.

KITCHEN WORK EASIER WITH GADGETS THAT PAY

Gadgets often can make the most patient of homemakers lose her temper. Such gadgets, according to Miss Boneita Gordon, home economics extension representative of Lawrence County, have no place in the modern kitchen.

Let's take the can opener. No American kitchen is without one these days, but like all other equipment there are can openers and can openers. There are those which leave a ragged edge where chances of cutting yourself are unlimited. Then there are those which leave a comparatively smooth edge that eliminates the cutting hazard.

Some can openers require more energy than others to operate, but most of the newer ones can be operated with a turn of the hand after inserting the cutting point into the can. Some can openers may be fastened to the wall. These also have attachments, such as a knife sharpener.

The wooden spoon is a gadget that often is neglected. You like it for cake because of its comfortable grip handle which gives good leverage for beating. That's only one of its many uses. The handle doesn't get hot when you leave the spoon in a kettle on the stove. A wooden spoon will not leave disfiguring scratches or marks in utensils, and there is a quietness about a wooden spoon that you do not get with a metal one.

For greater efficiency, select a wooden spoon with a bowl that is almost flat, and without slips. A bowl that is rounded on the end is better than a pointed one. A handle that fits comfortably into your hand and balances as you stir it another requisite for an efficient wooden spoon.

A rubber scraper, sometimes called a plate scraper, is a gadget with many uses. The last drop of batter may be scraped from the bowl, and egg beaters and jars may be easily cleaned, not to mention plates, pots, and pans.

There are many types of scrapers, but the one with a double blade—one square corner and one round corner, will take care of almost any shaped utensil.

One caution in using the scraper—it won't last long if you use it to scrape hot foods or hot utensils. Some homemakers have found a flexible putty knife most useful for hot cereals and other hot utensils.

WOMAN 100 RECALLS LINCOLN DEBATES

(International News Service)

YORKVILLE, Ill., Feb. 13.—Mrs. Tryphenia Keasler recounted to friends today that as a girl she met Abraham Lincoln and listened to several of his debates with Stephen Douglas. Yesterday she celebrated the emancipator's birthday—and her own as well. She was 100 years old.

LABOR SHORTAGE

GROVE CITY, Feb. 13.—A labor shortage is curtailing operations at No. 2 Mine in Springfield Township. Mine officials say that about 30 regular employes have been lost recently, and that production has dropped to 800 tons per day. Normal output is 1,200 tons daily.

Many former employes have gone into other work, or have entered the fighting forces.

In some parts of Africa ant eggs are known as ant rice, and constitute one of the principal native foods.

COURT HOUSE CLOSED

Wasn't much use being on the hill Thursday. No marraige licenses, no realty transfers, nothing in fact, for the court house was closed for Lincoln's birthday. About the only signs of activity around the building were the sheriff's force, Commissioners' Chief Clerk William A. Eakin and Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds Clifford James.

A few attorneys forgot the building would be closed and came up to transact business.

IMPROVING SHERIFF'S HOME

It took a long time to get around to it but now that it is under way the improvements in the sheriff's home are showing up in a fine way. The paper was steamed off all the walls, plaster repairs were made, the woodwork upstairs and down is being painted, radiation is being installed in rooms which heretofore have been heatless and best of all the bathroom is being done over.

The bathroom formerly looked like one out of a second grade boarding house in a mill district. The baseboards which ran up about three feet were decayed, boards gapped open, the bath tub was one of those stylish affairs of the gas light era and the floor was about as even as a rough sea.

The baseboard is ripped out and synthetic tile is being placed half way up the walls. The top and the ceiling will be painted. A new floor level tub is installed, a small radiator put in, and the floor covered with linoleum.

In a couple of weeks the home will be something to live in, not just a collection of rooms.

Lawrence County Farms And Farmers

By H. R. McCulloch, County Agent

COMMUNITY DAY PROGRAM.

The Annual Community Day Program sponsored by Big Beaver community will be held in the Big Beaver Grange Hall Wednesday, February 18

The afternoon program beginning at 1:30 o'clock will be a program of particular interest to men. This will take the form of a Machinery Reconditioning Demonstration. Particular emphasis will be placed on mowers.

The evening program beginning at 8:00 o'clock will be of general interest to both men and women. This program will include:—

"Pork Production in Lawrence County"—Harold R. McCulloch, County Agent.

"Hybrid Corn in the Big Beaver Community"—W.A. Scott.

"Food for Health"—Miss Boneita Gordon, Home Economics Extension representative.

"The Farm Vegetable Garden"—W. B. Nissley, State College.

In addition to these discussions there will be musical and entertainment numbers included on the program.

This community meeting is open to the public and everyone is invited to attend.

URGE CAREFUL USE OF NITROGEN IN ORCHARDS.

Apple trees require nitrogen in largest amounts during the first month in spring after leaf buds start to grow. This demand must be met either from reserves in the soil or from the fertilizer bag. Although much of the supply of nitrogen that formerly went into fertilizers now is being made into gun powder, considerable increases in fruit crops can be secured if orchard problems are studied and available nitrogen is carefully utilized.

Orchardists who have adopted some form of sod rotation in recent years now are in a fortunate position. They can disk or harrow this sod enough to check its growth but not to destroy it. This cultivation will hasten the breakdown of soil organic matter and release nitrogen for the use of the trees.

If the supply of organic matter has been well built-up, an occasional cultivation following the one in early spring will release enough plant food to carry the trees up to the "June" drop. If terminal growth up to this time has been rapid and shows no sign of slowing up and the crop is not excessive, no additional nitrogen fertilizer may be needed. However, in most orchards a ring application of two to three pounds of nitrate of soda per tree should be made in late May or early June to secure the amount of terminal growth desired and to set a full crop of fruit.

Phosphorus and potassium in the soil must be sufficient to assure a good growth of weeds or a seeded cover crop later in the season. If both have been supplied regularly in recent years, they may be omitted, otherwise a broadcast application of 150 to 300 pounds of superphosphate and 50 to 100 pounds of muriate of potash per acre will supply a reserve for cover growth. If a few pounds of nitrogenous fertilizer can be added to the mixture, cover growth will be stimulated.

Peaches require a longer growing season and a more sustained supply of soil nitrogen than applies, therefore a ring application of one and one-half to two pounds of nitrate of soda or its equivalent should be made per tree just before bloom and a second application in early summer. Phosphate and potash should be supplied as for an apple orchard.

SUPERIOR SIRES NEEDED IN VICTORY DAIRY PLAN.

Some dairymen have neglected their dairy cattle breeding programs over the past several years and are caught off guard in the present emergency. The increased production of dairy products called for by the national emergency can be attained most economically with cows capable of high production of milk and butterfat.

There is a great opportunity on many dairy farms for the improvement of the breeding practices. In peace time as well as in war there is need for the dairymen to improve his economic position by raising the unit production of his dairy cows. The producing ability and the profits to be realized from Pennsylvania herds in the near future depends largely on the inheritance for production in the heifer calves that will be born in the next two or three years.

The dairy sire is more than half the herd. Great care should be taken in the selection of a dairy sire on which one can bace a reasonable hope that his daughters will have an ability for production gerater than that of their dams.

Only 9,000 of the 61,000 cows in Pennsylvania dairy herd improvement associations in 1940 produced 400 pounds or more of butterfat. It is from such cows with a known high level of production and from a family of high producers that the herd sires of the future should be selected. Yet, many bull calves out of such high producing cows are sold for veal each year.

The interest in better breeding should increase to the exetent that young bulls of superior breeding find a place at the head of a dairy herd.

TRAIN OF TURKEY POULTS IMPORTANT.

The modern turkey grower not only must select the breed best suited to his trade, but he also must select the strain within that breed. There is almost as great a difference between strains of the breed, as there is between breeds.

At the presenti time there are strains of white turkeys which at 26-32 weeks of age produce mature hens weighing 15 pounds or more and toms weighing more than 24 pounds. Smaller strains of white turkeys at the same age have mature hens weighing only 9 to 11 pounds and toms 15 to 22 pounds. Other breeders have developed strains of medium weights. No longer can we think of the white Holland as a breed slightly smaller than the bronze turkeys. We must now consider the white Holland breed made up of strains of different mature sizes. This same condition applies to most other breeds to a lesser degree. Turkey growers should inquire about the strain of poults as well as the breed.

CHECK FRAME, BOLTS ON ALL IMPLEMENTS.

The frame and the bolts that hold it together are the foundation of every farm machine. These should be checked on all farm implements.

Bolts should be tight. Always be suspicious of any that are loose. They probably are badly worn and the threads usually are battered. The bolt holes should be checked for roundness. If the holes are worn oval shaped, ream and install a bolt which fits the new hole. Improper sized bolts which were used for emergency last season, now should be replaced.

Bent frames should be straightened. Broken or cracked ones can be welded. Welding on a piece to give extra stiffness is a wise precaution.

KITCHEN WORK EASIER WITH GADGETS THAT PAY

Gadgets often can make the most patient of homemakers lose her temper. Such gadgets, according to Miss Boneita Gordon, home economics extension representative of Lawrence County, have no place in the modern kitchen.

Let's take the can opener. No American kitchen is without one these days, but like all other equipment there are can openers and can openers. There are those which leave a ragged edge where chances of cutting yourself are unlimited. Then there are those which leave a comparatively smooth edge that eliminates the cutting hazard.

Some can openers require more energy than others to operate, but most of the newer ones can be operated with a turn of the hand after inserting the cutting point into the can. Some can openers may be fastened to the wall. These also have attachments, such as a knife sharpener.

The wooden spoon is a gadget that often is neglected. You like it for cake because of its comfortable grip handle which gives good leverage for beating. That's only one of its many uses. The handle doesn't get hot when you leave the spoon in a kettle on the stove. A wooden spoon will not leave disfiguring scratches or marks in utensils, and there is a quietness about a wooden spoon that you do not get with a metal one.

For greater efficiency, select a wooden spoon with a bowl that is almost flat, and without slips. A bowl that is rounded on the end is better than a pointed one. A handle that fits comfortably into your hand and balances as you stir it another requisite for an efficient wooden spoon.

A rubber scraper, sometimes called a plate scraper, is a gadget with many uses. The last drop of batter may be scraped from the bowl, and egg beaters and jars may be easily cleaned, not to mention plates, pots, and pans.

There are many types of scrapers, but the one with a double blade—one square corner and one round corner, will take care of almost any shaped utensil.

One caution in using the scraper—it won't last long if you use it to scrape hot foods or hot utensils. Some homemakers have found a flexible putty knife most useful for hot cereals and other hot utensils.

Cruiser And Two Destroyers Are Launched In Ceremonies On Thursday

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13.—A 10,000-ton cruiser and two destroyers slid into the Delaware river Thursday as "part of America's answer to the Axis challenge and treachery."

Ten minutes apart, the destroyers Butler and Gherardi were launched at the Philadelphia Navy Yard after a brief message from Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox was read by Rear Admiral A. E. Watson, commandant of the Fourth Naval District. In the wire, Knox said:

"The launching of these two destroyers this day is part of America's answer to the Axis challenge and treachery. The navy and the people of the country convey their thanks for the patriotic efforts of the men whose work has made possible this accomplishment."

The destroyers slid down the ways five months ahead of schedule, definite proof of the accelerated speed with which Uncle Sam's workers are producing a two-ocean navy.

The U. S. S. Montpelier, a cruiser of the Cleveland class, was launched at the New York Shipbuilding Yards in Camden, N. J., six months ahead of schedule. Mrs. Lesley Sayer Corry, wife of William F. Corry, mayor of Montpelier, Vermont, sponsored the warship.

Scarcely had the destroyers taken to the water than navy yard workers cleared the ways for receiving the keels of two escort vessels.

Three New Ships Added To Navy

Cruiser And Two Destroyers Are Launched In Ceremonies On Thursday

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13.—A 10,000-ton cruiser and two destroyers slid into the Delaware river Thursday as "part of America's answer to the Axis challenge and treachery."

Ten minutes apart, the destroyers Butler and Gherardi were launched at the Philadelphia Navy Yard after a brief message from Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox was read by Rear Admiral A. E. Watson, commandant of the Fourth Naval District. In the wire, Knox said:

"The launching of these two destroyers this day is part of America's answer to the Axis challenge and treachery. The navy and the people of the country convey their thanks for the patriotic efforts of the men whose work has made possible this accomplishment."

The destroyers slid down the ways five months ahead of schedule, definite proof of the accelerated speed with which Uncle Sam's workers are producing a two-ocean navy.

The U. S. S. Montpelier, a cruiser of the Cleveland class, was launched at the New York Shipbuilding Yards in Camden, N. J., six months ahead of schedule. Mrs. Lesley Sayer Corry, wife of William F. Corry, mayor of Montpelier, Vermont, sponsored the warship.

Scarcely had the destroyers taken to the water than navy yard workers cleared the ways for receiving the keels of two escort vessels.

Nazis Attempt To Take 'Credit' For Normandie Blaze

Propanganda Agency Infers Fire Was Of Incendiary Origin; Navy Studies Problem

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Nazi Germany set out today to make the greatest possible use of the Normandie disaster, seeking to sell its English speaking enemies on the proposition that its saboteurs had caused it.

While the navy began assembling its experts to decide how the 83,423-ton liner was to be lifted from her side and set on an even keel again, New York newspapers assailed the official carelessness which, they said, had caused it. One, the Mirror, called it "Another Pearl Harbor" and said another "Roberts Report" was indicated.

The Nazi propaganda machine was quick to seize upon the disaster. The National Broadcasting company's listening post heard the Berlin radio, in an English language broadcast, say that the fire had been of "incendiary origin".

"It blasted the plans for transforming the liner into an aircraft carrier," the Nazi announcer said.

The broadcast seemed the start of a campaign designed to weaken American and British public morale by suggesting that German agents had been responsible for the tremendous loss. All American authorities reported that the fire had been set by sparks from an acetylene torch which was being used near large stores of inflammable materials.

Nazis Attempt To Take 'Credit' For Normandie Blaze

Propanganda Agency Infers Fire Was Of Incendiary Origin; Navy Studies Problem

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Nazi Germany set out today to make the greatest possible use of the Normandie disaster, seeking to sell its English speaking enemies on the proposition that its saboteurs had caused it.

While the navy began assembling its experts to decide how the 83,423-ton liner was to be lifted from her side and set on an even keel again, New York newspapers assailed the official carelessness which, they said, had caused it. One, the Mirror, called it "Another Pearl Harbor" and said another "Roberts Report" was indicated.

The Nazi propaganda machine was quick to seize upon the disaster. The National Broadcasting company's listening post heard the Berlin radio, in an English language broadcast, say that the fire had been of "incendiary origin".

"It blasted the plans for transforming the liner into an aircraft carrier," the Nazi announcer said.

The broadcast seemed the start of a campaign designed to weaken American and British public morale by suggesting that German agents had been responsible for the tremendous loss. All American authorities reported that the fire had been set by sparks from an acetylene torch which was being used near large stores of inflammable materials.

Army Officer Urged For O.C.D.

Senator Tydings Believes That Civilian Defense Should Be Directed By Army Man

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Sen. Millard Tydings (D) Md., today proposed that James Landis, director of civilian defense be replaced by an army officer, as the Senate Appropriations committee prepared to cut "frills" from the O.C.D. program

Declaring that the job of directing aid to citizens in case of enemy attack is a military task, Tydings urged that Maj. Gen. Lorenzo Gasser, an assistant to Landis, be named to the post.

"I said I didn't mean any reflection on Mr. Landis," explained Tydings, who made his proposal before an appropriation sub-committee, "but I thought Gen. Gasser was the man for the job."

The senate appropriations deficiency sub-committee, which will report a $160,000,000 deficiency bill to the full committee today, wrote restrictions on O.C.D. into the bill.

It retained the house amendment striking at appointment of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's dancer friend, Miss Mayris Chaney, at $4,600 a year. The amendment prohibits spending money for dancers, fan dancers, street shows, theatrical performances or other public entertainments.

The committee also wrote restrictions on the spending of $100,000,000 for O.C.D. It specified how much could be spent for fire-fighting equipment, gas masks, fire fighters' helmets, first aid, hospital supplies, gas-proof clothing and the like.

It struck from the bill authority to spend money for research and experimentation. Caught in the rebellion was the $80,000 originally asked by the treasury to pay Walt Disney for making a Donald Duck income tax movie. This was cut out by the house. It was not replaced by the senate committee.

No Noticeable Decrease Yet In Parking Fees

There has been no noticeable decrease in parking fees here because of the reported tire shortage, according to attaches of the city treasury where parking fees are unsealed, counted then deposited as part of the city's general revenue.

"There was a seasonable decline in receipts following the holidays but the decrease was not due to lack of parking because of the rubber shortage."

Approximately $25,000, was paid by motorists to park last year.

More than 600 paid fines for violating parking meters in January and this money, like the parking fees, is general revenue and goes to pay the city's bill.

Army Officer Urged For O. C. D.

Senator Tydings Believes That Civilian Defense Should Be Directed By Army Man

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Sen. Millard Tydings (D) Md., today proposed that James Landis, director of civilian defense, be replaced by an army officer, as the Senate Appropriations committee prepared to cut "frills" from the O.C.D. program.

Declaring that the job of directing aid to citizens in case of enemy attack is a military task, Tydings urged that Maj. Gen. Lorenzo Gasser, an assistant to Landis, be named to the post.

"I said I didn't mean any reflection on Mr. Landis," explained Tydings, who made his proposal before an appropriation sub-committee, "but I thought Gen. Gasser was the man for the job."

The senate appropriations deficiency sub-committee, which will report a $160,000,000 deficiency bill to the full committee today, wrote restrictions on O.C.D. into the bill.

It retained the house amendment striking at appointment of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's dancer friend, Miss Mayris Chaney, at $4,600 a year. The amendment prohibits spending money for dancers, fan dancers, street shows, theatrical performances or other public entertainments.

The committee also wrote restrictions on the spending of $100,000,000 for O.C.D. It specified how much could be spent for fire-fighting equipment, gas masks, fire fighters' helmets, first aid, hospital supplies, gas-proof clothing and the like.

It struck from the bill authority to spend money for research and experimentation. Caught in the rebellion was the $80,000 originally asked by the treasury to pay Walt Disney for making a Donald Duck income tax movie. This was cut out by the house. It was not replaced by the senate committee.

No Noticeable Decrease Yet In Parking Fees

There has been no noticeable decrease in parking fees here because of the reported tire shortage, according to attaches of the city treasury where parking fees are unsealed, counted then deposited as part of the city's general revenue.

"There was a seasonable decline in receipts following the holidays but the decrease was not due to lack of parking because of the rubber shortage."

Approximately $25,000, was paid by motorists to park last year.

More than 600 paid fines for violating parking meters in January and this money, like the parking fees, is general revenue and goes to pay the city's bill.

German Warships Believed Safe At Heligoland Goal

speculate on the probable course of attacks on the three vessels and their escorting surface vessels and aircraft, which were speeding toward Heligoland after their sensational escape.

Reported Pursued

Damaged by bombs and torpedoes but still able to run, the Nazi naval units were reportedly being pursued by British vessels hours after their audacious flight stirred up a tremendous battle in the English channel.

Although authorities maintained silence, it was generally felt attacks on the Nazi fleet had been renewed at daylight, depending on the success gained in intercepting and locating the scattered ships.

All quarters realized that if the three warships, which underwent many British air attacks at Brest, reach Heligoland, they will be able to undergo repairs in comparative safety. The Heligoland naval dockyards are heavily protected and difficult to blast from the air.

Assuming the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen are steaming with their essential protecting screen of mine sweepers, and that they were not seriously slowed down by yesterday's British attacks, they should be making about 16 knots.

This should enable them to cover the 360 miles from the Strait of Dover to Heligoland in about 22 hours.

Audacious Dash

Audacity of the Nazi dash through the confined waters of Dover Strait and the chanel in broad daylight astonished everyone—including the R.A.F. bomber command.

Observers believed that a coming concentration of Axis naval strength for a large-scale action at sea compelled the Nazis to take the gamble with the three vessels that had been moored at Brest.

Departure of the vessels squared with the view of many observers that Hitler's coming offensive will be synchronized with naval action by the German and Italian fleets. The Scharnhorst and Gneisenau are 26,000-ton battleships while the Prinz Eugen is a 10,000-ton cruiser.

Public bewilderment over the sudden German dash was summed up by an editorial in the London Evening News, which described the move as 'one more disconcerting incident in a story which already' is crowded with disconcerting incidents . . .

"No doubt," said the News, "we shall be given the usual soothing explanations regarding this new set-back . . .

"No doubt we shall hear the usual excuses about the fall of Singapore.

"But miscalculations have piled up too mountainously to be dismissed with a flourish of words.

"There is no use in Prime Minister Churchill standing up half defiantly and saying, 'I am the man responsible.'

"A grand inquest into the whole matter of framing and control of our war strategy is our most urgent need."

Some Hits Probable

British destroyers were believed to have scored at least one torpedo hit on the fleeing Nazi vessels while Beaufort bombers claimed at least three hits with aerial torpedoes.

The desperate battle, which raged from 11 a. m. yesterday morning for many hours, was the biggest in the channel since the terrific engagement that accompanied the evacuation from Dunkirk.

There was no evidence to indicate the escape of the three German naval units was connected with any Nazi attempt to invade England.

It appeared, on the contrary, that the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen raced out of Brest, where they have been hammered repeatedly by British planes, in a desperate gamble to reach home ports farther removed from R.A.F. bases.

There, it was believed, they could be provided with better protection and better repair facilities. Later they may attempt to sally out into the Atlantic to prey on enemy shipping.

After running through the Strait of Dover under naval and air attacks and a heavy barrage from shore guns, the three German vessels separated in the North sea, possibly heading for different ports.

Forty-Two Planes Lost

Forty-two British planes were lost during the mighty fight that developed after the German warships darted out of the harbor at Brest on the Nazi-occupied French coast. The Germans lost at least 18 fighting planes. British naval losses apparently were not heavy.

The damage inflicted on the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen, which on numerous occasions have been straddled by bombs as they lay in Brest, was not certain.

But it was believed at least one of the heavy German ships, either the 26,000-ton Scharnhorst or Gneisenau, was hit by an aerial torpedo and that another may have been hit by torpedo boat action.

Attacking Beaufort bombers also claimed three aerial torpedo hits, while the crews of attacking bomber command planes were confident that each of the main enemy units had been hit by aerial bombs.

Smoke caused by the intense barrage and the heavy smokescreen laid down by the enemy made it impossible to see the exact results of the slashing British attacks.

Desperate Gamble

The Nazi dash from Brest represented another of Germany's desperate gambles—running the gauntlet through the channel under the muzzles of nearby British shore batteries and heavy concentrations of British sea and air power.

For more than a week past there had been persistent reports the three vessels were preparing to slip from Brest, where for nearly a year the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau had suffered at least 110 aerial attacks from British planes.

During some of these assaults Britain's most powerful armor-piercing bombs were dropped on or near the warships.

When last seen, the British communique on the battle said, the three ships were speeding toward Heligoland.

British destroyers, the fleet air arm and the R.A.F. participated in the British attack on the Nazi vessels while the shore batteries around Dover also opened fire at extreme range.

Details Of Battle

The air ministry issued a special bulletin giving details of the gigantic air battle which accompanied the dash and which cost the Royal Air Force 42 planes against 18 losses for the Germans.

It was one of the greatest aerial battles ever fought—possibly the largest ever staged over the sea and recalled the tremendous duels over British soil in the "Battle of Britain" during 1940.

The statement said:

"Two Spitfires of the shipping patrol first intercepted the German trio on Thursday morning.

"They were immediately attacked by 12 Messerschmitts and subjected to intense anti-aircraft fire, but they streaked to their base with the news.

"A formation of torpedo bombers escorted by 50 fighters rushed to the scene, and fresh waves of fighters and bombers followed. The air attack was pressed home from 11 a. m. until 4 p. m.

"Pilots saw torpedoes apparently striking one of the battleships and witnessed explosions around the ship.

"Hurricanes from a low level dive-bombed escort vessels. Two pilots scored direct hits with 250-pound bombs on a 500-ton ship which broke apart and sank immediately. A smaller vessel was left enveloped in smoke and flames."

Although it had been reported as almost certain that an additional heavy attack would have been made on the ships before they took refuge at Heligoland, no details were available, and observers warned against raising unnecessary hopes by reporting the innumerable rumors current that this or that ship had been sunk.

McElwee, Recruiter Here, Transferred

Officer Attached To Local Office For Two Years Now In Pittsburgh

John J. McElwee, gunner, United States Navy, attached to the New Castle recruiting station for the past two years, has been transferred to the Pittsburgh recruiting office.

While affiliated with the local station, McElwee held the rating of chief fire controlman until December 1941. He then received the appointment as a gunner in the U.S. Naval Reserve.

McElwee, coming from Philadelphia, first enlisted in the Navy in 1917. Having completed 20 years of active service, he was transferred to the reserve class in 1938. In 1939 when the emergency came upon this country, he volunteered for active duty again and was ordered to the recruiting service in Pittsburgh. He then was assigned to the local station, remaining here until the appointment this week.

Charge Scrap Metal Taken

Harry Allen, South Croton avenue and Julius E. Treadwell, East Division street, both colored, were arrested Thursday afternoon by Policemen Sines and Tewell on a warrant signed by John Peluso of the Elliott Bros., steel company. It was alleged that they had at a Center street junk yard a truck with 2½ tons of scrap reportedly stolen from the steel company. The warrant was issued at the office of Alderman C. L. Mantz.

According to Chief of Police Willis G. McMullen, the men said that Allen had borrowed a truck after Treadwell had bought the scrap from another man now being sought.

They were committed by the alderman in default of bail pending a hearing later

Leadership Of Churchill May Be Endangered

(International News Service)

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The British press let loose a blast of criticism over escape of the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen today and boldly raised the question of whether Prime Minister Winston Churchill's leadership is in danger

Political circles predicted a major crisis as a result of this set-back which follows loss of the Repulse and Prince of Wales, the turn of events in Libya and the tragedy of Singapore.

NAZI RESISTANCE BEING INCREASED ON SOVIET FRONT

front, a Soviet unit captured 400 carts laden with military supplies, and took prisoner "several dozen" soldiers and officers, a communique said.

At a village designated as "N," five anti-tank guns, eight machine guns and five mortars were capturer, it was said.

Typical of the way in which the Russians are destroying German manpower, it was said, was the manner in which "political instructor Preskoff" killed 17 enemy soldiers with a light machine gun and hand grenades.

Resistance Stiffens

All along the battle line, however, it appeared that Nazi resistance was stiffening. Reports reaching military circles in Moscow indicated that 15 fresh German divisions have been thrown into the battle on the southern portion of the front.

This strengthening of the Nazi forces, was possible only because troops which were being held in reserve for the German spring offensive were thrown into action, informed quarters said.

(Berlin's communique referred to Nazi attacks in the Donets Basin sector, and claimed Germans have repulsed Russian attacks elsewhere. On the Moscow front, said Berlin, a Russian force had been encircled.

(Berlin admitted a heavy battle had been in progress for several days in the area east of Kharkov, the "Russian Pittsburgh.")

(Stockholm dispatches said it was believed the Russian advance on the southern front had reached the Dnieper river. This would place them well beyond Kharkov to the west, perhaps near Dniepropetrovsk, site of Russia's great power plant.)

Ninety Hostages Facing Execution

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 13—Ninety hostages held in three French cities face execution if perpetrators of recent anti-Nazi bombings cannot be found, the British radio said today, quoting an announcement of German military authorities in Paris The broadcast was heard by NBC

Three Frenchmen have been executed in Paris, added BBC, on charges of having conspired with the De Gaulist and British forces.

In Paris, said BBC, 45 hostages are held in retaliation for two bombings. At Tours, 20 hostages will be slain by the Nazis tomorrow if attackers of a German sentinel cannot be discovered. At Rouen, 25 French hosages will be executed on Sunday if saboteurs and bombers who caused disturbances in the city cannot be found.

In Denmark, nine patriots were sentenced to hard labor terms for distributing anti-Nazi literature, said BBC.

Smoking was at an early period termed "drinking" tobacco. The term was constantly in use until the middle of the 17th century.

German Warships Believed Safe At Heligoland Goal

speculate on the probable course of attacks on the three vessels and their escorting surface vessels and aircraft, which were speeding toward Heligoland after their sensational escape.

Reported Pursued

Damaged by bombs and torpedoes but still able to run, the Nazi naval units were reportedly being pursued by British vessels hours after their audacious flight stirred up a tremendous battle in the English channel.

Although authorities maintained silence, it was generally felt attacks on the Nazi fleet had been renewed at daylight, depending on the success gained in intercepting and locating the scattered ships.

All quarters realized that if the three warships, which underwent many British air attacks at Brest, reach Heligoland, they will be able to undergo repairs in comparative safety. The Heligoland naval dockyards are heavily protected and difficult to blast from the air.

Assuming the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen are steaming with their essential protecting screen of mine sweepers, and that they were not seriously slowed down by yesterday's British attacks, they should be making about 16 knots.

This should enable them to cover the 360 miles from the Strait of Dover to Heligoland in about 22 hours.

Audacious Dash

Audacity of the Nazi dash through the confined waters of Dover Strait and the chanel in broad daylight astonished everyone—including the R.A.F. bomber command.

Observers believed that a coming concentration of Axis naval strength for a large-scale action at sea compelled the Nazis to take the gamble with the three vessels that had been moored at Brest.

Departure of the vessels squared with the view of many observers that Hitler's coming offensive will be synchronized with naval action by the German and Italian fleets. The Scharnhorst and Gneisenau are 26,000-ton battleships while the Prinz Eugen is a 10,000-ton cruiser.

Public bewilderment over the sudden German dash was summed up by an editorial in the London Evening News, which described the move as 'one more disconcerting incident in a story which already' is crowded with disconcerting incidents . . .

"No doubt," said the News, "we shall be given the usual soothing explanations regarding this new set-back . . .

"No doubt we shall hear the usual excuses about the fall of Singapore.

"But miscalculations have piled up too mountainously to be dismissed with a flourish of words.

"There is no use in Prime Minister Churchill standing up half defiantly and saying, 'I am the man responsible.'

"A grand inquest into the whole matter of framing and control of our war strategy is our most urgent need."

Some Hits Probable

British destroyers were believed to have scored at least one torpedo hit on the fleeing Nazi vessels while Beaufort bombers claimed at least three hits with aerial torpedoes.

The desperate battle, which raged from 11 a. m. yesterday morning for many hours, was the biggest in the channel since the terrific engagement that accompanied the evacuation from Dunkirk.

There was no evidence to indicate the escape of the three German naval units was connected with any Nazi attempt to invade England.

It appeared, on the contrary, that the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen raced out of Brest, where they have been hammered repeatedly by British planes, in a desperate gamble to reach home ports farther removed from R.A.F. bases.

There, it was believed, they could be provided with better protection and better repair facilities. Later they may attempt to sally out into the Atlantic to prey on enemy shipping.

After running through the Strait of Dover under naval and air attacks and a heavy barrage from shore guns, the three German vessels separated in the North sea, possibly heading for different ports.

Forty-Two Planes Lost

Forty-two British planes were lost during the mighty fight that developed after the German warships darted out of the harbor at Brest on the Nazi-occupied French coast. The Germans lost at least 18 fighting planes. British naval losses apparently were not heavy.

The damage inflicted on the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen, which on numerous occasions have been straddled by bombs as they lay in Brest, was not certain.

But it was believed at least one of the heavy German ships, either the 26,000-ton Scharnhorst or Gneisenau, was hit by an aerial torpedo and that another may have been hit by torpedo boat action.

Attacking Beaufort bombers also claimed three aerial torpedo hits, while the crews of attacking bomber command planes were confident that each of the main enemy units had been hit by aerial bombs.

Smoke caused by the intense barrage and the heavy smokescreen laid down by the enemy made it impossible to see the exact results of the slashing British attacks.

Desperate Gamble

The Nazi dash from Brest represented another of Germany's desperate gambles—running the gauntlet through the channel under the muzzles of nearby British shore batteries and heavy concentrations of British sea and air power.

For more than a week past there had been persistent reports the three vessels were preparing to slip from Brest, where for nearly a year the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau had suffered at least 110 aerial attacks from British planes.

During some of these assaults Britain's most powerful armor-piercing bombs were dropped on or near the warships.

When last seen, the British communique on the battle said, the three ships were speeding toward Heligoland.

British destroyers, the fleet air arm and the R.A.F. participated in the British attack on the Nazi vessels while the shore batteries around Dover also opened fire at extreme range.

Details Of Battle

The air ministry issued a special bulletin giving details of the gigantic air battle which accompanied the dash and which cost the Royal Air Force 42 planes against 18 losses for the Germans.

It was one of the greatest aerial battles ever fought—possibly the largest ever staged over the sea and recalled the tremendous duels over British soil in the "Battle of Britain" during 1940.

The statement said:

"Two Spitfires of the shipping patrol first intercepted the German trio on Thursday morning.

"They were immediately attacked by 12 Messerschmitts and subjected to intense anti-aircraft fire, but they streaked to their base with the news.

"A formation of torpedo bombers escorted by 50 fighters rushed to the scene, and fresh waves of fighters and bombers followed. The air attack was pressed home from 11 a. m. until 4 p. m.

"Pilots saw torpedoes apparently striking one of the battleships and witnessed explosions around the ship.

"Hurricanes from a low level dive-bombed escort vessels. Two pilots scored direct hits with 250-pound bombs on a 500-ton ship which broke apart and sank immediately. A smaller vessel was left enveloped in smoke and flames."

Although it had been reported as almost certain that an additional heavy attack would have been made on the ships before they took refuge at Heligoland, no details were available, and observers warned against raising unnecessary hopes by reporting the innumerable rumors current that this or that ship had been sunk.

McElwee, Recruiter Here, Transferred

Officer Attached To Local Office For Two Years Now In Pittsburgh

John J. McElwee, gunner, United States Navy, attached to the New Castle recruiting station for the past two years, has been transferred to the Pittsburgh recruiting office.

While affiliated with the local station, McElwee held the rating of chief fire controlman until December 1941. He then received the appointment as a gunner in the U.S. Naval Reserve.

McElwee, coming from Philadelphia, first enlisted in the Navy in 1917. Having completed 20 years of active service, he was transferred to the reserve class in 1938. In 1939 when the emergency came upon this country, he volunteered for active duty again and was ordered to the recruiting service in Pittsburgh. He then was assigned to the local station, remaining here until the appointment this week.

Charge Scrap Metal Taken

Harry Allen, South Croton avenue and Julius E. Treadwell, East Division street, both colored, were arrested Thursday afternoon by Policemen Sines and Tewell on a warrant signed by John Peluso of the Elliott Bros., steel company. It was alleged that they had at a Center street junk yard a truck with 2½ tons of scrap reportedly stolen from the steel company. The warrant was issued at the office of Alderman C. L. Mantz.

According to Chief of Police Willis G. McMullen, the men said that Allen had borrowed a truck after Treadwell had bought the scrap from another man now being sought.

They were committed by the alderman in default of bail pending a hearing later

Leadership Of Churchill May Be Endangered

(International News Service)

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The British press let loose a blast of criticism over escape of the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen today and boldly raised the question of whether Prime Minister Winston Churchill's leadership is in danger

Political circles predicted a major crisis as a result of this set-back which follows loss of the Repulse and Prince of Wales, the turn of events in Libya and the tragedy of Singapore.

NAZI RESISTANCE BEING INCREASED ON SOVIET FRONT

front, a Soviet unit captured 400 carts laden with military supplies, and took prisoner "several dozen" soldiers and officers, a communique said.

At a village designated as "N," five anti-tank guns, eight machine guns and five mortars were capturer, it was said

Typical of the way in which the Russians are destroying German manpower, it was said, was the manner in which "political instructor Preskoff" killed 17 enemy soldiers with a light machine gun and hand grenades.

Resistance Stiffens

All along the battle line, however, it appeared that Nazi resistance was stiffening. Reports reaching military circles in Moscow indicated that 15 fresh German divisions have been thrown into the battle on the southern portion of the front.

This strengthening of the Nazi forces, was possible only because troops which were being held in reserve for the German spring offensive were thrown into action, informed quarters said.

(Berlin's communique referred to Nazi attacks in the Donets Basin sector, and claimed Germans have repulsed Russian attacks elsewhere. On the Moscow front, said Berlin, a Russian force had been encircled.

(Berlin admitted a heavy battle had been in progress for several days in the area east of Kharkov, the "Russian Pittsburgh.")

(Stockholm dispatches said it was believed the Russian advance on the southern front had reached the Dnieper river. This would place them well beyond Kharkov to the west, perhaps near Dniepropetrovsk, site of Russia's great power plant.)

Ninety Hostages Facing Execution

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 13—Ninety hostages held in three French cities face execution if perpetrators of recent anti-Nazi bombings cannot be found, the British radio said today, quoting an announcement of German military authorities in Paris The broadcast was heard by NBC

Three Frenchmen have been executed in Paris, added BBC, on charges of having conspired with the De Gaulist and British forces.

In Paris, said BBC, 45 hostages are held in retaliation for two bombings. At Tours, 20 hostages will be slain by the Nazis tomorrow if attackers of a German sentinel cannot be discovered. At Rouen, 25 French hosages will be executed on Sunday if saboteurs and bombers who caused disturbances in the city cannot be found.

In Denmark, nine patriots were sentenced to hard labor terms for distributing anti-Nazi literature, said BBC.

Smoking was at an early period termed "drinking" tobacco. The term was constantly in use until the middle of the 17th century.

The famous are usually lonely. Their envious friends quit them, and they high-hat the others.

The census bureau reports that California and Georgia produce most of the country's pimentos. Florida grows most of the peppers picked green for stuffing and seasoning, and Louisiana supplies those of Tabasco sauce. New Mexico and New Jersey also specialize in growing peppers.

To put zip in the nation's cookery, the United States normally imports 75 million pounds of black and white pepper a year. The Census Bureau reports that most of the black pepper has been coming from Java, Sumatra, Thailand, the Philippines, and the West Indies.

District Scout Dinner At Cathedral Draws 600

Six hundred persons—Boy Scouts of the New Castle district and their parents and friends and scouters—attended the district's annual Lincoln Day banquet, at the Cathedral last night.

Unique in itself was the dinner, a tureen affair managed by the scout troops with the efficiency of the best-planned banquet and served to the complete satisfaction of the diners.

The gathering assembled the scout host of the largest of the Lawrence county council's four districts—each district now holds its own banquet instead of joining for a county-wide affair as in past years.

Akron Man Speaker

Principal speaker for the night was Arthur C. Horrocks of Akron, and an eloquent platform man, who discussed Scouting in general as it relates to national defense.

Horrocks was introduced by Scout Executive John J. Finnessy.

Toastmaster was County Controller Frank C. Hill, who piloted the after-dinner program like a veteran.

Stirring patriotic exercises—including the spine-tingling call of the bugle and the call to colors—marked the opening of the program, and the crowd united in the "pledge to the flag" led by Scout Executive Finnessy. The invocation was by Rev. A. M. Stump of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church.

Demonstration Seen

A highlight of the evening was the demonstration staged by the well-trained Emergency Corps of scouts under the direction of E. D. Hawk, New Castle district commissioner. Informal remarks on council progress were also made by Charles Carbeau of Ellwood City, head of the county council.

Near the close of the banquet celebration a birthday cake was presented by Girl Scouts to the Boy Scouts—a cake marking the 32nd anniversary of the Boy Scouts. Marie C. Hay, new Girl Scout executive here, was also introduced.

Present to share honors were four holders of the scouts' distinguished Silver Beaver award, Council Head Carbeau, Rev. Stump, Ralph F. Davis, council commissioner, and Dr. Ray C. Lutz.

Singing was led by W. O. "Red" Williams with Ermel E. Branstetter at the piano.

Ship Building Leads Sinkings

U. S. Building Ships Faster Than U-Boat Attack Losses Is Report

By GRIFFING BANCROFT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Despite intensified Axis submarine raiding congress today had the assurance that the United States is building ships as fast as they are sunk and within a short time the current construction rate will be greatly increased.

This blunt assurance was given to the house appropriations committee by Shipping Commissioner Admiral Emory S. Land, who testified in support of the record $32,000,000,000 new war spending bill.

The chairman of the Maritime commission and recently appointed shipping czar, also told the committee:

That the nation's shipbuilders will meet President Roosevelt's goal to construct 8,000,000 additional tons of merchant vessels this year and 10,000,000 tons next year.

"Well Ahead"

That during January ship construction was "well ahead" of sinkings, but that during the first part of this month vessels were sent to the bottom at just the same rate as they came off the ways.

That a total of ten merchant ships were lost during 1941 because of loss of construction time due to labor strikes, but that the labor situation is causing no loss of time now.

Land's testimony came after the committee approved the army's portion of the all time record bill—$22,888,000,000 chiefly for ordnance.

Land, however, testified about another section of the bill—one calling for $3,582,000,000 for the Maritime commission to construct 1,400 additional tankers and freighters and generally to accelerate the building of vital ships.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard was called by the committee to discuss the last section—$5,430,000,000 for additional lend-lease aid to the united nations.

The bulk of this, $3,567,115,500, is for agricultural and industrial products, most of which will be foodstuffs for citizens and friendly armies in the war zones.

Rep. Cannon (D) Mo., chairman of the committee, said the entire bill would be approved this week and brought up on the floor, where speedy passage is assured next Tuesday.

Have Conference At Wampum Church

There was a joint executive committee meeting of the Lawrence County Sabbath School Association and Wampum District, held at the Wampum Presbyterian church Thursday evening.

Those present were Robert M. Strickler, Jr., H. L. Marvin, Walter Guy, Rev. J. Greer Bingham, Stanley Brest, Charles S. Davis, Mrs. O. V. Douthett, Laura B. Mills, Mrs. David Stanford, O. V. Douthett, Mrs. John Gaffney and David Stanford.

Rev. J. Greer Bingham was made chairman of the pre-Easter campaign for Wampum District. The annual district convention will be held at the Wampum Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon and evening, March 1st. The program and nominating committees were appointed. Plans for other activities in the district were discussed.

King Carol Not Wanted Over Here

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles today announced bluntly that the United States government does not want former King Carol of Rumania to come to this country for the purpose of heading a free Rumanian group.

In response to questions at his press conference, Welles said that the American government did not think that any such move by the former king of Rumania would be conductive to the war effort of the United States or conducive to the kind of national unity that is desired in this country.

Ex-King Carol now is believed to be in Mexico City and has been trying for some time to enter the United States.

To Convert Radio Industry To War Production Soon

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The radio manufacturing industry was placed "next in line" today for conversion to war production.

R. R. Guthrie, assistant chief of the war production board's bureau of industry branches, told a meeting of manufacturers that the industry will be converted to war output "as rapidly as it is technically possible."

The W.P.B. reported it expected that the major part of the conversion job will be done within three months, and it added that a program will be drafted after conferences between government and the industry, the civilian output of which has been cut 40 per cent below last year.

"The strategical objectives and the broad dimensions of the task before you are clear," Guthrie told the manufacturers. "It should be as gratifying to you as it is to me that these objectives and dimensions are no longer subject to change with the fortunes of war.

"We are, thank God, out of the period in which each succeeding military reverse meant a revision of our estimates of what we must do. We are demanding the utmost of your industry and of every other industry now."

A Chinese Daily News editorial today praised the general's first trip abroad as a step toward improving the position of the United Nations in the Pacific and co-ordinating the Indian and Chinese military efforts.

Dominion status for India, it was said, is one of the topics which may be discussed at the meeting.

District Scout Dinner At Cathedral Draws 600

Six hundred persons—Boy Scouts of the New Castle district and their parents and friends and scouters—attended the district's annual Lincoln Day banquet at the Cathedral last night.

Unique in itself was the dinner, a tureen affair managed by the scout troops with the efficiency of the best-planned banquet and served to the complete satisfaction of the diners.

The gathering assembled the scout host of the largest of the Lawrence county council's four districts—each district now holds its own banquet instead of joining for a county-wide affair as in past years.

Akron Man Speaker

Principal speaker for the night was Arthur C. Horrocks of Akron, and an eloquent platform man, who discussed Scouting in general as it relates to national defense.

Horrocks was introduced by Scout Executive John J. Finnessy.

Toastmaster was County Controller Frank C. Hill, who piloted the after-dinner program like a veteran.

Stirring patriotic exercises—including the spine-tingling call of the bugle and the call to colors—marked the opening of the program, and the crowd united in the "pledge to the flag" led by Scout Executive Finnessy. The invocation was by Rev. A. M. Stump of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church.

Demonstration Seen

A highlight of the evening was the demonstration staged by the well-trained Emergency Corps of scouts under the direction of E. D. Hawk, New Castle district commissioner. Informal remarks on council progress were also made by Charles Carbeau of Ellwood City, head of the county council.

Near the close of the banquet celebration a birthday cake was presented by Girl Scouts to the Boy Scouts—a cake marking the 32nd anniversary of the Boy Scouts. Marie C. Hay, new Girl Scout executive here, was also introduced.

Present to share honors were four holders of the scouts' distinguished Silver Beaver award, Council Head Carbeau, Rev. Stump, Ralph F. Davis, council commissioner, and Dr. Ray C. Lutz.

Singing was led by W. O. "Red" Williams with Ermel E. Branstetter at the piano.

Ship Building Leads Sinkings

U. S. Building Ships Faster Than U-Boat Attack Losses Is Report

By GRIFFING BANCROFT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Despite intensified Axis submarine raiding congress today had the assurance that the United States is building ships as fast as they are sunk and within a short time the current construction rate will be greatly increased.

This blunt assurance was given to the house appropriations committee by Shipping Commissioner Admiral Emory S. Land, who testified in support of the record $32,000,000,000 new war spending bill.

The chairman of the Maritime commission and recently appointed shipping czar, also told the committee:

That the nation's shipbuilders will meet President Roosevelt's goal to construct 8,000,000 additional tons of merchant vessels this year and 10,000,000 tons next year.

"Well Ahead"

That during January ship construction was "well ahead" of sinkings, but that during the first part of this month vessels were sent to the bottom at just the same rate as they came off the ways.

That a total of ten merchant ships were lost during 1941 because of loss of construction time due to labor strikes, but that the labor situation is causing no loss of time now.

Land's testimony came after the committee approved the army's portion of the all time record bill—$22,888,000,000 chiefly for ordnance.

Land, however, testified about another section of the bill—one calling for $3,582,000,000 for the Maritime commission to construct 1,400 additional tankers and freighters and generally to accelerate the building of vital ships.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard was called by the committee to discuss the last section—$5,430,000,000 for additional lend-lease aid to the united nations.

The bulk of this, $3,567,115,000, is for agricultural and industrial products, most of which will be foodstuffs for citizens and friendly armies in the war zones.

Rep. Cannon (D) Mo., chairman of the committee, said the entire bill would be approved this week and brought up on the floor, where speedy passage is assured next Tuesday.

Have Conference At Wampum Church

There was a joint executive committee meeting of the Lawrence County Sabbath School Association and Wampum District, held at the Wampum Presbyterian church Thursday evening.

Those present were Robert M. Strickler, Jr., H. L. Marvin, Walter Guy, Rev. J. Greer Bingham, Stanley Brest, Charles S. Davis, Mrs. O. V. Douthett, Laura B. Mills, Mrs. David Stanford, O. V. Douthett, Mrs. John Gaffney and David Stanford.

Rev. J. Greer Bingham was made chairman of the pre-Easter campaign for Wampum District. The annual district convention will be held at the Wampum Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon and evening, March 1st. The program and nominating committees were appointed. Plans for other activities in the district were discussed.

DIES COMMITTEE STILL NEEDED

NOW that the House Rules Committee has approved continuance of the Dies Committee for another year, this action should be confirmed without hesitation by the main body.

Certainly this is no time to end an investigation into un-American activities that has already produced such substantial results. As all know, the beginning of our elaborate defense program was the signal for America's domestic enemies to redouble their efforts. But as far back as 1938, when the Dies Committee began its labors, it started to disclose the machinations of Nazi and Communist agents alike.

Now that we are in the war, there is continuing special need for the committee's searching inquiries. Perhaps the best proof of the service it is rendering is provided by the enemies it has made. The term "un-American" covers a broad range of nefarious activities. It includes everyone, regardless of nationality, who is seeking to undermine our form of government. And among these miscreants, be it said with shame, are some who call themselves Americans and use their natural or acquired citizenship as a cloak.

The purpose of the Dies Committee's investigations and reports is not to interfere with free speech and other righteous individual liberties. It is to provide congress with facts on which to base legislation for the nation's protection. Thanks to its endeavors, we now have laws to strengthen the hands of the authorities in dealing with the foes within our household.

Our government and people have welcomed Russia's aid in combatting Nazi aggression. But there has been no yielding of our determination that the pernicious doctrines of Communism and irreligion shall not take root on American soil. Subversive plotting takes many forms. Wherever it is trying to fasten its tentacles, congress should have the facts for further legislation that may be needed. The important task of the Dies Committee is by no means ended. Its continued functioning will be distinctly in the public interest.

MEN OR MACHINES

Warfare as initiated by the Nazis in Poland, the Low Countries and France was a highly mechanized business, with success dependent upon the speed and power of planes and tanks and other motor equipment.

The speed with which Europe was conquered gave rise to a fallacy—that machines were irresistible, that the intelligence and courage of men had ceased to be dominant factors in the achievement of victory.

What even then was suspected is now clear—that no matter how big and powerful machines may become, men will always be bigger, that flesh and blood and spirit will still endure long after the mightiest piece of destructive mechanism has been reduced to rust and wreckage.

Those who demand proof of this theory have only to look upon MacArthur and his men. Why do they still cling tenaciously to their little corner of the Philippines?

According to all the theories of the exponents of the invincibility of machines in warfare, this little army should have been driven into the sea. It has been strafed and blitzed. Hordes of mechanized troops, tanks, dive-bombers and all of the paraphernalia of mechanized terrorism have been hurled against it.

But still it stands, giving blow for blow, counter-attacking with meager forces and driving the enemy back, providing a spectacle of military skill and heroism which has earned its place in history alongside Valley Forge and Yorktown, Gettysburg and Chateau-Thierry.

The stand of MacArthur and his men blasts a theory which, on the basis of early experience in the war, was accepted rather universally as sound. But now the world knows that pure heroism will prove equal to any tests the architects of chaos may devise.

VALENTINE DAY

The custom of exchanging lovers' tokens and messages of tender feeling on February 14 appears not to be linked with the lives or persons of any of the three sainted martyrs who bore the name of Valentine, but only with their day, because it falls midway in the second month when, according to medieval tradition in England and in France, the birds begin to pair. "For this was on Seynt Valentyne's Day, when every foul cometh ther to choose his made," sang Chaucer in his "Parliament of Foules."

The valentine goes back as far as written English runs, and ranges from the candied sentiment of immortal poets to the heart-shaped lozenge bearing the strange device "Why not?" or "Don't tell Ma." In this age of speed and direct action in all things, including wooing, the valentine has suffered, but its meaning is the same, and springs from the self-same source, a young man's fancy—youth in this being related not to years but to a state of feeling.

A formidable segment of valentine taste continues to run to the elaborate improvisation of pierced hearts and paper lace which becomes increasingly hard to find. They are unequivocal and unashamed.

It is at least as nice to send valentines as to receive them, and one ought to send them, no matter if she, like the sender, is a kindergartener, or if the twain have celebrated a golden wedding anniversary. In times like these, they help to keep alive an expression of the spirit which figures little in the world-shaking events of the day, but which will return, as it always has, to repair the world when these events have run their course.

London's snootiest tailors now condescend to remake old suits. Try to put a patch on that one!

Hitler, watching Japan snatch the aggressor role, now knows how Mussolini has felt for the last several years.

On the theory that anything can happen—and why not?—fakirs have predicted devastating earthquakes for Japan during 1942. This would seem to be as good a time as any to unloose them.

Automobile workers on defense jobs who put in only forty hours a week but want double pay for Sundays should be reminded that General MacArthur and his men work seven days a week and demand no overtime pay. But they're patriots!

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

DUTY TO CHILDREN IN WARTIME

Many mothers whose children are quite small are going to work, and often from a deep sense of patriotism. No doubt, a few mothers who don't need to work but feel they must help to win this war, are letting their immediate war emotions warp their judgment. We can count on this being a long war and we need to think about the children over a period of years.

To mothers who have babies and young children: I would urge you to consider whether for the nutrition of these children it will be absolutely necessary for you to work away from home now. The mother who has ample income to supply wholesome food and shelter for her children, in thinking about whether to work or not, should consider first whether she has a responsible person to guide and protect her children safely in her absence. This should apply to volunteer workers among women.

It is not just a matter of being absent so much as it is of coming home to the family all worn out and jittery, unfit to be companionable and provide a warm, serene and emotionally secure family atmosphere.

The mother who works away from home often returns home tired with another day's work before her. She must cook the meals, tidy the house, even do cleaning, washing, ironing, mending, perhaps. Whenever possible she should send out her laundry and employ some one at regular times to clean.

Husband Could Help

Otherwise her husband, working no harder than she by day, might well turn laundress or scrubwoman. Some wise and considerate husbands actually do. If there are children old enough they ought to share in all the home cares.

The shame of it is that so many children from eight to twenty are running about at night and spending money for fun while their weary mother is wearing herself out slaving for the family. Never was there a time when it was so desirable for children to learn early and continuously to help with the work about the home. Thousands of mothers with comfortable incomes today will be compelled to earn the family income tomorrow. Let every mother educate her children now for such emergency.

Don't fool yourself to suppose that helping about the house can always be a pleasure for the child. Beginning with the toddler, let him learn now to take care of himself. As soon as he can do a regular job like emptying the wastebasket, setting the table or washing the dishes, have him do these chores as certainly as the sun rises in the morning. Better to center on one responsibility until it is well established than to add many such. For the duty you are establishing, say with the child of eight, let him know he always must do it promptly or serve an inescapable sentence, such as sitting for one or two hours on a chair doing nothing where you can see him. At any rate, each child should learn to do some regular jobs about the home. You know he is learning to take responsibility for a job when he always does it without being told when to begin or until it is completed.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. What are the pros and cons on purchasing a good set of books for young children against selecting and building a good library for them gradually?

A. Good sets of books have well-selected graded materials and are on hand when needed. On the other hand, considerable money is tied up on materials not needed for several years. With careful planning, a good library may be builded gradually, though many parents won't do the planning nor even provide a few good books.

HINTS AND DINTS

Sun sets tonight 6:32. Sun rises tomorrow 7:13.

It is claimed in Washington that the sugar shortage was caused by hoarding. That may be true. The penalty for this is $10,000 fine or ten years in the coop. That's not so sweet!

Anybody, man or woman, who is made chairman of a committee, needs special talent for doing the work. The honor is earned.

A butcher shop is not the only place where one can get baloney. It can be had for nothing in many places all the time and no early closing hours affect it.

BANK ACCOMMODATIONS

A man came into a bank and wanted to borrow $5. He was told that the bank did not lend such small sums.

"But the business of lending money is your business, isn't it?" The banker admitted it was.

"Well, I've got good security," said the stranger, "and I want to borrow $5."

Finally the banker agreed to make the loan. When the note was drawn, and the interest of 30 cents paid, the stranger drew from his pocket $10,000 worth of Government bonds and handed them over as security. Before the banker could recover from his astonishment the stranger said: "Now this is something like it. Over at the other bank they wanted to charge me $10 just for a safe deposit box to keep these things in."

Since prices have advanced, there may be a revival of the old question, "How high is up?"

It is the right time to be nice to people who have helped you to make some money.

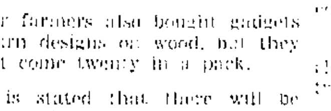
"Does your uncle have much liberty in prison?"

"I don't know; but I understand they are going to give him a lot of rope in the near future."

Guess what is wrong with this picture: Tired of scandalous stuff, one woman in the company suggested: "Say we now talk about people who are better than we."

This world is very big but not big enough to keep a lot of birds from wanting to fight.

Some people will still continue to use helluva time.



Our farmers also bought gadgets to burn designs on wood, but they didn't come twenty in a pack.

It is stated that there will be no soap shortage. No doubt some could get along all right even if there is one.

After science has taken the odor out of onions, what is left?

HIS BITTER MEMORY

There we stood before the parting.
'Round my neck her arms she threw,
And I saw that tears were starting
From her dreamy eyes so blue.

My caress did not relieve her,
My heart pained me, I confess,
When I knew I had to leave her—
Forty dollars—for a dress.

It will be interesting to see how some people will try to make their automobiles last longer. Not using them so much is the only sure way.

Some crooks are not satisfied by just stealing a tire. They also take the wheel.

THE TRUTH

"Among the prettiest girls present was Brigadier General Bluff," wrote a young reporter in his account of a party. The next day he was called to the editor's office.

"What the deuce do you mean by writing stuff like that?" demanded the editor.

"Well," explained the reporter, "that's where he was."

HOW ARE YOUR ENGLISH AND YOUR VOCABULARY?

"Don't you think knowledge of correct English and a substantial vocabulary are among the most important social assets?"—J. H. B.

Answer. I certainly do think so! Which makes me wonder why school teachers do not more seriously consider their pupils' English. Just observe, some time, in public vehicles, the excruciatingly bad English used by boys and girls going to and from high school.

I am not referring to slang, some of which now appears to have a permanent niche in our language, but particularly to constructions, such as: "I should have come," "Mary will go with Tom and I," etc. Flagrant mistakes must occasionally, at least, crop up in the class rooms. I have heard so-called honor students disregard all rules of grammar in their conversation. Oral work, as well as written, should count in the final summing up on the report card.

One of the best systems for the elimination of objectionable words and phrases, after learning the rules of grammar, is to develop the habit of speaking slowly, carefully choosing each word. Perhaps at first you may sound somewhat stilted, but you will soon break yourself of the use of incorrect English. With such careful practice, you will find it possible to speak correctly.

Dear Miss Markel: Aren't fussy clothes and jewelry for children de trop?—Sandy.

Answers: Mothers will display good taste by selecting plainly made clothes for their children. Little girls have a fondness for pretty dresses of gay shades and chic little hats—and they should have them.

But elaborate jewelry and fussy clothes with fancy ornaments have no place in the wardrobe of the "under-teen" who will have plenty of time later to gratify her desire for such "grown-up" baubles. Of course, little Miss Modern must have her wrist watch to count the weary hours until the gong announces school is over and playtime is at hand. Or her throat be embraced by a childish little locket and chain—mute evidence of doting parents or an affectionate aunt or uncle. But the fewer the furbelows and the plainer her ensemble the more attractive she will appear to people of good taste.

Tomorrow—Traveling With Nursemaid

WOMAN

She's an angel in truth, a demon in fiction; a woman's the greatest of all contradiction. She's afraid of a cockroach, she'll scream at a mouse, but she'll tackle a husband as big as a house. She'll take him for better, she'll take him for worse, she'll split his head open and then be his nurse; and when he is well and can get out of bed, she'll pick up a teapot and throw at his head. She's faithful, deceitful, keen sighted and blind, she's crafty, she's simple, she's cruel, she's kind, she'll lift a man up up, she'll cast a man down; she'll make him her hero, she'll make him her clown. You fancy she's this but you find she is that, for she'll play like a kitten and bite like a cat. In the morning she will, in the evening she won't, and you're always expecting she does—but she don't.

Farmers in this country will pay over a billion dollars in wages this year for help. That will take some digging.

At the coming election 34 U. S. senators will be elected and all the congressmen. At that election we will get a very good idea of what people are thinking.

A lot of people are predicting the defeat of Hitler, but they all have a different time and different way for it.

DIDN'T MIND

The man was buying some meat when a second man entered, obviously in a great hurry. He rudely interrupted the other man's order.

"Give me some dog food," he said, and added to the first customer, "Hope you don't mind?"

"Not if you're that hungry," answered the other.

At a recent meeting of the school directors in Harrisburg a lot of complaint was made about married women school teachers and a way to fire them was wanted. Nothing was done about it however.

We notice that male members of the House of Representatives in Washington are pretty quiet when a woman member talks. Must be home training.

GOOD MORNING, DOC!

"I can't quite diagnose your case. I think it must be drink."

"Thas all, Doc. I'll come back again when you're sober."

HE HAD CONFIDENCE

Two gentlement satin their hotel room, consuming a quart of spirits. One of them had an idea and raised the window.

"I am going to take off and fly around the courtyard a little bit," he boldly remarked.

Leaping from the window sill, he buried his nose in the cement three floors below. The next day his friend went to the hospital to see him.

"I certainly made a fool of myself yesterday," said the patient. "Why didn't you stop me?"

"Maybe I should have, meekly replied his friend, "but at that time I really thought you could do it."

Russia fooled Hitler as Japan fooled us. You see, neither country had any traitors or officials with loose mouths.

What's What At A Glance

Need Encouragement During Dark Hours
Koreans Said To Be Spoiling For Fight

Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Helping the British, the Chinese and the East Indian Dutch is all right, of course. However, the suggestion's beginning to be heard in Washington that the United Nations are somewhat neglectful of the possibility of capitalizing anti-Axis feeling in countries the totalitarians have vanquished and occupied, but which certainly would be more than appreciative of encouragement to rise against 'em now. Taken separately they undoubtedly couldn't succeed at all, but it's pointed out that, collectively, they're numerous enough to be pretty formidable.

It's taken for granted that France would be solidly Free French if its people believed they could oust the Nazis and keep 'em ousted.

There also are the Low Countries, the Balkans and the Scandinavias, including Sweden, which isn't occupied but can't be otherwise than exceedingly apprehensive as to its future unless Herr Hitler's stopped effectively.

In the Far East, 25,000,000 Koreans, annexed by the Japs in 1910 and abominably oppressed ever since, are said to be fairly spoiling to join the Chinese in a fight for freedom, at the first prospect of a reasonably good show. They're a sizable element in Japan itself, too, having been drafted thither as wretched coolie laborers, and ought to be first-rate fifth columnists in the United Nations' behalf.

But to return to the European field:

Italy Ready, Too

Italy's reckoned to be about as much Germanly conquered, and as resentful of it, as any of the small democracies that the Nazis have overrun.

This isn't necessarily to say that Signor Mussolini is in a frame of mind to dissolve his partnership with Adolf. An Italian severance of relations with Germany hardly could miss involving Benito's local overthrow, which he wouldn't like, naturally, though it may be he regrets today that ever he tied up with the Fuehrer.

All indications are that the Italian masses, though, would break with the Germans if given a tolerably promising opportunity. Their difficulty is that, should they do so without strong and prompt backing, the Nazis would invade 'em and trample 'em flat.

Nevertheless, they're about 40,000,000 strong in man and woman power, and would be worth having as democratic allies, besides which it surely would be demoralizing to German morale to have 'em cut loose.

The fact is that the United Nations' leadership's attitude toward the Italians is different from its attitude toward the Germans and the Japs.

The Germans are blamed for having acquiesced in Herr Hitler. The Japs are blamed for being led by the nose by their military class, the Samurai. The Germans likewise are regarded as barbarians predominantly, though with some exceptions, and the Japs are assessed as inherently treacherous as well as mean scrappers.

The Italians, on the other hand, are spoken of as moderately chivalrous enemies. They didn't behave like it in their war with the Ethiopians, to be sure, but that's attributed to their command rather than to their rank and file. Stories are told of them as comparatively decent more recently, perhaps because it's inbred in them or perhaps because this is one of the times when they'd prefer not to fight.

Benito Civilized Once

Even Benito Mussolini used to have a civilized reputation once upon a time. He's despised today, as a Hitlerian tool, just as Adolf's hated.

I can remember though when he was just an ordinary Milan newspaperman, and I've known Americans who made his acquaintance in that era and described him as an agreeable personality. He slid into power at a juncture when Italy was in awful economic shape and effected considerable improvements. Later he developed dictatorially but I fancy it was more or less by accident.

Fascism in short doesn't seem to be Italian philosophy as Nazism is a Germany.

The nub of it is:

There are others, besides the armed and fighting United Nations, who might profitably be helped. Why not give 'em a boost?

They're essentially as much a part of the United Nations as Maine or Arizona are parts of the United States. Wouldn't it be good policy to get them into the federation? They'll be more of a bother to the Nazis and the Samurai than we are, from this far off.

Daily Dozen

Old age does not come to all at a given time of life.

Some persons are old at middle age.

Others are young physically and mentally when old in years.

Heredity plays an important part in the aging process.

Some are born with definite promise of long life.

Others are predisposed by heredity to certain diseases.

"Getting old" is an expression middle-aged people fear.

Readjustments are necessary in the middle years of life.

A satisfactory mental and emotional attitude is needed.

Food, sleep and exercise should be considered carefully.

Heart and arteries undergo changes in middle and old age.

Moderation in all things should be practiced at this time.

BAR FOR LIARS.

"Oh no, we have paid off all the workmen on the building and nothing is due upon it," said a husband and wife to the banker as they applied for a loan of Nine Hundred Dollars.

The loan was granted, but there were bills up to Eight Hundred Dollars that had not been paid, and which became a lien on the property, ahead of the Bank's loan. The Bank took the matter up with the District Attorney, and the husband and wife found themselves confronted with a prosecution for the crime of obtaining money under false pretences.

From one to two years in the tSate's prison, to be assigned to hard labor, was the penalty awarded to the husband, while the wife was placed on probation for two years on condition of good behavir. Said the Supreme Court of North Carolina:

"We state the rule to be that a false pretense of a subsisting fact, calculated to deceive, whether the representation be in writing, or in words, or in acts, by which one man obtains value from another without compensation, is a false pretense indictable under our statutes."

The accused's attorney argued that the property was worth more than twice the loan, but the court ruled that this was immaterial inasmuch as the loan was based in part upon the statement that no bills were outstanding. Hence, this statement constructed a false pretense upon which money was obtained.

SHUNNED

It's strange, but my friends are all dodging me now
They're slipping round corners to miss me, somehow
They tell me they're busy, too busy to stay
A minute to hear what I'm eager to say.
Those grandchildren surely have got me in Dutch.
It seems I've been talking about them too much.

Time was when they'd stand at the curb of the road
And look most politely at pictures I showed.
But now when I reach for my wallet they say
"We're sorry, old man, but we're no time to stay."
I'm shunned like the fellow who's making a touch
Perhaps I've been boasting about them too much.

They turn when they see me and slip out of sight
At sound of my footsteps they flee in affright.
You'd think to behold them a villain were I
So quickly, so coldly they bid me goodbye
If I reach out to hold them they slip from my clutch
As a grandpa, perhaps, I've been boasting too much.

Eye-Witness Accounts Of U. S. Fleet Attack Upon Japanese Island Bases

able ship targets were found there, and 20 Japanese vessels were terrifically bombarded.

Ships Are Sunk

Those sunk or totally destroyed included one modern cruiser, two submarines, one yawata class liner (16,500 tons), three fleet oilers and one cargo vessel. Several others were damaged to an undetermined degree.

Our ships scored 2[illegible] direct large bomb hits. At Roi, located on the northern tip of Kwajalein, an air base was heavily bombed and its hangars destroyed. One hangar blew up mysteriously. A modern village of considerable size, apparently headquarters for the military personnel, was bombed and destruction was considerable. All military installations and all hangars were destroyed and shore batteries silenced.

Simultaneously at the Island of Wotje, American fliers strafed hangars, a radio tower and shore facilities, including boats. The warships then moved in and shelled nine Japanese vessels anchored in the lagoon. When the smoke had cleared, only two were visible and both were heavily damaged.

Destroy Bombers

At Taroa in the Maleplap Atoll, our fleet found a large number of multi-engined bombers and a squadron of fighting planes on a modern and well-developed air base. One flight leader estimated the number at 42. They were bombed and 35 were destroyed.

When the battle ended, seven enemy planes were still functioning. They attempted reprisals but got nowhere. The United States forces completely destroyed two hangars, the administration building and the radio station, while the air field was torn up.

Jaluit, capital of the mandated islands, was simultaneously attacked. The administration building, storehouses and the radio station were bombed and strafed by our planes. It is assumed that damage was severe.

In the attack on Mili Island, also in the Marshall group, no surface craft or shore facilities were observed. On one island of the Atoll a swath freshly cut through a cocoanut palm grove indicated possible plans to build a landing field. There was no other indication of previous activity.

Our aviators dropped bombs, while another attacking unit pounded on Makin Island in the Gilbert group. Makin had been occupied by the Japanese since December 7. The objectives found were one auxiliary and two four-engined patrol bombers at anchor. Our dive-bombers made several hits on the auxiliary and set the vessel afire. When last seen she was in a sinking condition. Both four-engined bombers were destroyed during the strafing.

There was no ship bombardment at Makin because the place had no shore facilities.

U. S. Losses Slight

American losses in this grand scale attack were comparatively slight. The operation was sweet revenge for the treacherous Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

A navy spokesman who witnessed the battle said:

"The blow to the Japanese was extremely heavy. They hadn't the faintest dream they'd be attacked that morning.

"Realizing they had been caught napping, the Japs engaged in fanatical aerial pursuit after the battle, evidently feeling they had to do something to retrieve themselves."

Significance of the attack lies in the serious crippling of most strategic bases in a manner which it is believed will hamper vital enemy operations in almost the whole mid-Pacific area. The degree of surprise almost equalled the surprise at Pearl Harbor.

A spokesman disclosed that our coordinated force struck simultaneously in the various islands at 6:58 a. m. at selected locations where the Japanese for years have been making military installations with utmost secrecy.

At Roi in Kwajalein, he said, the fleet found an excellent air base and a modern village as well as an impressive causeway between two small islands. The air base, paved runways and hangars were modern. During bombardments one of the hangars blew up with "an amazing and puzzling explosion," which may have been due to the fact the hangar contained planes armed with bombs or stores of gas.

Fires Started

Fires were started in the Japanese military headquarters area at Roi. Fuel and ammunition dumps were set ablaze before Japanese planes took to the air to meet our onslaught.

"We think they lost six fighters in the air and an undetermined number on the ground," the navy spokesman said. "We lost four planes."

On the south portion of Kwajalein United States planes located approximately 20 ships anchored. They included one modern cruiser, one old cruiser, between 5 and 7 submarines and the Yawata class liner as well as three fleet oilers, each of a 10,000-ton type, and miscellaneous repair and supply ships and converted merchant ships.

Moored at a small nearby island were two four-engined patrol seaplanes. On Kwajalein proper was a large modern compound containing half a dozen good-sized buildings. All these target were attacked. Direct bomb hits were scored on various ships, destroying about a dozen of them. The compound was demolished and both seaplanes sunk.

The navy spoeksman said that a number of United States planes were lost in the Kwajalein attack "which was met by an extremely heavy but inaccurate anti-aircraft fire from ships and from the shore."

Direct Hits Made

Two hours after the first attack, a second assault with aerial torpedoes was made by the United States force and at least five more direct hits were made on the larger ships. A sea of oil was observed as the Japanese crews abandoned the vessels.

At Wotje, an air field was found with two hangars and the usual appurtances but there were no planes either on land or over the sea. Our fliers strafed the hangars, the radio towers and shore facilities and then cleared to allow the main bombardment attack by ships.

From seven to nine Japanese vessels anchored in the lagoon were bombarded fiercely. Four of five of these ships were of the 5,000-ton merchant type while the remainder were smaller, apparently mine sweepers or mine layers. The fleet poured in shells and when the smoke cleared up only two ships were visible above the surface. One was beached and heavily damaged and the other apparently was sinking.

All hangars were destroyed and a large fuel storage and munition dump set ablaze. Ship bombardment previously had silenced all shore batteries.

Our attacking fleet found a formidable Japanese air force at Taroa in the Maloelap atoll. Taroa was bombed in the same manner as Wotje. United States vessels engaged in this bombardment were later subjected to heavy horizontal and dive-bomber attacks. One American ship sustained minor damage from a hit by a light bomb.

In the whole attack there was superficial damage to one other United States ship. Upon withdrawal of the United States force, the Japanese made two reprisal bombing attacks with an American carrier as their objective. The navy spokesman said that one attack made by five bombers "was driven home with such ferocity as to indicate desperation."

Bombing Attack

The Japanese delivered a glide bombing attack at high speed in close formation, dropping about 20 heavy bombs in a salvo. Our combat patrols damaged one of the five pursuers during the enemy's approach. The engine of the Japanese plane caught fire, and the pilot turned to try and make a suicide crash on the carrier's deck. He did succeed in striking the deck near the edge where his plane disintegraded and went over into the ocean.

The carrier meanwhile had turned a hose of fire on the inrushing Jap. Others on his plane were dead on the way in and the pilot was killed before his craft hit the deck. A small fire had been started on the carrier by one earlier near bomb miss but was quickly extinguished. A second plane in this group of pursuers was shot down by anti-aircraft guns.

Reprisal Attack

Another Jap reprisal attack came a short time later. Two enemy bombers made a conventional high altitude level bombing attack from the sun. Their aim was inaccurate but the carrier avoid the salvo by a maneuver. One of the planes was hit by anti-aircraft but was not seen to crash, while the other was shot down in flames in sight of our ships.

United States fighter planes, the spokesman said, are "much faster and more heavily gunned" than the Japanese. Not a single American plane was lost in the combat, while 10 of 16 Japanese planes shot down out of the air were fighters and the others bombers.

Severe storms hampered the United States unit which attacked Jaluit. The attackers encountered a low ceiling, heavy tropical squalls, lightning and poor visibility, so it was practically impossible to fly over in tight formation. As they neared Jaluit even more severe storms broke, forcing many fliers to make a landfall approach on instruments.

The bombing of Jaluit was conducted at low altitudes due to this severe weather. American fliers detected in Jaluit harbor two auxiliary vessels of from 7,000 to 10,000 tons but no other major fleet units.

Practical Pointers On Home Problems

Aside from the lesson in bed-making, hospital-style, which is better practiced and observed than explained, and some practical psysiological instruction, the first lesson of a Red Cross course of instruction in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick —more familiarly termed 'Home Nursing'—offers some very practical pointers.

Do you know that the sun is the only natural disinfectant?

That sheets should be at least one yard longer and wider than the bed?

That fish-oil soap is excellent for cleaning furniture?

That if you flex your knees when lifting, it will take some of the strain off your back muscles?

And there is a certain way to fold sheets and blankets that makes for speed, efficiency and little fuss in making a bed. But as this technique, which would come in mighty handy when you're doing up the laundry and the beds at home—is also better seen than explained, look for a Home Nursing student to show you how.

A river has its stages of development, youth, maturity and old age. In the early stage a river drains imperfectly; as valleys are deepened, the drainage improves, so that in maturity the total drainage area is large and the rate of erosion high. Old age is reached when wide flats have developed and the bordering lands have been brought low.

Even if we give ship for ship, we win. We can replace ours and the Japs can't.

Charleroi Flier Killed In Crash

Flier Slated For Membership In Eagle Squadron Of R. A. F. Meets Death

(International News Service)

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 13.—The famed eagle squadron of Britain's royal air force lost a potential member-pilot today in the death of 30-year-old John M. Toth, of Charleroi, who was killed late yesterday when his four-passenger plane crashed about a mile from the local airport.

Toth, a Charleroi grocer, had passed the required examinations and had been scheduled to leave for the west coast for further training in a few weeks. He had been credited with about 400 hours flying time.

A resident of the neighborhood found Toth's wrecked plane late yesterday and notified the airport Indications were that he had died instantly.

LUCRATIVE FUR TRAPPING

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG—Fur trapping is a million-dollar industry in Pennsylvania with industry in Pennsylvania with indications it will remain a lucrative source of revenue for hundreds of trappers, at least until the end of the war. Trappers, most of them were boys ranging in age from 10 to 18 years, last year sold $876,000 worth of skins used in milady's coats. The state is taking precautions to protect its fur bearing resources.

Eye-Witness Accounts Of U. S. Fleet Attack Upon Japanese Island Bases

able ship targets were found there, and 20 Japanese vessels were terrifically bombarded.

Ships Are Sunk

Those sunk or totally destroyed included one modern cruiser, two submarines, one yawata class liner (16,500 tons), three fleet oilers and one cargo vessel. Several others were damaged to an undetermined degree.

Our ships scored 22 direct large bomb hits. At Roi, located on the northern tip of Kwajalein, an air base was heavily bombed and its hangars destroyed. One hangar blew up mysteriously. A modern village of considerable size, apparently headquarters for the military personnel, was bombed and destruction was considerable. All military installations and all hangars were destroyed and shore batteries silenced.

Simultaneously at the Island of Wotje, American fliers strafed hangars, a radio tower and shore facilities, including boats. The warships then moved in and shelled nine Japanese vessels anchored in the lagoon. When the smoke had cleared, only two were visible and both were heavily damaged.

Destroy Bombers

At Taroa in the Maleplap Atoll, our fleet found a large number of multi-engined bombers and a squadron of fighting planes on a modern and well-developed air base. One flight leader estimated the number at 42. They were bombed and 35 were destroyed.

When the battle ended, seven enemy planes were still functioning. They attempted reprisals but got nowhere. The United States forces completely destroyed two hangars, the administration building and the radio station, while the air field was torn up.

Jaluit, capital of the mandated Islands, was simultaneously attacked. The administration building, storehouses and the radio station were bombed and strafed by our planes. It is assumed that damage was severe.

In the attack on Mili Island, also in the Marshall group, no surface craft or shore facilities were observed. On one island of the Atoll a swath freshly cut through a cocoanut palm grove indicated possible plans to build a landing field. There was no other indication of previous activity.

Our aviators dropped bombs, while another attacking unit pounded on Makin Island in the Gilbert group. Makin had been occupied by the Japanese since December 7. The objectives found were one auxillary and two four-engined patrol bombers at anchor. Our dive-bombers made several hits on the auxiliary and set the vessel afire.

When last seen she was in a sinking condition. Both four-engined bombers were destroyed during the strafing.

There was no ship bombardment at Makin because the place had no shore facilities.

U. S. Losses Slight

American losses in this grand scale attack were comparatively slight. The operation was sweet revenge for the treacherous Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

A navy spokesman who witnessed the battle said:

"The blow to the Japanese was extremely heavy. They hadn't the faintest dream they'd be attacked that morning.

"Realizing they had been caught napping, the Japs engaged in fanatical aerial pursuit after the battle, evidently feeling they had to do something to retrieve themselves."

Significance of the attack lies in the serious crippling of most strategic bases in a manner which it is believed will hamper vital enemy operations in almost the whole mid-Pacific area. The degree of surprise almost equalled the surprise at Pearl Harbor.

A spokesman disclosed that our coordinated force struck simultaneously in the various islands at 6:58 a. m. at selected locations where the Japanese for years have been making military installations with utmost secrecy.

At Roi in Kwajalein, he said, the fleet found an excellent air base and a modern village as well as an impressive causeway between two small islands. The air base, paved runways and hangars were modern. During bombardments one of the hangars blew up with "an amazing and puzzling explosion," which may have been due to the fact the hangar contained planes armed with bombs or stores of gas.

Fires Started

Fires were started in the Japanese military headquarters area at Roi. Fuel and ammunition dumps were set ablaze before Japanese planes took to the air to meet our onslaught.

"We think they lost six fighters in the air and an undetermined number on the ground," the navy spokesman said. "We lost four planes."

On the south portion of Kwajalein United States planes located approximately 20 ships anchored. They included one modern cruiser, one old cruiser, between 5 and 7 submarines and the Yawata class liner as well as three fleet oilers, each of a 10,000-ton type, and miscellaneous repair and supply ships and converted merchant ships.

Moored at a small nearby island were two four-engined patrol seaplanes. On Kwajalein proper was a large modern compound containing half a dozen good-sized buildings. All these target were attacked. Direct bomb hits were scored on various ships, destroying about a dozen of them. The compound was demolished and both seaplanes sunk.

The navy spoeksman said that a number of United States planes were lost in the Kwajalein attack "which was met by an extremely heavy but inaccurate anti-aircraft fire from ships and from the shore."

Direct Hits Made

Two hours after the first attack, a second assault with aerial torpedoes was made by the United States force and at least five more direct hits were made on the larger ships. A sea of oil was observed as the Japanese crews abandoned the vessels.

At Wotje, an air field was found with two hangars and the usual appurtances but there were no planes either on land or over the sea. Our fliers strafed the hangars, the radio towers and shore facilities and then cleared to allow the main bombardment attack by ships.

From seven to nine Japanese vessels anchored in the lagoon were bombarded fiercely. Four of five of these ships were of the 5,000-ton merchant type while the remainder were smaller, apparently mine sweepers or mine layers. The fleet poured in shells and when the smoke cleared up only two ships were visible above the surface. One was beached and heavily damaged and the other apparently was sinking.

All hangars were destroyed and a large fuel storage and munition dump set ablaze. Ship bombardment previously had silenced all shore batteries.

Our attacking fleet found a formidable Japanese air force at Taroa in the Maloelap atoll. Taroa was bombed in the same manner as Wotje. United States vessels engaged in this bombardment were later subjected to heavy horizontal and dive-bomber attacks. One American ship sustained minor damage from a hit by a light bomb.

In the whole attack there was superficial damage to one other United States ship. Upon withdrawal of the United States force, the Japanese made two reprisal bombing attacks with an American carrier as their objective. The navy spokesman said that one attack made by five bombers "was driven home with such ferocity as to indicate desperation."

Bombing Attack

The Japanese delivered a glide bombing attack at high speed in close formation, dropping about 20 heavy bombs in a salvo. Our combat patrols damaged one of the five pursuers during the enemy's approach. The engine of the Japanese plane caught fire, and the pilot turned to try and make a suicide crash on the carrier's deck. He did succeed in striking the deck near the edge where his plane disintegraded and went over into the ocean.

The carrier meanwhile had turned a hose of fire on the inrushing Jap. Others on his plane were dead on the way in and the pilot was killed before his craft hit the deck. A small fire had been started on the carrier by one earlier near bomb miss but was quickly extinguished. A second plane in this group of pursuers was shot down by anti-aircraft guns.

Reprisal Attack.

Another Jap reprisal attack came a short time later. Two enemy bombers made a conventional high altitude level bombing attack from the sun. Their aim was inaccurate but the carrier avoid the salvo by a maneuver. One of the planes was hit by anti-aircraft but was not seen to crash, while the other was shot down in flames in sight of our ships.

United States fighter planes, the spokesman said, are "much faster and more heavily gunned" than the Japanese. Not a single American plane was lost in the combat, while 10 of 16 Japanese planes shot down out of the air were fighters and the others bombers.

Severe storms hampered the United States unit which attacked Jaluit. The attackers encountered a low ceiling, heavy tropical squalls, lightning and poor visibility, so it was practically impossible to fly over in tight formation. As they neared Jaluit even more severe storms broke, forcing many fliers to make a landfall approach on instruments.

The bombing of Jaluit was conducted at low altitudes due to this severe weather. American fliers detected in Jaluit harbor two auxiliary vessels of from 7,000 to 10,000 tons but no other major fleet units.

Oh, for the good old days when popeye could think of funnier things than eating spinach and socking somebody.

The swordfish is known to attain a speed of approximately 60 miles an hour.

Annual Meeting Takes Place In Rooms Of Agricultural Extension Association

Lawrence County Potato Growers had their annual meeting in the rooms f the Lawrence County Agricultural Extension Association, Post Office Building, on Thursday, with a good representation present.

Officers elected were: C. B. Patton, president, Hickory township; David Byler, vice president, Mahoning township; Glenn Patterson secretary and treasurer, Hickory township. Other directors named were L. K. X. McCreary, Hickory township; Fred Lusk, Wilmington township, Lauren Thompson, Wilmington township; and R. J. Drake, of Scott township.

J. B. R. Dickey, crop and soils specialist of Pennsylvania State College was present and discussed various problems of the potato grower.

Practical Pointers On Home Problems

Aside from the lesson in bedmaking, hospital-style, which is better practiced and observed than explained, and some practical psysiological instruction, the first lesson of a Red Cross course of instruction in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick—more familiarly termed 'Home Nursing'—offers some very practical pointers.

Do you know that the sun is the only natural disinfectant?

That sheets should be at least one yard longer and wider than the bed?

That fish-oil soap is excellent for cleaning furniture?

That if you flex your knees when lifting, it will take some of the strain off your back muscles?

And there is a certain way to fold sheets and blankets that makes for speed, efficiency and little fuss in making a bed. But as this technique, which would come in mighty handy when you're doing up the laundry and the beds at home—is also better seen than explained, look for a Home Nursing student to show you how.

A river has its stages of development, youth, maturity and old age. In the early stage a river drains imperfectly: as valleys are deepened, the drainage improves, so that in maturity the total drainage area is large and the rate of erosion high. Old age is reached when wide flats have developed and the bordering lands have been brought low.

Even if we give ship for ship, we win. We can replace ours and the Japs can't.

Toth, a Charleroi grocer, had passed the required examinations and had been scheduled to leave for the west coast for further training in a few weeks. He had been credited with about 400 hours flying time.

A resident of the neighborhood found Toth's wrecked plane late yesterday and notified the airport. Indications were that he had died instantly.

Indications For Fair Season For Maple Sugar Yield

(Special To The News)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 13.—Every indication points to a fair season for maple sugar and syrup this year, W. E. Montgomery, Chief of the Bureau of Management, Department of Forests and Waters, said today. The rationing of cane sugar may result in an increased demand for the sweet products made from the sap of sugar maple trees.

In Pennsylvania last year 411,000 trees were tapped and produced 82,000 gallons of syrup and 25,000 pounds of sugar. In the event of favorable conditions there will be a decidedly increase in the quantities produced during the current year.

Timeliness of tapping and harvesting has much to do with the quality and quantity of the yield of sap. The sugar water is present in the trees only during the winter and early spring and the best flavored and sweeter sap is usually obtained early in the season. Ideal days for heavy sap flow occur when the temperature drops below freezing during the night and rises twenty to thirty degrees in the daytime.

The several species of maple that are native to Pennsylvania will yield sap which can be converted into maple syrup or sugar but generally hard or sugar maple is the best producer. Experiments show that on an average soft maple will only produce two-thirds as much sap and this sap contains only two-thirds as much sugar as the sap from hard maple trees. Maple sugar sap on the average contains about three per cent sugar but many trees have a content as low as one per cent and some as high as ten per cent. A sound maple tree can be counted on to give from one to seven pounds of sugar per season and from one pint to one gallon of syrup.

It is estimated that there are approximately 140 million hard maple trees with diameters of four inches and above within the State. Counties that lead in the production of maple syrup and sugar are Somerset, Wayne, Erie, Crawford, Tioga, Bradford, Potter Susquehanna, Warren, Mercer, Sullivan and McKean.

Records show that fully one-quarter of the entire maple sugar crop of the United States is used by the tobacco industry. At the present time, owing to the restrictions on sugar, trained chemists are trying to find a substitute which is more readily available and less expensive. They are also working on maple concentrates in the manufacture of ice cream, dessert powder, maple jelly and maple beverages.

Report Harman To Be Candidate For Governor

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 13.—William H. Harman, of Philadelphia, will run for the Republican nomination for governor in the May 19 primary with the support of the Insurgent G. O. P. new guard, it was disclosed today by a new guard leader.

Harman is expected to make a formal statement of his political intentions within a few days, asking for the backing of party independents and regulars alike.

The disclosure of Harman's plans to seek the governorship came as state Republican organization leaders received assurances that Major General Edward Martin, former commander of the 28th Division soon will be available as their candidate for governor.

Harman, 53, and vice president in charge of sales for the Baldwin Southwark Corporation, locomotive manufacturers, was leader of the Willkie club movement in Pennsylvania in the 1940 presidential campaign.

War Tempo Will Be Reflected In '42 Shoe Styles

(International News Service)

ST. LOUIS—The styles and colors for women's 1942 footwear will manifest the war tempo of the day, St. Louis shoe manufacturers agreed as they prepared for the new season.

Colors will be bright, vivid and confidence-inspiring. Reds, greens, and pastel creams will top the list.

Styles will also reflect the change in times. High-heeled shoes will be higher than ever before, it was said, while low-heeled models, with an eye toward the demands of women's voluntary service organizations, will reach new depths in day-ong comfort.

One of the leading 1942 models, according to St. Louis shoe men, will be the "casual" shoe, which will be shown chiefly in low heels. The "casual", perhaps because of the defense demands now being placed on women, is predicted to be the "all-out" favorite during the year.

The women's "spectator" shoe is also due for its full share of glory, it was predicted. This model will come in a wide range of colors. Some will be pumps, some will be ties, and some will be straps. The spectator will come in both high and low heels.

Cannot Recognize Criminals On Sight

CLEVELAND.—Should policemen be able to recognize on sight the most notorious criminals in the city?

The Civil Service Commission says "yes."

Some of 19 high-ranking police officers, including 16 captains, said "no."

The commission, in a recent promotional examination, gave the officers 20 picturues of Cleveland's most notorious public enemies to identify.

Almost all of the officers failed miserably on this part of the test, which carried a weight of five on the examination. Several appeared before the commission to protest that the question was "unfair and unreasonable."

After an hour's hearing the commission ruled that the question was "entirely fair and entirely proper," and that similar questions will continue to be part of the examination for officers seeking promotion.

Not a single one of the 19 who took the examination recognized the picture of Howard Graves, jewel robber recently convicted and sentenced to prison.

Eighteen of the 19 failed to recognize the picture of Jay Shaw, a notorious confidence man.

Eighteen also failed to recognize Albert Stockley, a safe blower, and 16 missed Albert Basey, another yeggman.

Eleven did not know Louis Finkelstein, most notorious pickpocket in Cleveland; 17 did not know George Sticker, and 15 missed Sam Colby, both well known practitioners of the light-fingered art.

Thirteen did not know Julia Berede, said to be the foremost shoplifter in the city.

Fourteen did not recognize Sam Papalardo, who has the reputation of being the outstanding tire thief in this section.

Thirteen failed on William Hoge, one of the leading policy operators of Cleveland.

Seven did not know Alex (Shonder) Birns, racketeer, who has been arrested or taken in custody for questioning dozens of times.

(Special To The News)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 13.—Every indication points to a fair season for maple sugar and syrup this year, W. E. Montgomery, Chief of the Bureau of Management, Department of Forests and Waters, said today. The rationing of cane sugar may result in an increased demand for the sweet products made from the sap of sugar maple trees.

In Pennsylvania last year 411,000 trees were tapped and produced 82,000 gallons of syrup and 25,000 pounds of sugar. In the event of favorable conditions there will be a decidedly increase in the quantities produced during the current year.

Timeliness of tapping and harvesting has much to do with the quality and quantity of the yield of sap. The sugar water is present in the trees only during the winter and early spring and the best flavored and sweeter sap is usually obtained early in the season. Ideal days for heavy sap flow occur when the temperature drops below freezing during the night and rises twenty to thirty degrees in the daytime.

The several species of maple that are native to Pennsylvania will yield sap which can be converted into maple syrup or sugar but generally hard or sugar maple is the best producer. Experiments show that on an average soft maple will only produce two-thirds as much sap and this sap contains only two-thirds as much sugar as the sap from hard maple trees. Maple sugar sap on the average contains about three per cent sugar but many trees have a content as low as one per cent and some as high as ten per cent. A sound maple tree can be counted on to give from one to seven pounds of sugar per season and from one pint to one gallon of syrup.

It is estimated that there are approximately 140 million hard maple trees with diameters of four inches and above within the State. Counties that lead in the production of maple syrup and sugar are Somerset, Wayne, Erie, Crawford, Tioga, Bradford, Potter Susquehanna, Warren, Mercer, Sullivan and McKean.

Records show that fully one-quarter of the entire maple sugar crop of the United States is used by the tobacco industry. At the present time, owing to the restrictions on sugar, trained chemists are trying to find a substitute which is more readily available and less expensive. They are also working on maple concentrates in the manufacture of ice cream, dessert powder, maple jelly and maple beverages.

Report Harman To Be Candidate For Governor

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 13.—William H. Harman, of Philadelphia, will run for the Republican nomination for governor in the May 19 primary with the support of the Insurgent G. O. P. new guard, it was disclosed today by a new guard leader.

Harman is expected to make a formal statement of his political intentions within a few days, asking for the backing of party independents and regulars alike.

The disclosure of Harman's plans to seek the governorship came as state Republican organization leaders received assurances that Major General Edward Martin, former commander of the 28th Division, soon will be available as their candidate for governor.

Harman, 53, and vice president in charge of sales for the Baldwin Southwark Corporation, locomotive manufacturers, was leader of the Willkie club movement in Pennsylvania in the 1940 presidential campaign.

Use Safety Devices Bus Head Urges

Riding A Bus Is Like Riding A Ship, Superintendent Moore Reports

DRIVERS INTERESTED IN SAFE OPERATION

There is a difference in the operation of street cars and motor buses for passenger service and persons who ride the new buses should take advantage of safety devices, especially if standing, General Manager Thomas C. Moore of the S. V. T. company said today.

The old type of transportation, street cars, was upon a fixeed track and could start with a smooth flow of power and likewise stop evenly so that persons could stand in a street car without holding to a strap or grab rail without feeling their security of standing was unsafe.

Hold To Something

However, with a bus it is wise to hold on, either to the grabrail fixed in the roof of the bus or to the rail which is fixed on the rear of each seat since it provides more security while standing when the bus is in operation, the bus executive explained.

A bus is flexible and can be moved from either the right or left of the driver and since it moves at the whim of the driver who is in a secure seat, it may appear to be roughly handled when as a matter of fact, the person in the bus, if he swayed with the motion would feel as secure as the driver, Moore added.

"The sensible thing, of course, is to hold onto a stancion or other means provided so that quick stops or starts are taken up" much the same as the slack in anything that gives locomottion.

Moore explained that "if you ever have been on a ship, the first thing noticed is the roll from side to side. That is the difference between street cars and buses. Make yourself secure and it will be no time until you feel just as safe and comfortable in the new buses as you formerly did on street cars" he asserted.

Moore declared that none of the bus drivers want to see people fall. They are keen students of safety and are striving with all their endeavor to see that patrons are not injured while using bus service.

Miners Defy Superstition

Enter Mine Shaft In Pittsburgh Area To Battle Fire Hazards

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 13.—Today many people, to prove their utter disregard for superstition, will endure all types of nonsense but to a crew of Pittsburgh Coal company miners, Friday the 13th is just another work day—and a hazardous one at that.

Early this morning, this superstition-defying crew slid quietly thru a safety door to lock themselves in the Montour No. 10 mine shaft which is filled with deadly gases. They were fully equipped with oxygen helmets. The miners plan to remain until they are absolutely certain that a mine fire there is extinguished.

R. H. Nicholas, chief safety inspector of the coal company, said the fire, discovered two months ago, was caused by an electrical short circuit, started in a mine car loaded with coal.

Mining engineers have disclosed that great quantities of methane and carbon monoxide gases have accumulated in the sealed-off area since the blaze began.

In preparation for their entry, the crew first constructed a safety door outside the first seal. Equipped with breathing apparatus, they entered this lock, then broke the sealed entrance to the gas-filled interior.

Once inside, they are left to themselves and they are supposeed to go over the entire shaft to make certain that the fire no longer exists. If, in their opinion, it is safe to open the mine, the ventilating system will be turned on to blow the gas from the shaft.

All this on Friday the 13th.

Strong Guard For President At Ceremonies

President Places Wreath At Base Of Lincoln's Statue On Thursday

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13—Bayonets glistened across the broad approaches to the Lincoln Memorial Thursday as President Roosevelt paid tribute to the Great Emancipator.

A strong, helmeted honor—and protective—guard was drawn up as the president stood before the beautiful edifice with head bared while his military aide, Col. Horace B. Smith, ascended the steps and laid a wreath at the base of Lincoln's statue.

The Army band from the Army War College rendered the Star Spangled Banner and heads of patriotic organizations forming a color guard stood at attention.

The president made the short journey from the White House to the Lincoln Memorial by auto. A Secret Service car preceded him, two more followed, and the small cavalcade was flanked by motorcycle police.

A few war and navy department employes on lunch hour rushed to the curbstone to wave as the president went by. Otherwise, the annual ceremony was unnoticed by the general public.

MRS. GEARY ABLE TO LEAVE HOSPITAL

Mrs. Howard Geary of Highland avenue has returned to her home from the Jameson Memorial hospital where she has been undergoing treatment for injuries received in an automobile accident while en route to New York City.

Mrs. Geary suffered a broken leg and fracture of the collar bone, the full extent of her injuries not being discovered until she came to the hospital here for treatment after completing her trip. She will be confined to her home for some time yet.

Insurance Men Enjoy Banquet

Gather At Zelienople On Thursday Evening—Wives And Guests Included

As a climax to progress of the past two years since establishment, members of the Knights Life Insurance company and their wives and guests, enjoyed their annual banquet, Thursday evening, in Zelienople.

Preceding the meal, the group sang, "America," "God Bless America," and "Star Spangled Banner," led by William H. Drake with William C. Ley at the piano. At 7 o'clock, a full course chicken dinner was served in an efficient manner, following grace by E. B. Emery.

District superintendent from the local office, Anthony N. Carbon, made the opening remarks, outlining briefly the accomplishments of the company within the past two years, and commented upon the fine record achieved.

Edward B. Emery, toastmaster for the evening was introduced, and the speaker's program followed. William C. Ley, vice-president and director of agencies of Pittsburgh, told in an interesting manner methods used by good salesmen and complimented the company on its achievement.

Dr. John P. Prioletti, local medical examiner, gave interesting remarks about his work as a physician in connection with the company. William H. Drake, assistant district superintendent, made fitting remarks at this time. The principal speaker, David D. Valiensi, spoke on "Salesmanship". Mr. Valiensi cited a few of his experiences in the line of selling, and the methods used for this work.

As an added feature on the program, Sergeant John L. Dean, U S Marine Corps Recruiting officer, spoke about the marine corps, and the spirit of the boys in service. Motion pictures were shown of training received by the marine corps recruits, and of the fine work accomplished by this great fighting group of the United States.

Special guests present on this occasion included: Srg. and Mrs. John L. Dean, William C. Ley, Mr. and Mrs. David D. Valiensi, Dr. and Mrs. John P. Prioletti, Mrs. Albert Hartshorne, Mrs. Marie Jones, Dorothy Gilmaugh, Mary Kenehan, Madeline Venditto and Palma Julian, the latter of "The News."

Those in charge and responsible for the success of the event are Anthony N. Carbon, general chairman, and Angelo T. Venditto, John K. Peterson and Clarence W. Hamill.

Speed Enrolment In Nursing Corps

First Reserve Must Contain 50,000 Nurses, Red Cross Is Informed

Since the outbreak of war the rate of enrollment in the First Reserve of American Red Cross Nurses has increased 400 per cent, Mrs. J. Glenn Berry, chairman of home nursing in Lawrence County Chapter announced.

The Red Cross First Reserve now totals 25,700. In addition, there are 43,400 nurses in the Second Reserve.

Registrations of First Reserve nurses totaled 1,620 in January as compared to 1,231 in December. Enrollments in November totaled only 357. Enrollments in a single day have reached as high as 250.

"The response of the nurses in America has been magnificent." "The Nursing Service of the American Red Cross is charged by the Act of Congress of April 23, 1908, with the responsibility for maintaining First Reserve Nurses who are called as needed for active duty with the army and navy.

This enrollment of Red Cross nurses has become very important since our country is at war.

In a conference held recently with Major Julia O. Flikke, Superintendent, Army Nurse Corps, and Miss Sue S. Dauser, Superintendent Navy Nurse Corps, the Red Cross was told there must be at least a First Reserve of 50,000 to take care of the greatly enlarged army and navy forces of our country.

Congressman Says U. S. Must Make People Realize Situation

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 — Rep. Sumners (D) Tex., veteran chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, today told the house that "we're getting licked in this war and we must make the people realize it."

The statement came in the midst of Lincoln Day addresses on the floor with members pleading for national unity in the present emergency.

"There is no solidifying influence like a common danger and the sooner the people realize how bad times are the better," Sumners said.

"In the past wars we have had those who condemned and [illegible] to further their own ambitions. [illegible] cords are written in the black pages of our history. Let us not let that history repeat itself.

New Wilmington Community Increase Previous Quota Is Promise

WAR RELIEF FUND IS SWELLED DAILY

Each day brings many splendid contributions to the Lawrence county chapter's $52,000 war relief fund, being raised for national and local war relief activities.

Chairman W. Filmore Campbell of New Wilmington stated that the New Wilmington quota will be increased, to date $614 having been turned over to the chapter fund.

Results of the canvass in the different wards of the city reveal that the second ward leads with $1,829, with $262 from the third ward, $615 from the fourth ward, $301 from the seventh ward and $400 from the eighth ward. These figures are approximate, but within a few dollars.

New Castle post office employes gave $47 and the Big Beaver Grange Ladies club $10.

While contributions to the fund will still be accepted, it is believed that the active canvass will be concluded in the near future.

After War Living Conditions Given Babson's Attention

By ROGER W. BABSON

(Copyright—1942—Publishers Financial Bureau, Inc.)

BABSON PARK, Fla., Feb. 13.—I have recently been studying the catalogs of colleges—especially those for women. I find the inclusion of certain first aid and other war courses; but otherwise the subjects covered are the same as if no war existed. I find almost no courses—other than secretarial — which prepare students to secure an income for themselves after the war.

BABSON

What Are Colleges Teaching?

When talking with college presidents they ask me why I am so anxious about what will happen to the students after the war is over. Some say: "Our task is to get the students to register and to graduate them. The girls will get married and the boys will be drafted—so why worry?" They also complain that gifts are falling off, the income from endowments is declining and they simply cannot afford to take on any new instrucotrs or experiment with new courses.

All the above may be true, but I am sure that if college presidents realize the terrific changes which our young people are to face after World War II they will find some way to help them. Just as our youths were allowed to think America was preparing "for defense—short of war" and then were to be drafted "for only one year" and under no circumstances "would be sent out of the country", these same young people are now being lulled into a happy dream as to economic conditions after the war. Only six months ago I was told at Washington "we can lick Japan with our hands tied behind our backs". May we not now be getting similar false ideas as to what Japan and Germany will do to us industrially after we lick them in a military way?

After-War Conditions

I now have no fears of Communism or Naziism. The so-called capitalistic system will continue; stocks and bonds will not be wiped out. The government may take over banking and certain other big industries; but more new privately-owned industries will rise up to take their places. But taxes on stocks and bonds may be terrible. Those who expect to live on the interest of what they inherit may get a very sad surprise. Other people—the so-called middle class—will be crushed by inflation caused by the huge government debt that this country will have after World War II.

The above means that—married or single—almost every woman reader will be obliged to earn some money if she hopes to maintain her present standard of living. And why not? Our great-great-grandmothers raised large families of children without any conveniences and yet earned considerable money to help out their husbands' meager income. It might have been by weaving or sewing, or by tending other people's children, or by nursing the sick, or by helping tend her husband's store, or by having hens and pigs or hives of bees of her own.

The Fittest Will Survive

For not many years after World War II will women have either money to take bridge lessons or time to play bridge! A few years of "prosperity" will follow during the reconstruction period; but after that—look out! Those who have some enterprise and are good workers will enjoy a fair standard of living; but those who expect to live lives of ease will be greatly disappointed. The days of playboys and glamour girls will be over. Once more the Bible doctrine that "those who do not work shall not eat" (see II Thess. 3:10) will again be the good old rule; it is the law by which civilization grew. The fittest will survive, reproduce and be happy, but God help the rest!

Our nation is to be burdened by a terrific debt which will raise havoc with every family whether the debt is paid or defaulted. If it is paid, we all will be crushed by high taxes; if it is redeemed with newly printed money, we all will suffer from high prices; while if it is defaulted, then "good night" for our banks and insurance companies which now are the principal holders of these bonds. Employment, except at low wages will be very difficult due to the terrible competition which is coming from Europe and Asia after the war is over. We can disarm our enemies; but we can't prevent them from working 12 hours a day at 10 cents a day and underselling us in all world and many domestic markets.

Watch Your Children's Educations

I am constantly being asked, "What can we parents do to prepare for such events?". My answer is: "Have all your children get a useful education. Have even the girls learn some trade, art or profession by which they can help out their husband's income or "pinch-hit' for him if he is out of work or ill. Never mind if these girls don't get a college 'degree'. State university degrees are pretty to look at; but they are too stiff to eat, too small for clothes and too frail for shingling the roof!"

Civilian Defense Courses At State

Students Are Given Short Courses As Aid In Wartime Defense Work

(Special To The News)

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Feb. 13.—Including courses in the solution of coded messages, a school for air raid wardens, and instruction in incendiary bomb control, the Pennsylvania State college has announced that 21 non-credit short courses are now under way as part of its "Student Training for Civilian Defense" program.

According to M. T. Bunnell, who is serving as co-ordinator for the program, all of the courses are being taught by members of the faculty here. At least 28 other courses will be offered to students this month, he said.

More than 2000 Penn State students last month signified their intention of enrolling in the defense courses which range from six to twelve weeks in length with classes meeting once or twice a week after the regular academic work has been completed.

The entire program of approximately 50 courses will be designed to fit studnts for leadership in defense programs after they return to their home communities. For those who will serve in the armed forces, pre-induction training has been offered.

William S. Hoffman, registrar, will teach the course in decoding messages. The preparation of cryptograms and the solving of coded messages have long been Registrar Hoffman's hobby.

Other courses in addition to those already mentioned are:

Farm tractor operation and maintenance; public opinion and propaganda; home nursing; defense forum techniques; mental hygiene and morale; mechanics for the home front; American Red Cross standard nutrition course; automatic weapons; company administration; personnel work; aptitude testing; map reading; rifle marksmanship and musketry; scouting, patrolling, and extended order drill.. soldier without arms and manual of arms; camp counseling; and waitress training and commercial food positions.

How to make Pillsbury's

Self-frosted Chocolate Honey Cookies

The Army and Navy will fight over these!

Complete recipe:

Recipe makes 4 dozen delicious nut-studded, chocolate-covered cookies. Give the boys a treat! Send "cookies from home!"

1. Sift 2½ c. Enriched Pillsbury's Best Flour once, measure; add 2 tsps. baking powder (or 1 tsp. double-acting), ¼ tsp. soda, ½ tsp. salt, and ¼ tsp. cinnamon; sift twice. (Two B-vitamins and iron are added to Pillsbury's Best, with no change in flavor, color, or baking quality.) 2. Cream ¾ c. shortening and ½ c. strained honey together. Add 1 c. sugar gradually; beat until light. 3. Add 3 eggs well beaten; beat thoroughly. 4. Add 2 sqs. (2 ozs.) unsweetened chocolate, melted and cooled, ¾ c. chopped walnuts; and 1 tsp. vanilla; blend well. 5. Add dry ingredients gradually; mix well. (Pillsbury's Best blends so perfectly—gives you such fluffy, velvety batter—that you'll agree it's your best choice for cookies. It's just as good for all your baking—it's BAKE-PROVED! Each hour during milling samples are tested for creamy, appetizing color. And rigid baking tests are made 4 to 6 times daily.) 6. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto greased baking sheet, allow room to spread. 7. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) about 4 min. Sprinkle tops of cookies generously with ½ c. grated sweet baking chocolate. Return to oven; continue baking about 8 min. longer, or until done. Let cookies get completely cold and frosting firm before filling the cookie jar or packing for mailing. Self-frosted Chocolate Honey Cookies are just the right size and shape for packing. And they stay fresh longer! For two reasons—first, the recipe calls for honey; second, the recipe calls for Pillsbury's Best—and the same qualities in this superb flour that give you fine, even grain and tender texture also help your baked foods retain their oven freshness! Get Pillsbury's Best from your grocer today—you'll find you can depend on it to protect your baking success every time you bake.

Use Safety Devices Bus Head Urges

DRIVERS INTERESTED IN SAFE OPERATION

There is a difference in the operation of street cars and motor buses for passenger service and persons who ride the new buses should take advantage of safety devices, especially if standing, General Manager Thomas C. Moore of the S. V. T. company said today.

The old type of transportation, street cars, was upon a fixeed track and could start with a smooth flow of power and likewise stop evenly so that persons could stand in a street car without holding to a strap or grab rail without feeling their security of standing was unsafe.

Hold To Something

However, with a bus it is wise to hold on, either to the grabrail fixed in the roof of the bus or to the rail which is fixed on the rear of each seat since it provides more security while standing when the bus is in operation, the bus executive explained.

A bus is flexible and can be moved from either the right or left of the driver and since it moves at the whim of the driver who is in a secure seat, it may appear to be roughly handled when as a matter of fact, the person in the bus, if he swayed with the motion would feel as secure as the driver, Moore added.

"The sensible thing, of course, is to hold onto a stancion or other means provided so that quick stops or starts are taken up" much the same as the slack in anything that gives locomottion.

Moore explained that "if you ever have been on a ship, the first thing noticed is the roll from side to side. That is the difference between street cars and buses. Make yourself secure and it will be no time until you feel just as safe and comfortable in the new buses as you formerly did on street cars" he asserted.

Moore declared that none of the bus drivers want to see people fall. They are keen students of safety and are striving with all their endeavor to see that patrons are not injured while using bus service.

Miners Defy Superstition

Enter Mine Shaft In Pittsburgh Area To Battle Fire Hazards

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 13.—Today many people, to prove their utter disregard for superstition, will endure all types of nonsense but to a crew of Pittsburgh Coal company miners, Friday the 13th is just another work day—and a hazardous one at that.

Early this morning, this superstition-defying crew slid quietly thru a safety door to lock themselves in the Montour No. 10 mine shaft which is filled with deadly gases. They were fully equipped with oxygen helmets. The miners plan to remain until they are absolutely certain that a mine fire there is extinguished.

R. H. Nicholas, chief safety inspector of the coal company, said the fire, discovered two months ago, was caused by an electrical short circuit, started in a mine car loaded with coal.

Mining engineers have disclosed that great quantities of methane and carbon monoxide gases have accumulated in the sealed-off area since the blaze began.

In preparation for their entry, the crew first constructed a safety door outside the first seal. Equipped with breathing apparatus, they entered this lock, then broke the sealed entrance to the gas-filled interior.

Once inside, they are left to themselves and they are supposed to go over the entire shaft to make certain that the fire no longer exists. If, in their opinion, it is safe to open the mine, the ventilating system will be turned on to blow the gas from the shaft.

All this on Friday the 13th.

Census criminal statistics show that murder is the only charge in which conviction is uniformly followed by a prison or death sentence, even though the jury may convict of a lesser crime than first degree murder. Other crimes often result in parole or suspended sentence.

Titans Aim To Win Six Remaining Games

Play Brooklyn In New York Monday; Dunmire Top Scorer With 146 Points

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Feb. 13.—With one aim in mind—to tomahawk their remaining half dozen foes — Westminster college's well regimented cagers are drilling rigorously for the arduous job ahead.

The Titans, winners of 12 clashes out of 15, parade before the fastidious New York press on next Monday night, unfurling their technique against that of Brooklyn college, amid the colorful setting of famed Madison Square Garden.

The passers from the precincts housing 'dem bums" have enjoyed only fair success thus far. But, the calibre of opposition has been strictly 1A. In the Metropolitan league, embracing St. Francis, Long Island, N. Y. U., C. C. N. Y., only to mention a few, the Brooks have dropped three decisions this season.

Westminster will have to concentrate on stopping Hirsch, fourth best scorer in New York. The Brooklynite has tossed 144 points.

Drill Today, Saturday

The Washabaughmen will workout Friday and Saturday, endeavoring to knit an impregnable defense to stymie Brooklyn's offensive thrusts. Joe Spak, injured in a recent scrimmage, has regained his form, adding a bit of sunshine to the situation.

Following the Brooklyn skirmish, Westminster moves over to Philadelphia to meet another major eastern foe, Villanova college. The Philly cagers sidetracked Duquesne university Wednesday night.

Dale "Smokey" Dunmire leads the Titan scorers thus far with 146 of the 801 points arched by the localites. "Buzz" Ridl comes next with 128 points, followed by Lee Fox and Stan Wasik with 119 and 118 respectively.

By raining 801 points through the cords, the Titans today top all other Pennsylvania collegiate teams. Westminster is in the thick of the scramble for Pennsylvania title honors, too.

Individual scoring record thus far:

Player	Gms.	Pts.	Avg.
D. Dunmire	15	146	9.7
Ridl	15	128	8.5
Fox	15	119	7.9
Wasik	15	118	7.8

FAIR OR FOUL

By LAWTON CARVER

INS Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Because he sees all, knows all and, with proper persuasion will tell all to help you get up a piece for the papers, Mr. Bill Brandt is quoted occasionally and relied upon often to fill these dispatches, and he hereby is being credited an assist today. He dropped all other work, answered no phones, missed his lunch and ran himself out of pencils and energy to help me arrive at this conclusion, as follows:

Of all the National League clubs, none will be able to come up with three rookies who will match the three standouts being taken south by the St. Louis Cardinals.

Dodgers Or Cardinals

Head of the National League Service Bureau and, therefore, an impartial gatherer of facts, figures and fancies, Mr. Brandt doesn't necessarily join in the conclusion. He merely helped me get it. Without his assistance beyond the use of information he made available, I gather the notion strictly on my own subject to change that the National League race again will be a two-team struggle between the Dodgers and those Cardinals with the latter boasting a good chance to come through this time.

As for those three rookies, who will top any trio offered by any other club in the circuit, they are Howard Pollet, the pitcher who came up toward the close of last season; Stan Musial, already dubbed as a potential batting champion in his freshman year, and Bub Blattner, the second baseman who was a world champion table tennis player before he was run down and slapped into the Cardinal chain gang.

Taking them in order again, Pollet will be remembered as the 20-year-old New Orleans youth who stepped into the tail-end of that sizzling National League race last season and won five against two losses while compiling an earned run average of 1.93.

Just prior to joining the Cards, he won 20 and lost three at Houston with an earned run average of 1.16—a record for the Texas League—and although he didn't finish the season there he struck out so many men while he was there he wound up as the strikeout king anyhow.

They call him the "prodigy of the parishes," but he is still just a rookie insofar as a full major league season is concerned and everybody wants to see a little more of his southpawing.

Musial Is Good

Musial is a 21-year-old gent from the Pennsylvania coal belt who, as a southpaw hurler, won 18 games for Daytona Beach in the Florida State League in 1940, then switched to the outfield and last season outhit the batting champion in three leagues as he progressed into the majors.

He batted .379 in 87 Western Association games, moved up into the International League and hit .326 in 54 games, then pulled up his socks, wiped his brow and belted the ball at a .426 clip in 12 games with the Cardinals. He also drove in 122 runs in the three leagues, led the Western Association in homers although he was in only those 86 games and, all in all, earned the right to be classed as this year's No. 1 prospect.

Second Baseman Blattner was tied for third in runs batted in in the Pacific Coast League last season, hit only three homers less than the champion, led Coast League infielders in double plays, stole four bases in one game and may make the grade as a freshman.

He is 21 years old and a St. Louis boy, who held the state high school tennis championship before he turned to table tennis and won the world double title at Prague, defended it successfully at Vienna and then won the U. S. crown.

After that he turned to shortstopping, thence to second basing and if the Dodgers want to know any more about him, Pollet and Musial they can write direct to the Cardinals or perhaps wait until next summer.

Bessemer Pads Sectional Lead By Forfeit Win

Bessemer High Tops In Section 20 League By Two Full Games

W. P. I. A. L. GIVES RULING THURSDAY

Bessemer High today leads the Section 20 race by two full games, a margin that appears unsurmountable at this stage of the season.

Bessemer strengthened its grip on the top post yesterday when William C. Evans of the W.P.I.A.L. ruled that Mt. Jackson High's recent 22-20 triumph over the Cement City five will go down in the books as a 2-0 (forfeit score) Bessemer victory.

The score reversal involved an ineligibility technicality. Steve Kallas, Mt. Jackson player, appeared in the Bessemer game on February 3. Because his parents had moved to Petersburg, O., Kallas automatically became ineligible to participate in Jackson sports.

Principal Acts Quickly

Uncovering the technicality, Principal S. G. McCullough of Mt. Jackson High immediately started the ball rolling to "clear Mt. Jackson." He first reported to Bessemer and then wrote to Evans for a ruling.

The standing now shows Bessemer in possession of nine triumphs against a lone defeat. Mt. Jackson's league record now is four wins against a half dozen losses.

Since New Wilmington and Wampum have each dropped three games and only four more playing nights appear on the schedule, Bessemer is almost certain of representing the county in the coming Class B W.P.I.A.L. tournament.

Evans' report follows:

"Any pupil living in a district maintaining a high school of the first class (contains 12th grade) shall not be eligible to participate in any contest of this league, unless he is a member of the team representing the high school of the district in which he resides. A student's residence shall be determined by the residence of his parents or parent.

"The day the boy's parents moved from your school district to another he became ineligible to participate in your games.

"All games in which he has participated after the removal of his parents from your district are automatically forfeited. It is mandatory that you report this to your opponents."

Since Kallas appeared only in the Bessemer game, Mt. Jackson only forfeits that game.

Pitt Swimming And Track Teams Are In Spotlight

Mile Quartet Will Be Featured In Boston Games Saturday Night

(Special To The News)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 13.—Swimming and track teams get the spotlight this weekend on the Pitt athletic stage. The Panther swimming team, still undefeated, gets its first real test against Ohio State in the P. A. A. pool, and the Panther sprinters and the mile relay team will be in Boston for the Boston A. A., games.

Having defeated Rider and Penn State on successive weekends, the Pitt swimmers now have the job of stopping always powerful Ohio State. The Panthers are going to be accorded little chance to win this year, but they hope to make it a close meet.

Lack of Pitt strength in the distance events and in the back-stroke will give the Buckeyes a big edge going into the meet, but the Panthers have a strong sprint contingent, headed by Gus Wilde, former South High star.

The powerful Wilde made up a six yard deficit to win the 400 yard relay and in the meet against Rider, and last Saturday set a new pool record winning the 100 yard free style against Penn State.

The speedy Pitt mile quartet will be the featured entrants in the Boston games this Saturday night. With the two veteran sprint stars, Harold Stickel and Bill Carter handling the first and last legs respectively, the 1942 combination is being hailed as one of the Easts' best.

The second and third men are sophomores, Al Peretic from Rankin, and Bobby Smith from Canonsburg. Both are better than average performers, and there is a good chance they are pulling the Panthers into the limelight on the boards this winter.

Carter and Stickel will run in the 60 yard dash also.

Section 20 League Nears Finish Tape; High Passers Away

New Castle All Out To Pad Section III Lead; Plays At Beaver Falls

Section 20 court heroes move within the shadows of the finish line tonight and New Castle High's gallant edition goes all out to strengthen its grip on the Section III lead.

Well-rested, physically fit and confident, New Castle invades the hostile valley to lock horns with Beaver Falls High on the spacious Beaver Falls High court. The main go follows a curtain raiser involving the reserves of both schools.

Seek Seventh Straight

Because of the proximity of the battle scene, a large delegation will be in the stands to cheer home the Lawrence countians. With only three more playing dates left on the date book, the Bridenbaugh men can enhance their championship hopes by handing the Tigers a second setback. Earlier, New Castle tripped the valley entry 29-27. New Castle bids for its seventh straight victory.

In the Section 20 bailiwicks, Bessemer High, now ruling the roost, figures to practically cinch the garland by beating down Princeton at Princeton With shifty Jack Grubisa, lanky Tasota and clever Kresevich spearheading the attack, the red and black clad spheroid addicts should win handily.

Wampum High fills the host spot again, this time entertaining the scanty-clads from Shenango Township High. Deadlocked for second place with New Wilmington, Wampum strives to keep pace by bagging the decision.

Brook Vs. Wilmington

New Wilmington High anticipates stiff competition when it faces East Brook High on New Wilmington's Community floor. The "Greyhounds," still entertaining hopes that Bessemer may collapse in its next three games, feel confident of winning and thus remaining in the title picture.

One of the top embroglios pairs Union Township and Mt. Jackson High on the Jacks' boards. For fast basketball and action, this clash will serve the purpose.

SPORTS WORLD RAMBLINGS

Sports trail melody:—

Sartodial note:—While this shorteez should probably appear in another column, pardon me if I nominate Westminster college as the fashion plate of collegiate basketball. I've yet to see the Titans step onto a court with soiled blue and white regalia. As a matter of fact, I've never seen a college team so fussy about cage attire as the local team. Coach G. C. Washabaugh, a dapper dan, insists on appearance...

The note on the dress end of the game reminds me of another paragraph I should have written seeveral years ago. In the scholastic brackets, New Castle ranks as one of the best equipped, if not the best, high school teams in the country. It's an established fact in the district that New Castle is better equipped than quite a few collegiate teams...

Robert Murphy, a diffirent gentleman who learned the rudiments of journalism at Syracuse and then moved on to the well edited and newsy Mt. Vernon (Ohio) paper, has succeeded W. R. Biggs as drum beater at Westminster college. Well versed in the profession, Murphy is a cinch to carry on in the Biggs matter—which is tops....

There isn't another sport in the books in which playing at home means as much as it does in basketball. As shining examples, I offer Toledo university, Duquesne, Geneva college, Long Island and Westminster. Toledo, winner at 32 straight at home, has dropped two on foreign boards. Duquesne's only four setbacks were recorded on the road.

Long Island, undoubtedly the toughest team in the world to bowl over in New York, invaded the hinterlands twice year and came second. Geneva college, undefeated at home, has been spanked seven or eight times abroad. Our Titans, on the short end three times, sustained the reverses away....

Back in 1919, when Jess Willard lost his crown to Jack Dempsey, the husky Jess was paid off mostly in Liberty bonds, receiving, I believed, $20,000 in cash and $80,000 in bonds. Why not revive the plan now, paying off in cash and defense bonds-... Gene DeSautels, Cleveland catcher, should have sharp eyes this season. He has spent the off-season working for an optical company in Massachusetts....

Jim Martin, manager of last season's Bessemer club in the Lawrence County Baseball league believes that the rubber shortage will cause more havoc than Selective Service with the organization. Tires are difficult to obtain and no one will want to haul ball players around the circuit, he asserted today. However, President Alec Samuels intends to call a league meeting within a short time.

Conn And Zale Battle Tonight

Conn Favored To Defeat Chicago Tough-Man In New York Ring

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The Kid from Pittsburgh, Sweet William Conn, takes the biggest gamble since old George Washington zig-zaged his rowboat across the Delaware at Madison Square Garden tonight when he risks his reputation and a possible million dollar heavyweight championship gate against the flying fists of Chicago's Tony Zale in a 12 round bout.

Conn will have the jinx of Friday the 13th hanging over his handsome head when he tees off against the rugged middleweight king and if it works against him, will lose not only considerable prestige but probably his long awaited return chance at Champion Joe Louis in June.

Not many citizens of this town figure Zale has a chance with the Pittsburgh boxing master and are quoting from 4 to 6 to 1 that Willie's arm is raised in victory at the finish.

Pirates Sign New Outfielder

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 13.—John Barrett, 24-year-old outfielder whom the Pirates have tabbed as one of their best prospects in years, has sent in his signed contract for the coming baseball campaign, the ball club reported today.

Barrett, who has been in organized baseball for only three years, played with Hollywood, in the Pacific Coast League last season. He batted .313 during 149 games, and in the last two-months of the season, mananged to keep his batting mark close to .400.

His home is in Lowell, Mass.

Earlier, the club announced receipt of a contract from Ken Jungels, a pitcher who came to Pittsburgh via Wilkes Barre.

WAR RELIEF FUND IS SWELLED DAILY

Each day brings many splendid contributions to the Lawrence county chapter's $52,000 war relief fund, being raised for national and local war relief activities.

Chairman W. Filmore Campbell of New Wilmington stated that the New Wilmington quota will be increased, to date $614 having been turned over to the chapter fund.

Results of the canvass in the different wards of the city reveal that the second ward leads with $1,829, with $262 from the third ward, $615 from the fourth ward, $301 from the seventh ward and $400 from the eighth ward. These figures are approximate, but within a few dollars.

New Castle post office employes gave $47 and the Big Beaver Grange Ladies club $10.

Tonight is the night for New Castle district pilots to make application for enlistment in the Civil Air Patrol, Findley Wilson, New Castle airport operator, reminded the airmen today.

Clifford Ball, wing commander of the organization in this district and one of Pittsburgh's noted aviators, will speak to enlisting pilots at the Wilson hangar at the port this evening at 8:30. To join up, one must be a private pilot and, of course, a citizen of the United States.

The patrol group will give many local pilots opportunity to do their bit for national defense.

PRESENCE OF MIND PREVENTS INJURIES

Only rare presence of mind prevented John Cowden, aged 15 years, who resides near New Bedford, from death or serious injury Thursday afternoon about 4:15 o'clock. The youth, who attends Union high school, had just alighted from the bus near his home, a mile east of New Bedford, and noticing a car coming towards him, trying to pass on the right side of the bus, he jumped over the fence and into a field, while the car leaped the ditch and crashed into a telephone pole.

A car traveling west prevented the auto from passing on the road without crashing, so it took to the ditch. Three persons in the auto escaped injury, but the car was damaged, it was stated.

After War Living Conditions Given Babson's Attention

By ROGER W. BABSON

(Copyright—1942—Publishers Financial Bureau, Inc.)

BABSON

BABSON PARK, Fla., Feb. 13.—I have recently been studying the catalogs of colleges—especially those for women. I find the inclusion of certain first aid and other war courses; but otherwise the subjects covered are the same as if no war existed. I find almost no courses—other than secretarial — which prepare students to secure an income for themselves after the war.

What Are Colleges Teaching?

When talking with college presidents they ask me why I am so anxious about what will happen to the students after the war is over. Some say: "Our task is to get the students to register and to graduate them. The girls will get married and the boys will be drafted—so why worry?" They also complain that gifts are falling off, the income from endowments is declining and they simply cannot afford to take on any new instrucotrs or experiment with new courses.

All the above may be true, but I am sure that if college presidents realize the terrific changes which our young people are to face after World War II they will find some way to help them. Just as our youths were allowed to think America was preparing "for defense—short of war" and then were to be drafted "for only one year" and under no circumstances "would be sent out of the country", these same young people are now being lulled into a happy dream as to economic conditions after the war. Only six months ago I was told at Washington "we can lick Japan with our hands tied behind our backs". May we not now be getting similar false ideas as to what Japan and Germany will do to us industrially after we lick them in a military way?

After-War Conditions

I now have no fears of Communism or Naziism. The so-called capitalistic system will continue; stocks and bonds will not be wiped out. The government may take over banking and certain other big industries; but more new privately-owned industries will rise up to take their places. But taxes on stocks and bonds may be terrible. Those who expect to live on the interest of what they inherit may get a very sad surprise. Other people—the so-called middle class—will be crushed by inflation caused by the huge government debt that this country will have after World War II.

The above means that—married or single—almost every woman reader will be obliged to earn some money if she hopes to maintain her present standard of living. And why not? Our great-great-grandmothers raised large families of children without any conveniences and yet earned considerable money to help out their husbands' meager income. It might have been by weaving or sewing, or by tending other people's children, or by nursing the sick, or by helping tend her husband's store; or by having hens and pigs or hives of bees of her own.

The Fittest Will Survive

For not many years after World War II will women have either money to take bridge lessons or time to play bridge! A few years of "prosperity" will follow during the reconstruction period; but after that—look out! Those who have some enterprise and are good workers will enjoy a fair standard of living; but those who expect to live lives of ease will be greatly disappointed. The days of playboys and glamour girls will be over. Once more the Bible doctrine that "those who do not work shall not eat" (see II Thess. 3:10) will again be the good old rule; it is the law by which civilization grew. The fittest will survive, reproduce and be happy, but God help the rest!

Our nation is to be burdened by a terrific debt which will raise havoc with every family whether the debt is paid or defaulted. If it is paid, we all will be crushed by high taxes; if it is redeemed with newly printed money, we all will suffer from high prices; while if it is defaulted, then "good night" for our banks and insurance companies which now are the principal holders of these bonds. Employment, except at low wages will be very difficult due to the terrible competition which is coming from Europe and Asia after the war is over. We can disarm our enemies; but we can't prevent them from working 12 hours a day at 10 cents a day and underselling us in all world and many domestic markets.

Watch Your Children's Educations

I am constantly being asked, "What can we parents do to prepare for such events?". My answer is: "Have all your children get a useful education. Have even the girls learn some trade, art or profession by which they can help out their husband's income or "pinch-hit' for him if he is out of work or ill. Never mind if these girls don't get a college 'degree'. State university degrees are pretty to look at; but they are too stiff to eat, too small for clothes and too frail for shingling the roof!"

Civilian Defense Courses At State

(Special To The News)

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Feb. 13.—Including courses in the solution of coded messages, a school for air raid wardens, and instruction in incendiary bomb control, the Pennsylvania State college has announced that 21 non-credit short courses are now under way as part of its "Student Training for Civilian Defense" program.

According to M. T. Bunnell, who is serving as co-ordinator for the program, all of the courses are being taught by members of the faculty here. At least 28 other courses will be offered to students this month, he said.

More than 2000 Penn State students last month signified their intention of enrolling in the defense courses which range from six to twelve weeks in length with classes meeting once or twice a week after the regular academic work has been completed.

The entire program of approximately 50 courses will be designed to fit studnts for leadership in defense programs after they return to their home communities. For those who will serve in the armed forces, pre-induction training has been offered.

William S. Hoffman, registrar, will teach the course in decoding messages. The preparation of cryptograms and the solving of coded messages have long been Registrar Hoffman's hobby.

Other courses in addition to those already mentioned are:

Farm tractor operation and maintenance; public opinion and propaganda; home nursing; defense forum techniques; mental hygiene and morale; mechanics for the home front; American Red Cross standard nutrition course; automatic weapons; company administration; personnel work; aptitude testing; map reading; rifle marksmanship and musketry; scouting, patrolling, and extended order drill.. soldier without arms and manual of arms; camp counseling; and waitress training and commercial food positions.

How to make Pillsbury's
Self-frosted Chocolate Honey Cookies
The Army and Navy will fight over these!

Complete recipe:

Recipe makes 4 dozen delicious nut-studded, chocolate-covered cookies. Give the boys a treat! Send "cookies from home!"

1. Sift 2½ c. Enriched Pillsbury's Best Flour once, measure; add 2 tsps. baking powder (or 1 tsp. double-acting), ¼ tsp. soda, ½ tsp. salt, and ¼ tsp. cinnamon; sift twice. (Two B-vitamins and iron are added to Pillsbury's Best, with no change in flavor, color, or baking quality.) 2. Cream ¾ c. shortening and ½ c. strained honey together. Add 1 c. sugar gradually; beat until light. 3. Add 3 eggs well beaten; beat thoroughly. 4. Add 2 sqs. (2 ozs.) unsweetened chocolate, melted and cooled, ¾ c. chopped walnuts; and 1 tsp. vanilla; blend well. 5. Add dry ingredients gradually; mix well. (Pillsbury's Best blends so perfectly—gives you such fluffy, velvety batter—that you'll agree it's your best choice for cookies. It's just as good for all your baking—it's BAKE-PROVED! Each hour during milling samples are tested for creamy, appetizing color. And rigid baking tests are made 4 to 6 times daily.) 6. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto greased baking sheet, allow room to spread. 7. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) about 4 min. Sprinkle tops of cookies generously with ½ c. grated sweet baking chocolate. Return to oven; continue baking about 8 min. longer, or until done. Let cookies get completely cold and frosting firm before filling the cookie jar or packing for mailing. Self-frosted Chocolate Honey Cookies are just the right size and shape for packing. And they stay fresh longer! For two reasons—first, the recipe calls for honey; second, the recipe calls for Pillsbury's Best—and the same qualities in this superb flour that give you fine, even grain and tender texture also help your baked foods retain their oven freshness! Get Pillsbury's Best from your grocer today—you'll find you can depend on it to protect your baking success every time you bake.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEEALL

Remember back . . . oh, a few years . . . when home talent shows were put on every spring or early spring. Every one had fun, the cast, the audience, and the whole population. Well, it looks like maybe it might be possible to have another one of these shows this early spring . . . The Kiwanis will be the sponsors and right now they would like to know the means of those who think themselves suitable for a part in this show . . . dancing of all kinds will be needed . . . so if you think you are talented will you please call 445 between 6 and 7 tonight.

Are we forgetting the man who goes of his own free will to serve this great nation . . . it seems that maybe something like that might be hinted in this little poem that was sent in by a friend who has a friend in the army.

ONLY A VOLUNTEER

Why didn't I wait to be drafted?
And led to a train by a band,
Or put in a claim for exemption,
Why did I hold my hand?
Why didn't I wait for the banquets?
Why didn't I wait to be cheered?
With the drafted men getting the credit,
While I only volunteered.

Nobody gave us a banquet,
Nobody said a bright word,
The puff of the engine; the grind of the wheels,
Was all the goodbye that I heard,
Then off to the training camps hustled,
To be trained for half a year;
And in a shuffle forgotten—
I was only a volunteer.

And some day way off in the future,
When my little boy sits on my knee,
And asks what I did in the struggle
As his loving eyes look up to me,
I will have to reply to his question,
Saying, "Twas this way my dear:
I wasn't among the boys drafted,
I was only a volunteer."

The census bureau reports that California and Georgia produce most of the country's pimentos. Florida grows most of the peppers picked green for stuffing and seasoning, and Louisiana supplies those of Tabasco sauce. New Mexico and New Jersey also specialize in growing peppers.

To put zip in the nation's cookery, the United States normally imports 75 million pounds of black and white pepper a year. The Census Bureau reports that most of the black pepper has been coming from Java, Sumatra, Thailand, the Philippines, and the West Indies.

District Scout Dinner At Cathedral Draws 600

Six hundred persons—Boy Scouts of the New Castle district and their parents and friends and scouters—attended the district's annual Lincoln Day banquet at the Cathedral last night.

Unique in itself was the dinner, a tureen affair managed by the scout troops with the efficiency of the best-planned banquet and served to the complete satisfaction of the diners.

The gathering assembled the scout host of the largest of the Lawrence county council's four districts—each district now holds its own banquet instead of joining for a county-wide affair as in past years.

Akron Man Speaker

Principal speaker for the night was Arthur C. Horrocks of Akron, and an eloquent platform man, who discussed Scouting in general as it relates to national defense.

Horrocks was introduced by Scout Executive John J. Finnessy.

Toastmaster was County Controller Frank C. Hill, who piloted the after-dinner program like a veteran.

Stirring patriotic exercises—including the spine-tingling call of the bugle and the call to colors—marked the opening of the program, and the crowd united in the "pledge to the flag" led by Scout Executive Finnessy. The invocation was by Rev. A. M. Stump of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church.

Demonstration Seen

A highlight of the evening was the demonstration staged by the well-trained Emergency Corps of scouts under the direction of E. D. Hawk, New Castle district commissioner. Informal remarks on council progress were also made by Charles Carbeau of Ellwood City, head of the county council.

Near the close of the banquet celebration a birthday cake was presented by Girl Scouts to the Boy Scouts—a cake marking the 32nd anniversary of the Boy Scouts. Marie C. Hay, new Girl Scout executive here, was also introduced.

Present to share honors were four holders of the scouts' distinguished Silver Beaver award, Council Head Carbeau, Rev. Stump, Ralph F. Davis, council commissioner, and Dr. Ray C. Lutz.

Singing was led by W. O. "Red" Williams with Ermel E. Branstetter at the piano.

Ship Building Leads Sinkings

U. S. Building Ships Faster Than U-Boat Attack Losses Is Report

By GRIFFING BANCROFT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Despite intensified Axis submarine raiding congress today had the assurance that the United States is building ships as fast as they are sunk and within a short time the current construction rate will be greatly increased.

This blunt assurance was given to the house appropriations committee by Shipping Commissioner Admiral Emory S. Land, who testified in support of the record $32,000,000,000 new war spending bill.

The chairman of the Maritime commission and recently appointed shipping czar, also told the committee:

That the nation's shipbuilders will meet President Roosevelt's goal to construct 8,000,000 additional tons of merchant vessels this year and 10,000,000 tons next year.

"Well Ahead"

That during January ship construction was "well ahead" of sinkings, but that during the first part of this month vessels were sent to the bottom at just the same rate as they came off the ways.

That a total of ten merchant ships were lost during 1941 because of loss of construction time due to labor strikes, but that the labor situation is causing no loss of time now.

Land's testimony came after the committee approved the army's portion of the all time record bill—$22,888,000,000 chiefly for ordnance.

Land, however, testified about another section of the bill, one calling for $3,582,000,000 for the Maritime commission to construct 1,400 additional tankers and freighters and generally to accelerate the building of vital ships.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard was called by the committee to discuss the last section—$3,450,000,000 for additional lend-lease and to the united nations.

The bulk of this $3,547,115,000 is for agricultural and industrial products, most of which will be foodstuffs for citizens and friendly armies in the war zones.

Rep. Cannon (D) Mo., chairman of the committee, said the entire bill would be approved this week and brought up on the floor, where speedy passage is assured next Tuesday.

In response to questions at his press conference, Welles said that the American government did not think that any such move by the former king of Rumania would be conducive to the war effort of the United States or conducive to the kind of national unity that is desired in this country.

Ex-King Carol now is believed to be in Mexico City and has been trying for some time to enter the United States.

To Convert Radio Industry To War Production Soon

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The radio manufacturing industry was placed "next in line" today for conversion to war production.

R. R. Guthrie, assistant chief of the war production board's bureau of industry branches, told a meeting of manufacturers that the industry will be converted to war output "as rapidly as it is technically possible."

The W.P.B. reported it expected that the major part of the conversion job will be done within three months, and it added that a program will be drafted after conferences between government and the industry, the civilian output of which has been cut 40 per cent below last year.

"The strategical objectives and the broad dimensions of the task before you are clear," Guthrie told the manufacturers. "It should be as gratifying to you as it is to me that these objectives and dimensions are no longer subject to change with the fortunes of war.

"We are, thank God, out of the period in which each succeeding military reverse meant a revision of our estimates of what we must do. We are demanding the utmost of your industry and of every other industry now."

Chiang Kai-Shek Visiting India

(International News Service)

CHUNKING, Feb. 13.—Chinese newspapers and officialdom today hailed Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's visit to India as a step toward closer relations with Britain and India, as well as the possible precursor of a Chinese spring offensive.

A Chinese Daily News editorial today praised the generalissimo's first trip abroad as a step toward improving the position of the United Nations in the Pacific and coordinating the Indian and Chinese military efforts.

Dominion status for India, it was said, is one of the topics which may be discussed at the meeting.

The second offer was that of the C. L. Bauder property, in Beaver avenue, at the sum of $35,000. Bauder made his offer at $5,000 down with annual payments of $2,000 plus 3½ per cent interest on the unpaid balance. Beighley's offer also stated that terms would be considered.

Both offers include all equipment, and various members stated that each one should be considered in detail. Burgess Clyde Houk reminded members that they should do a little figuring with "things as dark as they are now".

The need of a boro garage has been stressed to council for the past several years. Boro Manager, Lowell Monroe, stated that the boro has a total of 28 various pieces of motorized equipment stationed at various places about the town, some of it without shelter of any kind.

The offers were given to the rules and regulations and finance committees along with the boro solicitor for study.

There will be an additional cost of $150 for the equipment above the initial bid which was made before the current rise of prices.

Titans Aim To Win Six Remaining Games

Play Brooklyn In New York Monday; Dunmire Top Scorer With 146 Points

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Feb. 13.—With one aim in mind—to tomahawk their remaining half dozen foes — Westminster college's well regimented cagers are drilling rigorously for the arduous job ahead.

The Titans, winners of 12 clashes out of 15, parade before the fastidious New York press on next Monday night, unfurling their technique against that of Brooklyn college, amid the colorful setting of famed Madison Square Garden.

The passers from the precincts housing "dem bums" have enjoyed only fair success thus far. But, the calibre of opposition has been strictly 1A. In the Metropolitan league, embracing St. Francis, Long Island, N. Y. U., C. C. N. Y., only to mention a few, the Brooks have dropped three decisions this season.

Westminster will have to concentrate on stopping Hirsch, fourth best scorer in New York. The Brooklynite has tossed 144 points.

Drill Today, Saturday

The Washabaughmen will workout Friday and Saturday, endeavoring to knit an impregnable defense to stymie Brooklyn's offensive thrusts. Joe Spak, injured in a recent scrimmage, has regained his form, adding a bit of sunshine to the situation.

Following the Brooklyn skirmish, Westminster moves over to Philadelphia to meet another major eastern foe, Villanova college. The Philly cagers sidetracked Duquesne university Wednesday night.

Dale "Smokey" Dunmire leads the Titan scorers thus far with 146 of the 801 points arched by the localites. "Buzz" Ridl comes next with 128 points, followed by Lee Fox and Stan Wasik with 119 and 118 respectively.

By raining 801 points through the cords, the Titans today top all other Pennsylvania collegiate teams. Westminster is in the thick of the scramble for Pennsylvania title honors, too.

Individual scoring record thus far:

Player	Gms.	Pts.	Avg.
D. Dunmire	15	146	9.7
Ridl	15	128	8.5
Fox	15	119	7.9
Wasik	15	118	7.8
Goldblum	15	95	6.3
Spak	15	93	6.2
McLhinney	10	32	3.2
O'Hara	11	30	2.7

Hetra	8	6
Miller	3	5
Bennett	3	4

Locals Hope To Stay On Top Of Section Three By Winning Tonight

New Castle High basketball team will go to Beaver Falls tonight for another Section Three engagement and the locals are hoping for a victory in order to stay on the top rung of Section Three. The reserves play the preliminary game at 7 o'clock.

Beaver Falls will be plenty tough to beat on the valley court. New Castle only won at Washington High floor 29 to 27 over the Tigers.

Start Same Lineup

Head Coach Phil Bridenbaugh will start the same team that he has used since the start of the second half, with Bobby Lee and Joey Ciazza at the forwards, Cyril Melichar at center and Zubkowsky and Burris on the guards.

Other Section Three games tonight are: Ellwood City at Ambridge and New Brighton at Aliquippa.

The next home game for the locals will be with the Ambridge team on February 17.

Junior Church League Games

Four more games will be played in the junior school league at the "Y" on Saturday. The first game at 4:15 o'clock will have the First Baptists playing the St. Phillips and St. James team.

At 6:15 o'clock the St. Marys team will play the first Christians, and the other two games will be as follows: First Methodists vs. First Presbyterians, and St. George "Little Fighting Spartans" vs. Central Christians.

LOZMAN BACK

NEW YORK—Harvey Lozman has rejoined City College's basketball team. The six-foot-two-inch senior center was unable to participate this season because of the academic burden.

PAY BOOST FOR DOLPH

Dolph Camilli likely will be a $20,000 man with the Dodgers this year. His salary last year was $16,000.

FAIR OR FOUL
By LAWTON CARVER
INS Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Because he sees all, knows all and, with proper persuasion will tell all to help you get up a piece for the papers, Mr. Bill Brandt is quoted occasionally and relied upon often to fill these dispatches, and he hereby is being credited an assist today. He dropped all other work, answered no phones, missed his lunch and ran himself out of pencils and energy to help me arrive at this conclusion, as follows:

Of all the National League clubs, none will be able to come up with three rookies who will match the three standouts being taken south by the St. Louis Cardinals.

Dodgers Or Cardinals

Head of the National League Service Bureau and, therefore, an impartial gatherer of facts, figures and fancies, Mr. Brandt doesn't necessarily join in the conclusion. He merely helped me get it. Without his assistance beyond the use of information he made available, I gather the notion strictly on my own subject to change that the National League race again will be a two-team struggle between the Dodgers and those Cardinals with the latter boasting a good chance to come through this time.

As for those three rookies, who will top any trio offered by any other club in the circuit, they are Howard Pollet, the pitcher who came up toward the close of last season; Stan Musial, already dubbed as a potential batting champion in his freshman year, and Bub Blattner, the second baseman who was a world champion table tennis player before he was run down and slapped into the Cardinal chain gang.

Taking them in order again, Pollet will be remembered as the 20-year-old New Orleans youth who stepped into the tail-end of that sizzling National League race last season and won five against two losses while compiling an earned run average of 1.93.

Just prior to joining the Cards, he won 20 and lost three at Houston with an earned run average of 1.16—a record for the Texas League—and although he didn't finish the season there he struck out so many men while he was there he wound up as the strikeout king anyhow.

They call him the "prodigy of the parishes," but he is still just a rookie insofar as a full major league season is concerned and everybody wants to see a little more of his southpawing.

Musial Is Good

Musial is a 21-year-old gent from the Pennsylvania coal belt who, as a southpaw hurler, won 18 games for Daytona Beach in the Florida State League in 1940, then switched to the outfield and last season outhit the batting champion in three leagues as he progressed into the majors.

He batted .379 in 87 Western Association games, moved up into the International League and hit .326 in 54 games, then pulled up his socks, wiped his brow and belted the ball at a .426 clip in 12 games with the Cardinals. He also drove in 122 runs in the three leagues, led the Western Association in homers although he was in only those 86 games and, all in all, earned the right to be classed as this year's No. 1 prospect.

Second Baseman Blattner was tied for third in runs batted in in the Pacific Coast League last season, hit only three homers less than the champion, led Coast League infielders in double plays, stole four bases in one game and may make the grade as a freshman.

He is 21 years old and a St. Louis boy, who held the state high school tennis championship before he turned to table tennis and won the world double title at Prague, defended it successfully at Vienna and then won the U. S. crown.

After that he turned to shortstopping, thence to second basing and if the Dodgers want to know any more about him, Pollet and Musial they can write direct to the Cardinals or perhaps wait until next summer.

Bessemer Pads Sectional Lead By Forfeit Win

Bessemer High Tops In Section 20 League By Two Full Games

W. P. I. A. L. GIVES RULING THURSDAY

Bessemer High today leads the Section 20 race by two full games, a margin that appears unsurmountable at this stage of the season.

Bessemer strengthened its grip on the top post yesterday when William C. Evans of the W.P.I.A.L. ruled that Mt. Jackson High's recent 22-20 triumph over the Cement City five will go down in the books as a 2-0 (forfeit score) Bessemer victory.

The score reversal involved an ineligibility technicality. Steve Kallas, Mt. Jackson player, appeared in the Bessemer game on February 3. Because his parents had moved to Petersburg, O., Kallas automatically became ineligible to participate in Jackson sports.

Principal Acts Quickly

Uncovering the technicality, Principal S. G. McCullough of Mt. Jackson High immediately started the ball rolling to "clear Mt. Jackson." He first reported to Bessemer and then wrote to Evans for a ruling.

The standing now shows Bessemer in possession of nine triumphs against a lone defeat. Mt. Jackson's league record now is four wins against a half dozen losses.

Since New Wilmington and Wampum have each dropped three games and only four more playing nights appear on the schedule, Bessemer is almost certain of representing the county in the coming Class B W.P.I.A.L. tournament.

Evans' report follows:

"Any pupil living in a district maintaining a high school of the first class (contains 12th grade) shall not be eligible to participate in any contest of this league, unless he is a member of the team representing the high school of the district in which he resides. A student's residence shall be determined by the residence of his parents or parent.

"The day the boy's parents moved from your school district to another he became ineligible to participate in your games.

"All games in which he has participated after the removal of his parents from your district are automatically forfeited. It is mandatory that you report this to your opponents."

Since Kallas appeared only in the Bessemer game, Mt. Jackson only forfeits that game.

THEY SHOULD

The St. Louis Browns have canceled financial support to Springfield, Youngstown, Mayfield and Meridian, club farms last year.

Pitt Swimming And Track Teams Are In Spotlight

Mile Quartet Will Be Featured In Boston Games Saturday Night

(Special To The News)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 13.—Swimming and track teams get the spotlight this weekend on the Pitt athletic stage. The Panther swimming team, still undefeated, gets its first real test against Ohio State in the P. A. A. pool, and the Panther sprinters and the mile relay team will be in Boston for the Boston A. A., games.

Having defeated Rider and Penn State on successive weekends, the Pitt swimmers now have the job of stopping always powerful Ohio State. The Panthers are going to be accorded little chance to win this year, but they hope to make it a close meet.

Lack of Pitt strength in the distance events and in the back-stroke will give the Buckeyes a big edge going into the meet, but the Panthers have a strong sprint contingent, headed by Gus Wilde, former South High star.

The powerful Wilde made up a six yard deficit to win the 400 yard relay and in the meet against Rider, and last Saturday set a new pool record winning the 100 yard free style against Penn State.

The speedy Pitt mile quartet will be the featured entrants in the Boston games this Saturday night. With the two veteran sprint stars, Harold Stickel and Bill Carter handling the first and last legs respectively, the 1942 combination is being hailed as one of the Easts' best.

The second and third men are sophomores, Al Peretic from Rankin, and Bobby Smith from Canonsburg. Both are better than average performers, and there is a good chance they are pulling the Panthers into the limelight on the boards this winter.

Carter and Stickel will run in the 60 yard dash also.

Section 20 League Nears Finish Tape; High Passers Away

New Castle All Out To Pad Section III Lead; Plays At Beaver Falls

Section 20 court heroes move within the shadows of the finish line tonight and New Castle High's gallant edition goes all out to strengthen its grip on the Section III lead.

Well-rested, physically fit and confident, New Castle invades the hostile valley to lock horns with Beaver Falls High on the spacious Beaver Falls High court. The main go follows a curtain raiser involving the reserves of both schools.

Seek Seventh Straight

Because of the proximity of the battle scene, a large delegation will be in the stands to cheer home the Lawrence countians. With only three more playing dates left on the date book, the Bridenbaugh men can enhance their championship hopes by handing the Tigers a second setback. Earlier, New Castle tripped the valley entry 29-27. New Castle bids for its seventh straight victory.

In the Section 20 bailiwicks, Bessemer High, now ruling the roost, figures to practically cinch the garland by beating down Princeton at Princeton. With shifty Jack Grubisa, lanky Tasota and clever Kresevich spearheading the attack, the red and black clad spheroid addicts should win handily.

Wampum High fills the host spot again, this time entertaining the scanty-clads from Shenango Township High. Deadlocked for second place with New Wilmington, Wampum strives to keep pace by bagging the decision.

Brook Vs. Wilmington

New Wilmington High anticipates stiff competition when it faces East Brook High on New Wilmington's Community floor. The "Greyhounds," still entertaining hopes that Bessemer may collapse in its next three games, feel confident of winning and thus remaining in the title picture.

One of the top embroglios pairs Union Township and Mt. Jackson High on the Jacks' boards. For fast basketball and action, this clash will serve the purpose.

SPORTS WORLD RAMBLINGS

Sports trail melody:—

Sartorial note:—While this shorteez should probably appear in another column, pardon me if I nominate Westminster college as the fashion plate of collegiate basketball. I've yet to see the Titans step onto a court with soiled blue and white regalia. As a matter of fact, I've never seen a college team so fussy about cage attire as the local team. Coach G. C. Washabaugh, a dapper dan, insists on appearance...

The note on the dress end of the game reminds me of another paragraph I should have written seeveral years ago. In the scholastic brackets, New Castle ranks as one of the best equipped, if not the best, high school teams in the country. It's an established fact in the district that New Castle is better equipped than quite a few collegiate teams...

Robert Murphy, a diffirent gentleman who learned the rudiments of journalism at Syracuse and then moved on to the well edited and newsy Mt. Vernon (Ohio) paper, has succeeded W. R. Biggs as drum beater at Westminster college. Well versed in the profession, Murphy is a cinch to carry on in the Biggs matter—which is tops....

There isn't another sport in the books in which playing at home means as much as it does in basketball. As shining examples, I offer Toledo university, Duquesne, Geneva college, Long Island and Westminster. Toledo, winner at 32 straight at home, has dropped two on foreign boards. Duquesne's only four setbacks were recorded on the road.

Long Island, undoubtedly the toughest team in the world to bowl over in New York, invaded the hinterlands twice year and came second. Geneva college, undefeated at home, has been spanked seven or eight times abroad. Our Titans, on the short end three times, sustained the reverses away....

Back in 1919, when Jess Willard lost his crown to Jack Dempsey, the husky Jess was paid off mostly in Liberty bonds, receiving, I believed, $20,000 in cash and $80,000 in bonds. Why not revive the plan now, paying off in cash and defense bonds-.... Gene DeSautels, Cleveland catcher, should have sharp eyes this season. He has spent the off-season working for an optical company in Massachusetts....

Jim Martin, manager of last season's Bessemer club in the Lawrence County Baseball league believes that the rubber shortage will cause more havoc than Selective Service with the organization. Tires are difficult to obtain and no one will want to haul ball players around the circuit, he asserted today. However, President Alec Samuels intends to call a league meeting within a short time.

Conn And Zale Battle Tonight

Conn Favored To Defeat Chicago Tough-Man In New York Ring

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The Kid from Pittsburgh, Sweet William Conn, takes the biggest gamble since old George Washington zig-zaged his rowboat across the Delaware at Madison Square Garden tonight when he risks his reputation and a possible million dollar heavyweight championship gate against the flying fists of Chicago's Tony Zale in a 12 round bout.

Conn will have the jinx of Friday the 13th hanging over his handsome head when he tees off against the rugged middleweight king and if it works against him, will lose not only considerable prestige but probably his long awaited return chance at Champion Joe Louis in June.

Not many citizens of this town figure Zale has a chance with the Pittsburgh boxing master and are quoting from 4 to 6 to 1 that Willie's arm is raised in victory at the finish.

TONY CANZONERI TURNING ACTOR

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Tony Canzoneri, who "knocked them in the laps" of the first row spectators while fighting, will try rolling them in the aisles" tonight.

The former lightweight champion has turned actor and will appear in the role of Killer Kane in a farce with prize fighting shenanigans titled, "They Should Have Stood in Bed."

Pirates Sign New Outfielder

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 13.—John Barrett, 24-year-old outfielder whom the Pirates have tabbed as one of their best prospects in years, has sent in his signed contract for the coming baseball campaign, the ball club reported today.

Barrett, who has been in organized baseball for only three years, played with Hollywood, in the Pacific Coast League last season. He batted .313 during 149 games, and in the last two-months of the season, mananged to keep his batting mark close to .400.

His home is in Lowell, Mass.

Earlier, the club announced receipt of a contract from Ken Jungels, a pitcher who came to Pittsburgh via Wilkes Barre.

PRESENCE OF MIND PREVENTS INJURIES

Only rare presence of mind prevented John Cowden, aged 15 years who resides near New Bedford, from death or serious injury Thursday afternoon about 4:15 o'clock. The youth, who attends Union high school, had just alighted from the bus near his home, a mile east of New Bedford, and noticing a car coming towards him, trying to pass on the right side of the bus, he jumped over the fence and into a field, while the car leaped the ditch and crashed into a telephone pole.

A car traveling west prevented the auto from passing on the road without crashing, so it took to the ditch. Three persons in the auto escaped injury, but the car was damaged, it was stated.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEEALL

Remember back . . . oh, a few years . . . when home talent shows were put on every spring or early spring. Every one had fun, the cast, the audience, and the whole population. Well, it looks like maybe it might be possible to have another one of these shows this early spring . . . The Kiwanis will be the sponsors and right now they would like to know the means of those who think themselves suitable for a part in this show . . . dancing of all kinds will be needed . . . so if you think you are talented will you please call 445 between 6 and 7 tonight.

Are we forgetting the man who goes of his own free will to serve this great nation . . . it seems that maybe something like that might be hinted in this little poem that was sent in by a friend who has a friend in the army.

ONLY A VOLUNTEER

Why didn't I wait to be drafted?
 And led to a train by a band,
Or put in a claim for exemption,
 Why did I hold my hand?
Why didn't I wait for the banquets?
 Why didn't I wait to be cheered?
With the drafted men getting the credit,
 While I only volunteered.

Nobody gave us a banquet,
 Nobody said a bright word,
The puff of the engine: the grind of the wheels,
 Was all the goodbye that I heard.
Then off to the training camps hustled,
 To be trained for half a year;
And in a shuffle forgotten—
 I was only a volunteer.

And some day way off in the future,
 When my little boy sits on my knee,
And asks what I did in the struggle
 As his loving eyes look up to me,
I will have to reply to his question.
 Saying, "Twas this way my dear;
I wasn't among the boys drafted,
 I was only a volunteer."

Boro Made Offers For Local Garages

Bauder And Beighley Buildings Available For Purchase For City Garage

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 13.—At a special session last evening of the Ellwood City council, members were presented two offers of local garages suitable for use as a boro garage.

The first offer presented was that of R. Earl Beighley for his garage situated in Wampum avenue, Fourth ward, at the sum of $32,000.

The second offer was that of the C. L. Bauder property, in Beaver avenue, at the sum of $35,000. Bauder made his offer at $5,000 down with annual payments of $2,000 plus 3½ per cent interest on the unpaid balance. Beighley's offer also stated that terms would be considered.

Both offers include all equipment, and various members stated that each one should be considered in detail. Burgess Clyde Houk reminded members that they should do a little figuring with "things as dark as they are now".

The need of a boro garage has been stressed to council for the past several years. Boro Manager, Lowell Monroe, stated that the boro has a total of 28 various pieces of motorized equipment stationed at various places about the town, some of it without shelter of any kind.

The offers were given to the rules and regulations and finance committees along with the boro solicitor for study.

During the meeting, council was also notified by the Gray Bar Electric company to which they awarded the bid for radio car police equipment, that the equipment would be delivered in the middle of September. There will be an additional cost of $150 for the equipment above the initial bid which was made before the current rise of prices.

School Board Meets Thursday

Discuss Plans For Filling Vacancies Caused By Drafting Of Teachers

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 13.—Members of the Ellwood City Board of Education gathered last night at the Lincoln high school where they enjoyed a delectable turkey dinner served by the economic department under the direction of Miss Iva Jackson. Secretary, G. Elaine Hancher, and superintendent, J. Ellis Bell, were special guests.

The regular monthly meeting followed. It was announced that there would be no school on Monday on account of the Registration of men. Teachers will have charge of the registration and will work in three six hour shifts.

Harold Caplan, economics teacher of the high school, will complete his work today, being among the Ellwood draftees to leave next Friday. His place will be taken by Clayton Houk, and Houk's place in the economics department will be filled until the end of the term by William Lowry, substitute.

Mac Wilson, high school teacher, has enlisted in the naval reserves and is expected to leave sometime this month. A substitute will fill the vacancy. It was said that Pat Rubino would also be among draftees in the near future. He teaches in the commercial department and superintendent Bell said his place would be hard to fill as he had already contacted colleges for available substitutes without results.

A leave of absence was recently granted Mrs. John Raschella, whose place is being taken by Miss Doleros Unger, a local substitute.

There was a great deal of discussion of ways of getting the children out of the schools in case of an emergency. Practices are being held almost daily. A special switch will be installed to "black out" the tower clock on the Lincoln school. Mr. Bell reported a defense meeting he attended recently in Pittsburgh. An auxiliary electric system will be connected to the public address for use in an emergency.

It was decided to file the 1941 delinquent Beaver county property tax. Charles Smith was elected as the outside delinquent tax collector. Miss Hermine Zekich was recently named in charge of the delinquent office.

Total tax collections for the month of January amounted to $5,053 and an addition $7,992 was received from tuition of township students.

The total cost of the equipment installed during the summer on the athletic field was presented, and amounted to $8,500. Of the total amount $2,000 was paid from the 1941 receipts with the balance remaining at $6,500.

Use of the auditorium was granted the Bell Telephone company to show a movie depicting the use of the telephone during war times. The Brotherhood of Faith group will be given permission to use the building for a meeting on Thursday, February 26.
